CONVENTION ASKS PEACE CONFERENCE TO FREE IRELAND

Philadelphia Meeting Declares That a 'State of War' Exists Against England.

PLEDGES $1,250,000 FUND

Declaration Urges Retention of Monroe Doctrine in League of Nations Plan.

GIBBONS BACKS DEMANDS

Enthusiastically Cheered in Presenting Resolution Calling for Application of Wilson's Principles.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—A resolution presented by Cardinal Gibbons, urging the Peace Conference to apply to Ireland the doctrine of national self-determination and a declaration of principles demanding that, if any League of Nations be created, all features which may infringe on the traditional American policy, including the Monroe Doctrine, shall be eliminated, were adopted unanimously today at the closing session of the Convention of the Irish Race in America.

The declaration says a state of war exists between England and Ireland "which, in the interests of the peace of the world, the Peace Conference cannot ignore."

In support of the movement to bring freedom to Ireland, the convention pledged to raise within six months $1,000,000, but before Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of the New York Supreme Court, Chairman of the convention, completed the calling of a list of States and cities, more than $1,250,000 had been pledged to the cause.

Delegates from many States, representing a large number of Irish organizations, crowded the Academy of Music when Cardinal Gibbons arose at the afternoon session and in a few words presented the resolution calling for the right of Ireland to select its form of government. Applause swept the crowd as the Cardinal slowly read the paper, and the enthusiasm aroused by the prelate continued as numerous speakers seconded the resolution.

Among those who spoke in support of Ireland's freedom were the Rev. Norman Thomas, a Presbyterian minister of New York; Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee, Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf of Philadelphia, the Rev. James G. Miter, a Protestant Episcopal clergyman of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Mary McWhorter of Chicago, head of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians; Henry Goddard Leach of New York; Thomas J. Mathews of Providence, R. I., National Secretary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, Mo.

Rabbi's Address Is Cheered.

The convention rose to its feet and cheered several minutes when Rabbi Krauskopf said that President Wilson's declaration that small nations shall have the right of self-government "will not die down, and not even President Wilson himself can recall it."

In introducing the resolution Cardinal Gibbons said:

"I hold in my hands a resolution on behalf of Ireland which should appeal to every lover of liberty and justice.

"My friends, there is liberty in the air. The nations of the earth are clamoring for liberty. And why should not freedom-loving Ireland join in the general cry? Yes, Ireland wants freedom to breathe the air of heaven. She wants freedom to stretch her brawny and sinewy arms. She wants freedom to develop her resources. She wants freedom to develop the riches of her soul. She wants freedom to carve out her own destiny.

"And we are here today to plead the cause of Ireland's sons and daughters, that they may stand erect, redeemed, regenerated and disenthralled on their own sacred soil."

Text of the Resolution.

The text of the resolution follows:

We, the delegates to the Convention of the Irish Race in America, assembled in Philadelphia, the city in which the immortal declaration of American liberty was given to the world, and speaking for many millions of American citizens, call upon the President and Congress of these United States of America to urge the Peace Conference now in session at Paris to apply to Ireland the great doctrine of national self-determination and to recognize the right of the people of Ireland to select for themselves without interference from any other people the form of government under which in future they shall live.

We urge this claim, in the first place, in the name of justice—recognizing and insisting on the truth set forth by the founders of our Republic that all Governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.

We urge this claim in the name of America, insisting, as we have just

UNITE TO PROTECT MEXICAN HOLDINGS

Bankers of This Country, Britain and France to Safeguard Foreign Investors.

J. P. MORGAN THE CHAIRMAN

Plans for Rehabilitating Finances of Country, Railroads, and Mines to be Made.

An international committee of twenty bankers—ten Americans, five from France, and five from Great Britain—has been formed for the purpose of protecting holders of Mexican securities of all kinds, it was announced yesterday by J. P. Morgan & Co. The announcement was made public simultaneously in Paris, London, and New York.

J. P. Morgan will act as Chairman of the committee pending the arrival here of T. W. Lamont, who is in Paris representing the Treasury Department as financial adviser of the American Peace Commission.

The statement, which was given out in the library of J. P. Morgan, Thirty-sixth Street, near Madison Avenue, by Thomas Cochran, a member of the Morgan firm, was as follows:

"The following International Committee has been constituted for the purpose of protecting the holders of securities of the Mexican Republic, and of the various railway systems of Mexico, and, generally, of such other enterprises as have their field of action in Mexico. The committee will be prepared to take such further steps as may seem wise in order to afford counsel and aid to investors who hold interests in Mexico.

Members of the Committee.

J. P. MORGAN, Chairman, of J. P. Morgan & Co.
JOHN J. MITCHELL, President, Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago.
WALTER T. ROSEN of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.
CHARLES H. SABIN, President, Guaranty Trust Company, New York.
MORTIMER L. SCHIFF of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.
JAMES A. STILLMAN, Chairman of the Board, National City Bank, New York.
JAMES N. WALLACE, President, Central Union Trust Company, New York.
ALBERT H. WIGGIN, Chairman of the Board, Chase National Bank, New York.
ROBERT WINSOR of Kidder, Peabody & Co., Boston.
LAURENCE CURRIE of Messrs. Glyn, Mills, Currie & Co., London.
Sir CLARENDON HYDE of Messrs. S. Pearson & Son, Ltd., London.
E. R. PEACOCK, Chairman of the Bondholders' Committee of the Mexico Tramways and the Mexican Light and Power Group of Companies, London.
VIVIAN H. SMITH of Messrs. Morgan, Grenfell & Co., London.
VINCENT W. YORKE, Chairman of the Mexican Railway Co., Ltd., London.
WILLIAM d'EICHTHAL of Mirabaud & Co., Paris.
GEORGES HEINE, Director of the Banque de l'Union Parisienne.
ANDRE HONNORAT, member of the Commission for the Protection of French Holders of Mexican Securities.
JACQUES KULP, auditor of the Banque de Paris et des Pays-Bas, Paris.
JOSEPH SIMON, Inspector of Finance, general delegate of the Commission for the Protection of French Holders of Mexican Securities.

"This committee is not yet prepared to announce a definite program of procedure, but in general its functions will be to inform itself as fully as possible as to existing conditions in Mexico with a view to such positive action as may be taken whenever circumstances permit. Especial care has been taken as to the composition of the committee upon a broad international basis, so as thereby to insure so far as may be joint and united action by security holders in all three countries concerned, namely—the United States, Great Britain, and France.

"The United States State Department at Washington, D. C., and the foreign offices respectively of the British and French Governments have been advised of the formation of this committee.

"Upon T. W. Lamont's return to New York City from Paris, where, on behalf of the United States Treasury, he is in attendance upon the sessions of the American commission to negotiate peace and where he will have opportunity of conferring with the British and the French interests, he will, as originally planned, undertake the active duties of the Chairmanship of the committee."

Each American member has named an alternate to serve in case of need, and

REDS THREATEN TERROR IN MUNICH; BANDS LOOT CITY

MORE OFFICIALS ARE SHOT

MAY DELAY CONSTITUTION

Bavarian Delegates Hasten Home from Weimar—Graz and Bayreuth Outbreaks.

MUNICH, Feb. 23.—Ministerial Councilor Jahries has been killed and several officers of the War Office gravely wounded in the rioting here.

The Radical elements have threatened with death entire classes of the population, as a reprisal for the assassination of Premier Kurt Eisner.

BERLIN, Feb. 22, (Associated Press.)—Chaos is prevailing generally in Munich, and the free transmission of news to Berlin has been interfered with. The press, therefore, for the last fifteen hours has been wholly dependent upon contradictory rumors.

The latest dispatches from the Bavarian capital indicate that the Central Soviet Council is in absolute control and has proclaimed a proletariat dictatorship. One of the leaders of the German Bolshevist movement, named Lewine, is said to be a member of this council, which consists of eleven representatives and has among its number delegates from the Soldiers', Workmen's, and Peasants' Councils.

The general strike will continue until Monday.

Rioters Arrest Archbishop.

Archbishop Faulhaber of the diocese of Würzburg, who has been especially obnoxious to the Radicals, has been arrested by Munich rioters, according to a telephone message from Munich to the Zeitung am Mittag. [Archbishop Faulhaber headed a protest against the separation of church and State in Bavaria last December.]

A dispatch to the Lokal-Anzeiger says that the Bavarian regiments outside of Munich have offered to come to the aid of the city if the Spartacides attempt to terrorize the capital, and also have placed themselves at the disposal of the newly elected Diet, which was to have met Friday, but which was dispersed by the Soviet Government.

Count von Luxburg, brother of the former Minister to Argentina, the newspaper says, has been arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the assassination of Eisner.

According to the dispatch, squads of looters have invaded the residence districts. The palace of Field Marshal Prince Leopold was entered by looters who, however, were forestalled by the hurried arrival of soldier guards. The Government of Bavaria has fixed a penalty of death for plunderers.

Arms Issued to Workingmen.

The arming of workingmen is said by the correspondent to have been in progress since early today, in anticipation of military intervention by the Ebert Government.

The people of Munich are uninformed as to the events that are transpiring, as no newspapers are appearing.

The Government has ordered that three days of mourning be observed in honor of Eisner.

Herr Auer, Minister of the Interior, and Count Arco Valley, the young student who shot and killed Premier Eisner, were said to be alive at noon yesterday, but both in a critical condition.

Orgy of Loot at Augsburg.

Feb. 23.—The Augsburg Soviet issued a statement today regarding the riots on Friday there, showing that the radical demonstration resulting from the assassination of Eisner rapidly degenerated into an orgy of destruction and loot of such ramifications that the Soviet troops were compelled to make liberal use of their weapons.

The statement says that the mob raided the artillery depot and armed itself with machine guns, rifles, re-

Budapest Crowd Lynches Bela Kun, Red Leader

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Communist leader, Bela Kun, of Budapest has been lynched, according to a dispatch from the Berlin correspondent of Reuter's Limited, quoting a message from the Hungarian capital.

The action was said to be the result of popular indignation at the attempts of the communists to undermine the existing order. The entire Hungarian press, including extreme Socialist organs, is unanimous in condemning the communist agitation, the dispatch stated.

Other advices say that the proletariat has organized a strike as a protest against the energetic measures taken to suppress the communists, which include the arrests of forty-two radicals, according to Budapest advices received by way of Basle.

The Minister of War denounced the communists in an address delivered in Parliament Square to many thousands of workmen, who adopted a resolution calling upon the Government to use all the means at its disposal to end the communist plots.

EXPECTS GERMANS TO RECALL PRINCES

WANT REVENGE ON ALLIES

War Spirit Is Found to be Still Strong Despite the Political Changes.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Feb. 23.—The opinion that the German people are monarchists at heart and that it is more than likely that they will turn again to the German Princes to restore the country is expressed by an expert who is watching the developments of German politics for the American Army.

This officer, a former university professor, is an authority on international affairs, and has access to reports and information from all parts of Germany daily. He has studied closely the work of the German National Assembly and the behavior of the Germans since the signing of the armistice. The result of that study is his belief not only that the German Princes will probably come back, but that the war spirit is still strong among the Germans, and that the spirit of revenge lives deep down in their hearts.

He has written the following summary of the situation as he sees it:

"Germany proceeds with her state-making, taking care not to change the system too much. This might be expected in a people who are monarchists at heart. If the Kaiser and the Crown Prince had not abdicated the Allies might have demanded the surrender to them of both the Kaiser and the Prince. This would have been a greater blow to German pride than any condition which has been imposed and would have caused a desperate resistance.

"The abdication saved Germany from this, so that now the Kaiser is regarded as a martyr for his country and the Crown Prince shares this glory. Of course, the Independent Socialists and the Spartacus group would probably like to treat the Hohenzollerns as the Bolsheviki treated the Romanoffs, but apart from that the general feeling is one of loyalty.

"The Germans feel at last that they are conquered, abased, and powerless, but the feeling for revenge is burning and the war spirit is not dead but bides its time.

"The Hohenzollerns gave them a Roman prestige among the nations in the past as well as commercial prosperity, and it is more than likely that the time will come when they will be returned to raise Germany again from poverty and humiliation. It will be remembered that they did not sign the armistice and that they always stood for everything of which Germany is proudest.

"In the meantime care will be taken that the people will have more of a share in the Government than they had in the past, and any Hohenzollern will have to accommodate himself to the new order of things."

BOMB PLANNED FOR WILSON

Reported That It Was to Have Been Thrown in Boston.

PRISONERS ALL SPANIARDS

RADICAL EDITOR SEIZED

Documents Taken from Office of El Corsario—Alleged Plotters All Recent Arrivals.

Acting on information that two Spanish anarchists had agreed to kill the President, and would arrive in this city yesterday, Secret Service operatives raided two resorts of Spanish radicals in New York yesterday and arrested fourteen men.

Two of those arrested are suspected of being the pair pledged to attempt the life of the President. They were said to have arrived here yesterday from Philadelphia, and to have planned to leave last night for Boston, where the President's ship arrived last night, and from which he will land this morning.

While the Secret Service agents who uncovered the plot and planned the raids refused to give details of the conspiracy, it was learned that a thorough search of the two places which were raided was made for a bomb, which was to have been thrown at the Presidential party today if the plot had been carried out.

No bomb was found in this city. Secret Service agents, who are at work on the conspiracy in Boston and Philadelphia, were said last night to have been trying to trace the bomb elsewhere. Many are said to be in the conspiracy and special precautions will be taken today to guard the President in case others should attempt to take the places of the two men who have been arrested.

Ten of the arrests were made yesterday at 1,722 Lexington Avenue, near 108th Street, by Captain Peter A. Rubano of the Secret Service, with eight men, and Sergeant James J. Gegan and Detective James F. McCoy, in charge of the police bomb squad. The other four were arrested at 415 West Fifty-third Street. All those arrested are charged with sedition in violation of the President's proclamation of May 11, 1917, but several of them may be ignorant of the plot to attack the President.

All Spanish Aliens.

Not one of the fourteen prisoners is a citizen. All are Spaniards, and nearly all have come to this country within a year and a half. Most of them, according to the police, have spent the time since their arrival in promoting the I. W. W. movement, and working with the several radical groups which are welded into one body by the Bolshevist idea. Legal steps will be taken today to deport all who escape a more serious charge than sedition.

The police and Secret Service agents first entered the place at 1,722 Lexington Avenue at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, where they arrested three men found in a Spanish radical club which occupies the ground floor. Throughout the day members of the club were arrested as rapidly as they arrived. Many copies of El Corsario, a Spanish radical newspaper, were seized at the club house. A number of I. W. W. membership cards, radical literature and advertisements of meetings to aid "American political prisoners" were found. Most of the prisoners were young men in the early twenties, and few of them had been here long enough to pick up even a smattering of the language of the country whose Government they were working to overturn through membership in organizations seeking a revolution.

The following are the ten arrested at 1,722 Lexington Avenue in the order of their arrest:

Joseph Ramon Fernandez, 21 years old, born in Spain; been in this country a year and a half; lived at 61 Broadway, Elizabethport, N. J.; a laborer.

Jose M. Alicer, 1,720 Lexington Avenue, 22 years old, born in Spain, a cigar maker; has been in this country one year.

Joseph Micezer, 1,722 Lexington Avenue, 20 years old, born in Spain, a clerk; a year and a half in this country.

Raphael Acosta, 24 years old, 68 East 122d Street, born in Spain, a cigar maker; one year and two months in this country.

Alemanero Malcono, 341 East Seventy-sixth Street, 20 years of age, born in Spain, pantryman; one year and two months in this country.

Senate and People in Favor of League, View of Hitchcock, Foreign Relations Head

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Senator Hitchcock, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said tonight that he believed the majority of the Senate favored the League of Nations. The Nebraska Senator would not, he said, discount the effect of the debate leveled against the project in the Senate during the last week. He felt that the American public wanted to know what the Senate thought about the League, and that the debate had served a useful purpose.

"But I do not believe that the majority of the people are in sympathy with the views antagonistic to the League, as expressed by Senators who spoke last week," said Mr. Hitchcock. "It is true that remarkable demonstrations were accorded them, but this, I take it, was nothing more than an evidence of the acute interest taken by the people in the whole League project, rather than an approval of the sentiments expressed.

"I know that some Republicans are in favor of the League proposal, and I believe that nearly all of the Democrats are in favor of it. As to a vote of approval at this time, I have no way of knowing how the Senate might stand. When it comes to voting upon the League as a part of the peace treaty, I believe it will be adopted by the Senate."

AGREE TO SPEED THE PEACE TREATY

Supreme Council Decides to Put Armistice Terms in the Preliminary Convention.

INDEMNITIES ARE INCLUDED

Reparation and Other Commissions Directed to File Their Reports by March 8.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—It looks at last as if peace will not be long delayed after President Wilson returns to France. Measures for expediting the work of the conference were taken at a session of the Supreme Council today. It was their intention when the council met to apply expedition only to those questions affecting Germany; but after much discussion an agrement was reached to require the submission of all data affecting Austria, Turkey, and Bulgaria within the shortest possible period.

The agreement, as it affected Germany, was generally along the lines of the program explained in my previous dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES, but an important decision was reached to embody all the provisions in one preliminary peace treaty. The original arrangement had been to have the new armistice terms comprise the entire text of the preliminary Peace Convention to be signed without delay. Under the agreement adopted today the signing of the new armistice will be deferred so as to enable its inclusion in the preliminary convention, which will also prescribe the amount of reparation Germany must pay, the delimitations of the German boundaries, and the economic relationships between Germany and the Allies.

A resolution tentatively adopted at today's session provides that the commissions on German reparation, responsibility for the war, economics, and other objects pertaining to the peace agreement must submit their final reports by March 8. It is expected that appropriate articles of the preliminary treaty will be drafted by the time President Wilson returns in the middle of March.

A deadlock in the interallied commission which is charged with determining the amount of reparation and the amount Germany is able to pay resulted in directions from the Supreme Council that each nation submit its own contentions and estimate as to Germany's liability and ability to pay. From these estimates the Supreme Council will endeavor to fix the amount with which Germany through signing the preliminary peace treaty will pledge herself to indemnify the Allies.

A Consultation with Clemenceau.

PARIS, Feb. 22, (Associated Press.)—An extensive program for the Peace Conference, which has been carefully matured within the last few days, was presented this afternoon, when A. J. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, and Colonel E. M. House of the American delegation called on Premier Clemenceau in his sickroom a little while before the Supreme Council convened. Both Secretary Balfour and Colonel House found the wounded statesman dressed and sitting up and keenly alert concerning the work of the conference and fully agreed on the plan for rapid acceleration of work on all subjects.

Soon afterward the Supreme Council met and ratified the program. The official statement, issued after the

GREAT INTEREST IN WILSON SPEECH

Hope Expressed That He Will Discuss Vigorously the League of Nations.

WANT CRITICS ANSWERED

Danger Seen in Ignoring Opposition—Another Group Hopes He Will Be Conservative.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 23.—President Wilson tonight is passing his time in such ways as passengers do on a ship that has arrived home but has not landed. The George Washington got in at 4 this afternoon, and lies in the harbor awaiting the order to her pier. The President, however, will not wait for the landing. He and his party will be transferred to the United States ship Ossipee at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and that ship will make her run up to the pier. It will take her about half an hour, and the escorting parade is scheduled to start then, but a long experience with parades would lead any one possessing it to the belief that it will be a little later before it actually does start.

It cannot be long, however, for the President has a crowded day before him. He will not have had more than time enough to lunch comfortably at the Copley Plaza—a private luncheon it will be, without any divulgence at this time of the names of the guests, who will not be the President's shipboard party—before he has to start at 2 o'clock for Mechanics' Hall to deliver his address. At 4:30 he will leave for Washington.

Secretary Tumulty says that the President has no other speaking engagements during the time he remains in the United States. The Boston address, so far as anyone now knows, will be his only public utterance before he starts back for France, which will be surprisingly soon. Therefore all the more interest attaches to the question of what he will say.

Character of the Address

Among those influential men who are awaiting his arrival there are two parties, one hoping that he will deliver merely a general indorsement of the League of Nations, with a simple explanation of what it is, and the other hoping that he will strike out straight from the shoulder and challenge the opposition to that League. Chances are in favor of the first, but many of those who will greet him personally would much prefer the second. The President is to speak extemporaneously, or at least without notes, so that there is a chance that whatever he may have made up his mind to do may be modified by the advice of his friends at the last moment.

Their argument will be that the President's stay in the United States will be short, his absence long, and that in the meantime the warfare started by a certain kind of Senators—a kind which does not include Senator Lodge—will have time to make all kinds of headway unless the President forestalls it by an electrical speech which will carry the country with him.

It is obvious, these men say, that the fight against the League of Nations is being organized and financed from some quarter for strong reasons, and that it will not be made on the technicalities of the covenant but on broad and easily misrepresented lines. In other words, all the prejudices, anti-British, pro-Bolshevist, and all the rest, will be played upon for the purpose of creating false impressions. This work will proceed while the President is away, and there will be nothing to check it.

It has been positively decided that when the President makes his second return he will go out into the country and appeal to the people, and his skill in that direction is formidable. It will make a difference, however, whether

DESTROYER DISCOVERS LAND

George Washington Reads Whistle Puffs and Backs Quickly.

THEN FOG HORN IS HEARD

PRESIDENT NOT ALARMED

Goes on Deck When Vessel Backs and Calmly Watches Developments.

ON BOARD U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—While running for Boston Light in a heavy fog and rain, President Wilson's ship and her destroyer escort all ran head-on toward the beach at Thatcher's Island, Cape Ann, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, but stopped probably a thousand yards offshore before there was danger of grounding. About an hour was lost before the ships got their bearings and proceeded.

The weather was very thick and the President's ship and her escort were running on dead reckoning, with the destroyer Harding as a guard ship ahead. Suddenly the Harding's lookout discovered land, and the destroyer gave five quick blasts on her whistle and made a quick turn across the Washington's bow.

The wind was landward, and the sound was carried away from the George Washington instead of toward her. The Washington's deck officer, however, saw the five jets of steam from the Harding's whistle, and, giving three short blasts of the big liner's whistle, signaled the engine room for full speed astern. The big ship trembled and quivered with the throbbing of the mighty engines as they churned the water, and that was the first intimation any of the passengers and most of the crew had of what was going on.

President Seems Unconcerned.

President Wilson noticed the motion at once and with Admiral Grayson went on deck. He seemed quite unconcerned, however, and his attitude was more one of curiosity and interest. Troops and passengers piled on decks at the same time, and saw the rollers on the sandy beach and the summer cottages. A motion picture show going on in the main dining salon, however, continued to hold the attention of many of the passengers.

Although going full speed, the Washington stopped quickly and easily, and began backing away, while the destroyers turned to, wallowing about the big liner. The lead was got going quickly, and deep water immediately was reported.

Passengers, crew, and troops did not seem to regard the incident as a possibility of danger, many of them thinking it rather a good joke played by the fog and rain on the navigators of all the ships.

"I don't care if it is the beach," exclaimed one soldier. "It's the good old U. S. A., whatever it is, and I say hurray for it!"

After backing a short distance, Captain McCauley dropped anchor, to make observations and get bearings, while the destroyers formed a semicircle about the President's ship, waiting for orders. The wind whipped up a bit, and a blinding snow flurry swept down on the port quarter, making observations even more difficult. The destroyer Paulding came close alongside, and the heliographs were got going.

Doleful Wail of a Foghorn.

Then from over the starboard bow came the doleful, steady wail of a foghorn dealing out its warning. Officers recorded the blasts by stopwatch, hoping to identify the station by its manner of blowing. Meanwhile Captain McCauley flashed a heliograph message to the Paulding to proceed cautiously and attempt to identify the signal. In a moment the destroyer got under way, spitting long trails of black smoke from her funnels, but she had hardly started when the wind shifted and drove the snow hurry off to the north, the fog lifted, and one of the officers perched on the upper deck sang out:

"Thatcher's Island dead ahead!"

Through the dissolving mist the two lighthouses of the Cape Ann station became visible, and the suspense was over. The Washington and her convoy had been headed toward shore just above Eastern Point, Gloucester, and still further north from Marblehead. One of the passengers, sweeping the shore with glasses, declared he could plainly see his Summer cottage, and remarked he would have no objection to being landed there in a breeches buoy.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, who took the bridge immediately with Captain McCauley, had yachted in the waters in which the Washington lay, and gave it as his guess just before the fog lifted that the ship and her escort were in the vicinity of Marblehead. It turned out that the Secretary was very nearly accurate in his guess.

The weather continued to clear every moment, and before an hour had quite passed it was possible to see from four to six miles. The Washington then backed out, and, turning south, headed for Boston Light, where a pilot was waiting at the buoys at the mouth of the channel.

Discusses Russia and Navy.

ON BOARD U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Feb. 22, (By Wireless to The Associated Press.)—President Wilson's speech at Boston Monday will be merely in the nature of a reply to a welcome home and will be of a character fitting to such an occasion.

The President had luncheon today with Ambassador Francis, discussing the Russian situation at length and hearing the diplomat's recommendations as to the course the United States should pursue in Russia.

Also with him at luncheon was Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who gave Mr. Wilson many new details of the navy's activities in Europe, showing how the United States spent more than $30,000,000 laying the North Sea mine barrage. The United States actually had more than 300 ships based in Europe and more than 200 seaplanes hunting submarines.

TAFT IN NEW APPEAL.

Calls on People to Demand That Congress Support League.

BITTER CREEK, Wyo., Feb. 23.—Appeal to the people of the United States to express their opinions on the proposed League of Nations in a voice "so clear and strong that our representatives in Congress may know that the people of the United States are determined to assume their part in this crisis of human history," was made in a statement issued here tonight to The Associated Press by William Howard Taft and other members of the party touring the country in the interest of the proposed League.

Asserting that the alternative to a League of Nations is "the heavy burden and the constant temptation of universal armament," and that without a League a new war of even greater dimensions is threatened, the statement points to the disorganized state of Europe and possibilities of German autocracy again getting the upper hand.

The statement was signed by Mr. Taft, Henry Morgenthau, A. Lawrence Lowell, and Henry van Dyke.

"The deaths of millions of men," says the statement, "and the destruction and debt in another world war would turn civilization backward for generations. In such a war we shall certainly be involved and our best young men will be sacrificed as the French and English have been sacrificed in the last four years. Such a catastrophe can be prevented only by reconstruction of the small States, now seeking self-government on the basis of freedom and justice, but this is impossible without a League, for, divided, its members are not strong enough for the task. Should the victorious nations fail to form a League, German imperialists would have a clearer field for their designs."

American Officers Leave Berlin.

BERLIN, Feb. 22, (Associated Press.)—Military members of the recently established American mission in Berlin have been withdrawn. Franklin Day, an attaché of the American Legation at Berne, remains here in charge of the interests of the American mission.

DOUBT IF WILSON SEEKS SENATE VOTE

GOING AHEAD WITH FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The League of Nations as promoted by the Paris Conference, has but slight chance of being approved by the Senate at this time, according to the view expressed today by leaders of that body. If a vote of approval is asked by the President, it is believed that the Senate will stand against it.

In the view of Senators as expressed today, no advantage would be gained by the President's asking the support of the Senate to the proposal at this time. The project may come up, according to the program pursued by the Paris conferees, as a part of the peace treaty, and there is no disposition manifest among leaders in the Senate to put that body on record before that time.

At the same time, proponents of the League insist that if the Senate is asked to express approval before the President returns to France it will give it an indorsing vote. It is regarded as unlikely, however, that the President will ask the Senate for any such vote. The doubt of a majority of the Senate supporting the project, it is believed, will influence the President against it, even were he predisposed to ask for the Senate's indorsement.

The League will be debated again in the Senate tomorrow, when Senator Lewis of Illinois, the Democratic whip, will speak in favor of it.

Mr. Lewis's speech will be the first in support of the project by an administration Senator.

Senator Lewis favors the League idea, but is inclined to the belief that there ought to be some specific clause in the Constitution of the League that will remove any doubt of conflict with the Monroe Doctrine. He is unable to coincide with the view of ex-President Taft that the Monroe Doctrine will not be overrun if the whole League idea is accepted.

Senator Reed of Missouri, who spoke yesterday against the League, said today that he had no idea how the Senate might stand if the project were put to a vote of approval.

"It might be that the Senate would approve it, although I hope not," said Mr. Reed. "I am seriously of the opinion that the American people are not in favor of the League idea, or at least they would not be were they familiar with the threat that it involves to straight-out Americanism.

"I care only for the support of our American policies. I have no other idea than that in my opposition to the League of Nations. And I believe the principles of Americanism will prevail."

Mr. Reed, with Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, and Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, will speak on March 6 at the Pennsylvania Hotel, in New York, on the League of Nations. This will be the first engagement in the East in Mr. Borah's "swing around the circle."

Republican leaders of the Senate, who want a full discussion of the League of Nations, expect that there will be an extra session of Congress called some time around March 15, provided the program to pass the short-term bond legislation before that time does not go through. They say that there is such a difference of opinion among financiers as to the advisability of the short-term notes over the proposed long-term Victory bonds that they do not intend to pass upon such an important matter in haste. The Senate Finance Committee will meet tomorrow to consider the bill reported by the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday. The bill may not get through the House until late Tuesday, therefore it will not be formally before the Finance Committee until Wednesday.

In the discussion of the situation with respect to the Bond bill tonight, Republican leaders tentatively decided that it would be a wise move to refuse action on this bill, so as to force a session almost immediately after March 4 and thereby give the Senate an opportunity to discuss the League of Nations and keep in touch with the progress of the Peace Conference.

These leaders argue that the President will be compelled to call Congress into extraordinary session by the middle of March. All plans have been made to float the next bond issue on April 21, but the necessary legislation is provided in the bill just reported by the Ways and Means Committee, final action on which by Congress is imperative before the end of this session. If Congress does not act a special session must be called.

The League of Nations, it is certain, will be debated in the Senate up until the end of this Congress. Unless there is an extra session it will have to go over from that time until the Peace Conference is wound up in Paris, which, Senators believe, will not be until June 1 at the earliest. At that time the League of Nations would come before the Senate for ratification as a part of the traety of peace.

PLAN 'SCRAP OF PAPER' PEACE WITH POLAND

Paris Hears from Warsaw of Plot by German Government to Destroy Polish Power.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The Polish authorities, according to a Havas dispatch from Warsaw, have obtained absolutely reliable information from Berlin that President Ebert, Chancellor Scheidemann, Foreign Minister von Brockdorff-Rantzau, War Minister Noske, and Herr Landsberg at a secret meeting adopted a plan to deal with the Polish question by which Germany, while promising to make peace with Poland, would give orders to the German troops on the frontier to continue their operations against the Poles.

In addition, it is declared, the German leaders agreed to get in touch with the Russian Bolshevist Government with a view to joint action against Poland. It was planned also, the dispatch continues, to let the German troops remain in Lithuania to become infected with Bolshevism so as to facilitate action against Poland. It was agreed that it would be announced that the leaders no longer had control over these troops.

WARSAW, Feb. 22, (Associated Press.)—A crowd, apparently made up of persons out of work and led by Bolshevist agents, made a demonstration today before the Hotel Bristol, where Premier Paderewski and the interallied mission to Poland have their headquarters. The Premier's automobile was stopped as he was leaving the hotel, and M. Paderewski was forced to make a speech to the crowd. He promised the demonstrants work as soon as possible, and appealed to them to disperse because of the impression their attitude would make on the foreign mission.

Later one of the French officers attached to the mission appeared on a balcony and told the crowd that food was on the way to Warsaw. The affair turned out to be rather tame, and the crowd was eventually dispersed by a squadron of cavalry and some infantry.

Moscow, the seat of the Russian Bolshevist Government, is quiet for the time being, pending the outcome of the proposed Princes' Islands conference. Some reports reaching Warsaw are that the Bolshevist leaders are spending money to procure agitators to foment disorders in Poland. Meanwhile Polish troops are weeding out Bolshevism in Lithuania and White Russia.

NEW MONEY FOR POLAND.

National Currency to Have Unit of Same Value as French Franc.

WARSAW, Feb. 23, (Associated Press.)—Poland within three months will introduce new paper money, the unit of which will have the same value as the French franc, under an act now before the Diet. The reason for the step is the feeling that Poland should have its own national money, and also a monetary standard which could be quoted abroad, since at the present time there are three or four different kinds of foreign moneys in Poland, all varying in value. This makes it difficult for Poland to make necessary foreign purchases. The money will be issued by a new national bank, which may possibly be termed the "Fatherland Bank," when the division of lands has been decided.

While Poland is making an effort to secure foreign credit to stabilize her money, for the present, as she has little gold or silver within her borders, the value of the new money rests on Poland's national guarantee, plus what is owed her by Germany, which is, first, the 860,000,000 marks printed during the German occupation and guaranteed by German banks; second, German marks circulating in Posen and in Poland which are estimated at 2,000,000,000; third, sums which Germany should restore to Poland for war requisitions and thefts, and, fourth, Poland's share in the claims for indemnities from Germany established by the Peace Conference.

The new Polish money probably will be replaced later, or readopted, when the Peace Conference settles the question of the money standard to be adopted.

LAY PLANS TO FIGHT LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Henry A. Wise Wood Tells of Organization to Oppose Constitution Framed by Wilson.

WILL HEAR PRESIDENT FIRST

Campaign to Open After White House Dinner—Taft Accused of Giving One Side of Question.

An organization of individuals and societies to oppose the ratification of the League of Nations as proposed y President Wilson at the Peace Coference is being formed in this city, according to Henry A. Wise Wood. Its list of members and statement of aims, he said, probably would be announced after the President had explained the constitution of the League to the Congressional Committees on Foreign Relations, who are to dine at the White House.

Mr. Wood sent a telegram to ex-President Taft yesterday, charging him with not giving his audiences full information upon the proposed League. Discussing his telegram, Mr. Wood said that many influential persons were ready to oppose the constitution of the League as read by the President at the Peace Conference, but that, partly out of courtesy to the President, they did not wish to become active until the President had been heard in this country. Mr. Wood, in response to a request, communicated with several of the persons he had referred to to ask permission yesterday to make their names public. He said that all of them wished to remain anonymous until after the President had spoken.

Archibald M. Hurd, a member of the Executive Committee of the American Defense Society, said last night that he had heard of the movement but that he was not at liberty to give names until after the President's arguments had been heard.

Mr. Hurd said no decision had been made by the American Defense Society as to its attitude toward the League of Nations, but that he believed the question would be considered soon by the Executive Committee. Mr. Hurd said he was opposed to the constitution read in Paris.

Colonel Charles E. Lydecker of the National Security League said he had not heard of the plan to oppose the League, but added that he expected such a movement. He is also opposed to the proposed constitution.

Mr. Wood said that the movement probably would not condemn the principles of a League of Nations, but would certainly oppose the constitution as proposed in Paris. Whether the men and organizations who plan this fight are of the group mentioned by Senator Borah as having offered to finance his tour was not disclosed. Elihu Root was spoken of as one who might become a leader in the movement, but he could not be reached at his home yesterday. Mr. Wood's telegram to ex-President Taft reads:

Hon. William Howard Taft,
Hotel Statler,
St. Louis, Mo.:

I charge you with not having set before the American people the consequences of their binding themselves to accept the covenant of the League of Nations.

I charge you with having failed to set before them an impartial analysis of that covenant and with having failed to point out to them its enormous perils. On the contrary you have concealed these perils, while extolling its hypothetical benefits; thus you are leading into danger a nation you are bound in honor to protect.

Do you realize clearly the fact that the United States of America is now the richest and most powerful nation in the world?

Do you realize clearly the fact that as a member of the "League" the United States would be only one of an "executive council" of nine nations, and that the other eight would have a common interest against us in the internationalization of our Panama Canal?

Do you realize clearly the fact that the European nations have important interests in common, which we do not share, and that in these questions they would naturally stand together against us?

Do you realize, for instance, that the other eight nations are our debtors, and we are the creditor of all; that we would be one creditor in the power of eight debtors?

Are you willing we should bind ourselves not to increase our army or navy without the consent of an "executive council," controlled by the other eight—by the powers of Europe and Asia? I am not.

Are you willing we should thus surrender into the hands of such a coalition of European and Asiatic powers the security upon which depends the sovereignty of the United States? I am not.

Are you willing we should bind ourselves to "preserve as against external aggression"—which means to fight for—the territorial integrity and political independence of States, little and big, in Europe, Africa, Asia and Central and South America? I am not.

Are you willing we should bind ourselves to accept the decision of the powers of Europe and Asia in matters which relate to Mexico and the countries which surround and control our Canal Zone, and thus in effect to surrender the Monroe Doctrine? I am not.

Are you willing we should bind ourselves not to make war in defense of our southern border, or our Canal Zone, without the consent of the European and Asiatic powers? I am not.

Are you willing we should bind ourselves not to make war to prevent the transfer of Magdalena Bay or Lower California to a foreign nation, if the European and Asiatic powers confirm the title of the purchaser and refuse the United States their permission to fight? I am not.

Are you willing we should bind ourselves to stop doing business at the command of the powers of Europe and Asia with any nation that they may determine to punish, even if it be against our will and interests? I am not.

Are you willing we should bind ourselves to surrender the control which we now exercise over the supply of arms and ammunition to Mexico, for instance, and to place that control in the hands of the European and Asiatic powers? I am not.

Are you willing we should bind ourselves to administer remote territories in Europe, Asia, or Africa as an agent of the European and Asiatic powers? I am not.

Are you willing we should bind ourselves to give these powers the right to direct our actions as their agent in the work of policing Central America for instance, for the protection of our Canal? I am not.

Finally, are you willing we should, and do you think we have the right to, bind ourselves, our children and children's children, to these things forever? I am not. I have not the right.

Do you believe America is so unable to care for herself that she needs must place herself under an international protectorate? Ought we not have sufficient faith in her great destiny to wish to preserve her independence?

What would have been Roosevelt's answer to these questions? I know; so do you. Give it.

I now call upon you as our only living ex-President to state both sides of this question instead of only one, as you are now doing.

HENRY A. WISE WOOD.

Mr. Wood said he would make public immediately any answer he might receive from ex-President Taft.

UNTERMYER ANSWERS OBJECTIONS TO LEAGUE

Lawyer Says Its Constitution Is Not in Conflict with That of United States.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.—A statement discussing the proposed constitution of the League of Nations was given out here today by Samuel Untermyer of New York, particularly as to whether it would be in conflict with the Constitution of the United States.

Covering this phase of the question he points out that under our Constitution a treaty when made by the President with advice and consent of two-thirds of the Senate becames the supreme law of the land, and he concludes that all objections so far raised except one minor one, concern matters which are well within the treaty-making powers of Congress, and continues:

"The most that can be said in favor of the power of Congress over a treaty was said by the Supreme Court in the Cherokee Tobacco case that 'a treaty may supersede a prior act of Congress and an act of Congress may supersede a prior treaty.' In this view the treaty still remains the supreme law of the land until overriden by Congress, and, having been ratified by two-thirds of the Senate, there is no practical danger."

Concerning other objections that have been raised Mr. Untermyer thinks that national isolation is no longer possible, that controversies between European nations may now be far more vital to us than were the disturbances in Cuba over which we went to war with Spain, and that the proposed League Constitution involves a distinct recognition and extension of the Monroe Doctrine.

Concerning the suggestion that there might be combinations and alliances within the League he observes that these are expressly provided against, and says, "unless we are prepared to assume that the time will come when a majority in number and power of the civilized nations will deliberately seek and insist upon an unrighteous war there is no force in this argument."

Answering some of the arguments received by opponents of the League, the statement says:

"With due deference to the distinguished gentlemen who find grave international objections to our becoming parties to the League I find only one provision as to which I am in serious doubt, and that is upon a comparatively unimportant feature that has not yet been suggested, so far as I know, and that will be obviated if our Government monopolizes the manufacture of arms and armament as is contemplated. I refer to Article XVIII. of the covenant which places the general supervision of the trade in the League.

"Such a provision may not be within the treaty-making power. It may well be argued that it is an intrusion upon our purely domestic policies as affecting an industry that we may elect to leave in private hands, and which the election of the League does not prohibit us from so doing, although it pronounces against the wisdom of that course and instructs the executive council to advise 'how the evil effects attendant upon such manufacture can be prevented.'

"The argument against this provision is emphasized by the fact that the manufacture of arms and armament may be solely for domestic use. The League may have regulated its sale in foreign countries, and yet its supervision is to be vested in the League, and such supervision is without restriction. This seems an intolerable and unnecessary provision, quite apart from the question of its constitutionality. I have failed to appreciate the force of the officially repeated and frequently emphasized argument based upon Article XXIII., which requires that all treaties or engagements made between members of the League shall be registered with its Secretary General. The purpose is, of course, to prevent secret treaties that are contrary and inimical to the letter or spirit of the covenant between the members. I do not understand that its wisdom and expediency are questioned. It is a purely administrative measure.

"The objection urged is technical in the extreme, and as it seems to me unsubstantial, coming close to the border line of a quibble. It is said that while under our Constitution a treaty is effective when agreed to by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate, this provision superimposes the further unauthorized provision that it must be filed with the League. Neither does the Constitution provide that the treaty must be delivered and exchanged between the contracting parties, yet delivery is essential to its validity.

"Article 23 is nothing more than a provision for delivery to all the parties interested through filing with the League, for under this covenant all the members have an interest in all separate engagements, at least to the extent that they acquire the right to know what they are. Suppose these separate treaties contain the provision, as they doubtless would, that a copy is to be filed with the League, would there be anything unconstitutional about that?

"As to the objection that the agreement of the signatory members to use economic pressure to prevent war invades and shackles the power of Congress over the revenue, it is sufficient to recall that ever since the foundation of our Government treaties have been made and ratified in various forms by Congressional action without objection or question concerning matters within the jurisdiction of Congress and that many such treaties are now in force. The so-called 'favored nations' treaties are fair illustrations.

"I assume that the chief objections to the League will concentrate around its supposed infringement upon and peril to the Monroe Doctrine. To me it involves a distinct recognition and extension of that doctrine, which has never until now received the formal recognition of any great foreign power except by silent acquiescence. Under this covenant the acquisition by the European nations of territory on the Western hemisphere, against which the Monroe Doctrine is aimed, becomes impossible. Under Article X. the territorial integrity and political independence of the various States must be respected and preserved, whilst Article XIX. and other provisions assure that geographical situation would automatically allot to us the role of mandatories for all Central and South American countries that may require that treatment by reason of revolutions or other inability to govern themselves.

"It is one of the most potent arguments in favor of the League from our point of view that it will render unnecessary the further assertion of the Monroe Doctrine, since by the terms of this instrument the situation that evoked its enunciation must disappear.

"Conscious of our power and sense of justice, we should be ashamed to hesitate at all times to submit our cause to the arbitrament of the civilized nations as represented by the League.

"It is said that we are surrendering our own independence and are plunging into the quarrels of other countries that do not concern us in defiance of the warnings of the founders of the Republic. And yet international arbitration has been the keynote of all our modern diplomacy. Is it possible that we shall ever have a quarrel so unjust that we will insist upon being prosecutor, judge, and jury? If we are surrendering our sovereign right to decide for or against war it is a noble surrender, a surrender to the judgment of mankind, which in like manner is surrendering its right to decide to us. There is not and can no longer be a quarrel between nations resulting in barbaric war that does not directly concern us both in our material prosperity and as a potent factor in the brotherhood of man.

"If we are now to forego this great opportunity for world service to what end have we fought this war? We will deservedly cease to be the great moral power of the world that we have become by sheer force of our unselfishness and idealism. Shall we have the courage to take the next step forward or are we cowards and braggarts after all? That is the real issue we are now called upon to decide."

DEBATE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Senator Poindexter Attacks Proposal and Mayor Putnam Defends It

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 23.—The advisability of establishing a League of Nations was debated by Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington and Major George Haven Putnam before the People's Forum here today. Senator Poindexter cited the Constitution and Washington's warning against entangling alliances in argument against the League and urged "that the independence of the United States be not surrendered." He criticized Section 12 of the tentative draft, providing for compulsory arbitration, and Section 10, which, he said, would drive us into war in defense of any other country in the League. He added that "it is not a League for peace, but it is a League of war."

Major Putnam said that the federative idea was the central principle of American Government and that this country would surrender "only the right to be aggressive." He said the League would be an agreement among the peoples of the world, and that the people would have a controlling voice. The United States need only give up certain privileges of individual action, he continued.

BRITISH MINERS FOR STRIKE

Influences at Work to Avert or Postpone National Walkout.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Industrial peace or war hangs on the events of the next few days. Wednesday's conference of miners' delegates to consider the Premier's proposals are anxiously awaited in view of the overwhelming vote for a national strike of miners revealed by the ballot which closed yesterday. Available figures show a majority of 249,218 out of a poll of 366,888, and the returns are not yet complete.

During the week-end the miners' leaders declined to commit themselves regarding the attitude of their executive toward Lloyd George's proposal for an investigating committee to report on or before March 31 on the wages and hours questions, but it is believed in well-informed circles that moderating influences at work among the men's leaders will result in acceptance of the proposal and avoidance, or at least postponement, of the threatened stoppage, which is fixed for March 15.

On the other hand, there is disquieting news today of the transport workers and bakers. The former are preparing for action in all ports to enforce their demand, chiefly concerning hours, and the latter have voted for a national strike to save the abolition of night baking.

he has to overcome a false impression made by the skillful fanning of the flames of prejudice along mendacious lines or whether he can have an even start with his opponents; in other words, whether he will be handicapped by having to fight the power of an unanswered argument or whether he will first have his say at the same time that his enemies do.

This is why his speech tomorrow is looked upon as so important, and why men who have his interests at heart are so deeply anxious about the form which that speech will take. It will be the only speech he will have a chance to make, unless he addresses Congress before he returns to France. Great things hang upon it. His absence in France will be long—long as measured in the possibilities of mischief-making—and if he confines himself to an academic and cold-blooded and analytical address, nothing will be done to counteract at the beginning the efforts which his opponents will make while he is gone.

And who are these opponents, ask the President's friends. Who, for instance, is financing Senator Borah's tour, and who will finance Senator Reed's if he makes one? The interests involved seem to be large, and Mr. Reed says he will accept no money for his services, which seems to some rather canny individuals in the Democratic party to indicate that Mr. Reed will not need any money himself and that he is not expecting to pay the other expenses out of his own pocket. There is great power in a string of newspapers which appears to be working in connection with at least one of these gentlemen, and which stretches across the continent and is under one control.

Still Plans an Early Return.

BOSTON, Feb. 23, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson still plans to return to France on the George Washington, sailing from Hoboken about March 5, unless something unforeseen occurs. The condition of the French Premier, M. Clemenceau, may turn out to be a large factor in what develops. The possibility of a change in the French Government should the Premier not respond to treatment for his wound, with the further possibility of a delay in the Peace Conference, or even a change in the delegation of France, complicate the situation. The events of the next few days may force a change in the President's plans, but at present he is making every preparation for a quick return.

Although the President held several conferences during the return voyage, he did not give any expression on the work or prospects of the Peace Conference, further than to indicate that he feels a certain justification of his position in insisting that the making of peace and the creation of a League of Nations are inseparable propositions, not to be dissociated.

Mr. Wilson has told friends and advisers that, with the draft of the League constitution on the table before the Conference, he considers the first great step an accomplished fact, and he is not disturbed by the possibility that it undoubtedly will be worked over, changed in many respects, and probably in the end be quite a different document. Despite all this, the President is known to feel that in the end the underlying principles he has proposed will be accepted in the Conference. The ratification of the document in the various countries, including the United States, the President considers as another step, to be dealt with after the League of Nations plan is perfected.

While he has been following keenly the opposition and adverse criticism of the plan in Congress, the President told Representatives Helvering, Norton, and White, who made the return trip with him, that he was sure he could convince Congress leaders that there were no fundamental objections. After an explanation of the plan at some length to the three Congressmen, they expressed the opinion that the President could gain much support for his plan by close conferences with a few leaders, who, in turn, could give an intimate view of the President's explanations to members generally. This is probably one of the methods which will be adopted by the President when he gets back to Washington.

Extra Session of Congress.

The question of an extra session of Congress, the President feels, depends wholly upon in what condition the present Congress leaves public business. If the President's hope that the principal business of the Peace Conference will be finished by midsummer and that he is able to return to the United States some time in June or July is realized, the probabilities are that at least an extra session of the Senate, or possibly the whole new Congress, might be called in the early Fall to get a start on reconstruction legislation and take up the ratification of the peace treaty.

President Wilson had a much rougher trip coming home than he did going over. Some of the days half the party was confined to cabins, but the President proved himself an excellent sailor and only surrendered once, when the waves and spray were dashing over the bridge and he got a wetting while watching the destroyer escort bury itself plunging about in heavy seas.

There was a lively epidemic of grip and Spanish influenza on the ship, many of the attachés of the party being confined to their staterooms or the ship's hospital for the entire voyage. None of the principals, however, was affected.

The President's speech here tomorrow is expected to be merely in the nature of an acknowledgement of a welcome home, reserving a discussion of the Peace Conference and its work for the meetings with the Congressional leaders.

On his way from the pier to his hotel in the Back Bay district tomorrow the President will ride through the busiest part of the retail section and past the State House and the Common. There will be a soldier and sailor escort, and the route will be carefully guarded by police and Secret Service men.

A delegation representing the National Woman's party announced tonight that in front of the reviewing stand at the State House, upon the passage of the Presidential party, banners voicing their suffrage demands would be displayed. While the meeting at the Mechanics Building is in progress there will be a suffrage demonstration on the Common, at which it is planned to burn copies of the President's speeches.

Lexington Avenue, born in Spain, a cigar maker; been here three years.

Rogelio Garcia, 1,644 Park Avenue, 26 years old, born in Spain, a cigar maker; here a year and a half.

Ramon Sanchez, 1,808 Lexington Avenue, 23 years old, born in Spain, a cigar maker; here two years.

Pedro Martin, 1,722 Lexington Avenue, 29 years old, born in Spain, here one year and one month; assistant editor and business manager of El Corsario.

José Grau, editor of El Corsario, in which he writes under the name of Arnaldo Sapelana, 1,722 Lexington Avenue, has been here a year and a half.

Editor's Correspondence Seized.

Pedro Martin confessed, according to the police, that he had been arrested in Spain for circulating Anarchist publications before he came to this country, but asserted that he had not been convicted. El Corsario is a weekly paper which has a circulation of 1,400. After the arrest of Grau, the editor of this paper, his correspondence was seized, packed into two valises and taken to Police Headquarters. The letters were in Spanish, most of them from Boston, Philadelphia, and Buffalo. They are now being translated.

Besides being editor of this publication, Grau, during the year and a half that he has been in this country, has been an organizer of the Spanish Branch of the I. W. W., had made trips to various cities in its interest and is the Assistant Treasurer of its organization here.

At 1,722 Lexington Avenue, the Secret Service found several other addresses of Spaniards whom they were seeking, and at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, they went to 415 West Fifty-third Street, where they arrested four more. These were:

Elario Orestissa, 2,640 Norris Street, Philadelphia, 39 years old; born in Spain; been in this country nine months; a laborer.

Federico Madini, 415 West Fifty-third Street, 23 years old, born in Spain; here three years; a machinist.

Placido Santa Maria, 415 West Fifty-third Street, 29 years old, been in this country two years, born in Spain; a kitchen man.

Florien Madini, a brother of Federico, 2,610 Norris Street, Philadelphia, 21 years old, a machinist and a student of chemistry in the International Correspondence School, born in Spain; here a year and a half.

None of the fourteen men made a protest against his arrest. A number of clippings from newspapers printed in English were found at the clubrooms, telling of the recent shipment of 154 anarchists, I. W. W. members and other aliens, who were sent here from Western cities to be deported, and explaining that, under the Federal law, any alien who belongs to an organization which advocates the destruction of property is thereby liable to deportation. One of the decorations of the clubroom was a picture of the late Karl Liebknecht.

Failed to Find Bomb.

The fourteen men were taken to Police Headquarters, where they were locked up, Captain Rubano appearing as the complainant against them, and making a technical charge of violating the President's proclamation by circulating seditious literature. The Secret Service agents refused to discuss the plot against the President.

Application will be made today for Federal warrants charging all fourteen with being subject to deportation under the Federal statutes which provide for sending to the countries from which they came all aliens belonging to organizations advocating sabotage or revolution.

The Spanish I. W. W. organization, in which Editor Grau is an official, meets on Wednesday nights at 27 East Fourth Street. The English-speaking I. W. W. meet at the same place on Monday nights, the Jewish I. W. W. on Tuesday nights, and a general meeting of all nationalities is held on Sunday nights. The Chinese I. W. W. was recently raided at 37 Mott Street, and four of the members, who proved to be aliens, have already been started for China.

Sergeant Gegan, who was in charge of the raids for the police, said yesterday that the I. W. W., the so-called Left or Radical Wing of the Socialist party, the Russian Radicals or New York Bolsheviki, and the anarchists, had been recently combining into a single radical organization in this city.

ARRESTS IN PHILADELPHIA.

Ten Men Taken in Connection with Raids Made Here.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Feb. 24.—Ten Cubans and Spaniards were arrested here early today by agents of the Department of Justice on information received from New York. A quantity of alleged seditious literature was seized and the authorities say the men arrested had some connection with those taken into custody in New York yesterday.

The literature was found in a trunk in a house in one of the foreign quarters of the city where the men were arrested. The prisoners were taken to the Federal Building and will be arraigned today, after District Attorney Francis Fisher Kane has had an opportunity to examine the literature seized. The Federal agents said all the prisoners lived here, so far as they knew at this time.

meeting, announced that it had decided on proper steps to be done in order to accelerate as much as possible the labors of the conference.

Back of this formal announcement is the speeding up of the plan, which now goes into effect, for an early drafting of the peace treaty. The main feature of this plan is to embody all subjects, nonmilitary as well as military, in the preliminary peace treaty soon to be framed, and to have this broad general document take the place of a separate military treaty for disarmament, which had been prepared by the Supreme War Council under the direction of Marshal Foch, who was to present it within the next few days.

Today's decision broadens the action of the council so as to include all important subjects within the scope of the preliminary peace treaty, thus making it embrace economic, financial, and all other essential subjects, including reparations, in addition to disarmament and other military and naval features. It will be this broad general plan which will be drafted by the time the President returns, and which will soon thereafter go before the Peace Conference.

The foregoing action relates only to Germany, as the conclusion of this preliminary peace treaty is regarded as of chief importance. But similar action may proceed at the same time concerning Austria, Bulgaria, and Turkey, although it is not certain that action on these countries can be taken within the same period.

Although the proposed document is designated as a preliminary peace treaty, it is expected to embody virtually all main questions and to correspond to the treaty of Versailles, which closed the Franco-Prussian war, although a supplementary treaty was signed later at Frankfort.

QUIET SUNDAY FOR CLEMENCEAU

Physicians Refuse Premier's Request for Permission to Drive in the Bois.

POLICE RELEASE DREYFUS

Swiss Cities Found to be Meeting Places of Anarchist and Bolshevist Conspirators.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—News of an improvement in the condition of M. Clemenceau today was received with joy in Paris, which had been worried over the tone of the official bulletin issued Saturday morning. The Premier partook of a hearty breakfast and then was examined by the doctors, but did not joke with them as much as usual. The official bulletin issued this morning said that the Premier showed continued improvement.

The evening bulletin given out at 6 o'clock read:

"M. Clemenceau had a good day. His temperature was 37.2 (Centigrade,) (98.9 Fahrendeit,) pulse 68. Henceforth only one bulletin will be issued daily."

M. Clemenceau asked his doctors for permission to take a drive in the Bois de Boulogne this afternoon. His request was not granted.

A correspondent of The Associated Press caught a glimpse of the "Tiger" today standing near an open window. He was looking out over a little garden and apparently enjoying the bright sunshine of a balmy Spring day.

The Premier appeared to be somewhat more drawn and pale than usual and his eyes seemingly were deeper under the bushy eyebrows. However, the inevitable little skullcap was worn at as jaunty an angle as ever over his left ear. Perhaps, it was a several days' growth of beard which might have given him a more tired appearance.

Visitors at the Premier's residence this morning numbered only three. They were Foreign Minister Pichon, General Mordacq, the chief of his Military Cabinet, and M. Mandel, his chief clerk.

Raoul Dreyfus, the painter, who, after Emile Cottin had shot Premier Clemenceau, was arrested for remonstrating with the mob, who were assaulting the would-be assassin, was set at liberty temporarily by the police this morning.

"Pertinax," writing in the Echo de Paris, says that the attempt on the Premier's life again draws attention to the plans of the Bolsheviki, who are spending much money in sending agents into various countries. The writer suggests that an agreement be made with Scandinavian countries and other neutrals to organize a financial blockade against Bolshevism.

Inquiry into the ramifications of a possible plot against Premier Clemenceau, according to dispatches from Geneva to French newspapers, shows that during the month of December twenty-four persons, all anarchists or Bolsheviki, arrived in the neighborhood of Vevy. Among them, it is alleged, were Rossière, Zahmid and Bunzli.

At the same time a group of anarchists met in Zurich to organize a plot against the French Premier and other allied statesmen in Paris. In this group, it is alleged, was Hisiani, director of a radical newspaper, who went often to Geneva to confer with anarchists there. A few days ago Misiani was arrested in the offices of the Red Flag, the Spartacan organ in Berlin. It is said he was especially charged with smuggling revolutionary propaganda into France by way of Switzerland.

GERMANS LACK FARM LABOR

"City Loafers" Denounced for Refusal to Help Raise Crops.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Feb. 23.—The Civil Affairs Administration of the American Army of Occupation has a problem to adjust which arises out of the hostility of the farmers in this region toward the "city loafers" while we have several thousand farmers in our territory unable to get labor to attend to the Spring planting.

The "city loafers," who are paid 10 marks a day by the German authorities while idle, refuse to go to work on the farms where their pay probably would be less. In return the farmers say they will decrease their acreage unless they get help from the city, refusing to work long hours to feed those who will not work.

Not only this, but the farmers in our sector are very much at odds with the disturbers in the industrial centres. They regard the disturbances as largely responsible for many of Germany's troubles today.

An official American statement on this point says:

"The farmers complain of the inadequacy of labor for Spring planting. Individual farmers are considering primarily their own needs in regard to planting, and, so far as informatoin is obtainable, are quite deaf to the national needs in regard to the wheat and rye crops. The opinion is freely expressed, 'We do not propose to feed the town and city loafers.' This is a reference to the industrial cities which have been guilty of various forms of excesses."

Another complication has arisen in that the Grain Bureau in Berlin refuses permission to the local Grain Bureaus in the occupied territory to buy seed grain in the interior of Germany. The farmers hereabout say that if the usual source of the seed grain supply is closed thousands of acres along the Rhine will be unplanted this Spring.

PREDICTS POOR GERMAN CROP.

Half the Normal Yield Likely, Says Under Secretary Ramm.

BERLIN, Feb. 22, (Associated Press.)—Herr Ramm, Under Secretary of the Ministry of Agriculture, gave a gloomy picture of the prospects of the coming harvest at a meeting of the German Agricultural Society today.

He said that nothing better than half a normal crop could be expected this year. This was due to the lack of fertilizer and the impoverished condition of the soil.

The Under Secretary said that only 80,000 tons of nitrates were available, as compared with a peace-time consumption of 210,000 tons. The consumption of phosphates was only a third of the usual quantity. The slaughter of cattle and other animals had greatly reduced the supply of manure.

Herr Ramm said that a return to normal agricultural conditions was improbable before 1921.

VON TIRPITZ PENNILESS.

Now in Switzerland, His Son Clerk, His Daughter a Governess.

GENEVA, Feb. 23.—The Tribune de Genève is informed that Admiral von Tirpitz is staying at Wildegg, as the guest of Lieut. Col. Wille, son of a former commander-in-chief of the Swiss army.

Tirpitz has lost all his fortune. His son is a clerk in a bank at Zurich and his daughter is governess in a Zurich family. To avoid paying the German war tax of 1913 Tirpitz invested his money in Italian securities, with the result that he is now penniless.

PASSPORT BAN NOT LIFTED.

Women Not Allowed to Join Relatives Serving with the Forces.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Denying reports that restrictions have been relaxed as to issuing passports for women who have male relatives serving with the United States forces abroad, the State Department has issued a statement in which it says:

"Present conditions in the belligerent and adjoining neutral countries, particularly the shortage of food and other resources, as well as the scarcity of ships to carry persons between this country and Europe, make it necessary for the department to issue passports for European countries only to persons whose trips are of an urgent and important nature.

CONSTITUTION DRAFT RECAST AT WEIMAR

Power of Upper Chamber Is Limited on Lines of the British Lords.

SPECIAL LABOR PROTECTION

Generally Accepted Rules of International Law Incorporated in New Instrument.

WEIMAR, Feb. 22, (Associated Press.)—While the German National Assembly has been holding open meetings several committees have found time to discuss the draft of a new German Constitution as prepared by Hugo Pruess, a member of the Cabinet.

The draft has now passed on second reading. The original few paragraphs have been cut up and expanded into 109 paragraphs, which cover every point carefully.

The new draft consists of seven divisions. The first division, entitled "The Nation and Its Component States," provides that the national territory shall consist of the former German States as well as other States that may, after a plebiscite, desire to be incorporated with Germany. The flag of the new republic shall be black, red, and gold.

The second article of the first division provides that the executive power lies with the people, and the third article says that the generally accepted rules of international law shall be a basic part of the German law. Succeeding articles provide for the defense of the nation and cover colonial questions, customs duties, and public transportation.

Rights Reserved to Nation.

It is provided that the nation shall have the right to enact laws governing citizenship, charity and poverty, the rights of citizens, crimes, and penalties, judicial matters, the right of union, the relations between workmen and employers, the insurance of workmen, the promotion of labor and trade, weights and measures, industry, mines, insurance, ocean traffic, freedom of the press, of organization, and of meeting, and the rights and care of war veterans and their relatives.

The nation is also to have the right to enact laws concerning the regulation, production, and distribution of economic products for the general good and the protection and education of children and youths.

The national law, it is provided, shall supersede the State laws of the various German States, which are empowered to combine wholly or in part for the purpose of creating a more powerful membership in the nation. These States are to be represented in the Government by a "National Council." Each member of the Council can introduce bills, but a bill to be introduced to the Assembly must have the assent of the Council, which, however, possesses little veto power, being restricted on the lines of the British House of Lords.

Labor Especially Safeguarded.

The second division contains eleven articles regarding the basic rights of the German people, including full freedom of belief, religion, art, and science. Labor, as the greatest national wealth, is especially protected. Personal freedom of dwelling and property are guaranteed, as is secrecy of the postal service.

The third division contains nineteen articles and provides that details shall be determined by the National Government regarding the regulation of elections. The Government will meet each year on the first Monday of December at the capital.

The President, it is provided, can call the Assembly earlier and must do so if at least one-third of the members demand that it be called. A court to control the voting will consist of three members of the Assembly and two members of the National Council.

The Constitution may be changed by a two-thirds vote of the full membership of the Assembly.

President's Term Seven Years.

The election of a President is provided for in the fourth division. He must be 35 years old and a German citizen for ten years. His term will be seven years, and he may be recalled through a popular vote.

The President cannot be a member of the Assembly. It is provided that the Assembly can demand the presence before it of the Chancellor and the Cabinet.

The fifth and six divisions touch on finance, trade, and transportation, and a common postal system for the entire nation. The seventh division covers details of the courts and other juridicial organizations, including a State Court for the entire nation.

'CARMEN' INTERPRETED TO COBLENZ DOUGHBOYS

German Opera House Management Publishes a Synopsis That Piques Auditors' Interest.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

COBLENZ, Feb. 23.—In an unwary moment the management of the Coblenz Stadt-Operahaus asked an American soldier to prepare in English a brief synopsis and story of "Carmen" among those of other operas with which the doughboy is to be regaled while awaiting westward passage.

It was wanted for the program in order that the soldiers might better understand what it was all about. The guileless Boche took the copy supplied and printed it in full, much to the delight of the first audience and the entire army. Here is the introduction of the three principal characters:

"Carmen is an oversubscribed flirt. Don José is a N. C. O. in the M. P. whom she is about to send to the S. O. S. Escamillo is an expert bullthrower.

The second act recites that José went A. W. O. L., and here is the narrative of the third act:

"It is a large day. Escamillo has been prominently advertised as the big excitement. Single handed he is billed to slaughter the monthly beef ration for the Governor's mess. He has also promised to take advantage of all the bulls José made. As he starts for the arena, Carmen announces she is his if he gets away with his job. Then she heads for the box office to tap the free list, but Don José shows up for an interview. He hands her an earful of highly seasoned remarks and admits that he could be arrested for what else he thinks about her. Here Carmen makes her last fox pass. She stabs him to the quick with a jeer. He stabs her to the bloodhump with a toadsticker. Moral: Never fool with an M. P."

The authorship is a mystery, but Capt. O. H. Fernbach, a former San Francisco newspaperman, is under suspicion.

POLICE AT MEETING IN DELMONICO'S

Management Wished to Cancel Reservation Made by Seven Radical Organizations.

SAY DISORDER WAS FEARED

Police Commissioner Enright Finally Permits Meeting to Proceed with Federal Stenographers Present.

Several hundred men and women who went to Delmonico's shortly before 8 o'clock last night to attend a mass meeting that was to have been held under the auspices of the Civil Liberties Bureau, the People's Council of America, the Workers' Defense Union and four other organizations found police lines around the entrance. Those who attempted to enter the building were told by the police that the meeting had been canceled, and some who evaded the policemen outside were stopped by others stationed inside the building.

The call for the meeting said it was to be held to urge the repeal of the Espionage act, and to call for the freedom of political prisoners. A conference was held yesterday at the Peoples' House, 7 East Fifteenth Street, at which the plans for the meeting were discussed.

Among the early arrivals were Algernon Lee, one of the Socialist members of the Board of Aldermen, and Darwin Meserole, who was to have presided at the meeting. Both were informed by the policemen that no meeting would be held. Mr. Lee identified himself and was allowed to enter the building. He was informed that the management had decided to withdraw the reservation made for the meeting in Delmonico's.

"Well, it will take place," Mr. Lee said. "We have paid the customary deposit and we will not be turned down."

While Alderman Lee and others were trying to elicit from the managers reasons for the "lockout," as several of the disappointed persons called the incident, 200 men and women who had been admitted to the ballroom were visited by an employe who requested them to leave the building. According to persons who were in the ballroom the waiter put out every light in the room, except one over an exit. The audience remained, however, while Gilbert E. Roe, counsel for the Civil Liberties Bureau, attempted to ascertain the reason for the announcement. Meantime, Captain William W. Duggan of the East Fifty-first Street Police Station entered the room and repeated the announcement.

"On what authority do you act?" asked Mr. Roe.

"I am acting on the orders of Special Deputy Police Commissioner Ryan," said Captain Duggan. "He forbids the meeting. The proprietors of the place object. They sent for Commissioner Ryan and he sent for me."

"If it is an order of the police we will leave at once without question," replied Mr. Roe, "but if it is the management that wants us to go, we will remain where we are."

Fifteen minutes later the police received orders to permit the crowd to enter. They entered the building in an orderly manner, having been warned by members of the organization to make no demonstration. The restaurant was crowded with diners attired in evening clothes, while many of the women who filed through to the meeting room in full view of them wore their hair short. Many of the men had long hair and other marks of "modern" ideas.

Deputy Commissioner Allan A. Ryan was in the lobby of the restaurant watching the proceedings and talking to policemen. In response to questions upon the source of the orders to the police to stop the meeting, the Commissioner said to a reporter:

"You're newspapermen, aren't you? Well, the press of this city is nothing but a set of literary prostitutes."

"Even the Hearst papers?" asked one reporter.

"There are no exceptions," responded Mr. Ryan.

He refused to answer further questions, and joined a young woman who stood near him. Fred Baurenfeld, manager of Delmonico's, declined to answer questions, saying that it was necessary for him to confer with the Police Commissioner before he made any statement. After the conference, he said he had asked the police to stop the meeting. He said that the management thought that the reservation was made by the Liberty Conference.

Bauerfeind added that a package of circulars arrived at the restaurant last night. He read one of them and was alarmed by its text. Fearing that seditious utterances might be made at the proposed meeting, he communicated with the police. The circular protested against the "red special" which brought the aliens to this city for deportation.

Alderman Lee said that Captain Duggan communicated with Police Commissioner Enright by telephone and permission was given for the meeting to proceed as soon as stenographers could be obtained. After a wait of an hour the meeting was called to order by Mr. Meserole as soon as the police gave him permission to start. Mr. Roe, the chief speaker, prefaced his speech on the Espionage act by saying that the acts of the Police Department had done more for the cause of free speech than any words he could utter.

"I want to tell the police that the arguments that I am going to make are embodied in a brief I submitted to the Supreme Court of the United States," he said. "There is no danger that my speech will corrupt the morals of any one."

AIRPLANE TO SPEED 300 MILES AN HOUR

French Invention Enables Machine to Fly Faster the Higher It Goes.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—An airplane with a speed of from 200 to 300 miles an hour which will bring America within a short day's journey of Europe, is the prospect held out by the invention of a French engineer, Auguste Rateau, according to the Matin. The invention of M. Rateau was one of the surprises in store for the Germans which were about to be revealed when fighting ceased.

At the present time without the invention the higher an airplane mounts the less power does its engine develop on account of the varefying of the air. The loss at 15,000 feet, for instance, is 50 per cent.

M. Rateau's device, the paper says, is very simple. It consists of an arrangement by which the exhaust from the engine works a small turbine which compresses the air drawn into the engine to normal pressure so that the engine develops full power no matter what the altitude. As the resistance of an airplane decreases enormously at high altitudes, the Matin adds, it follows that the higher a machine fitted with the new device mounts the greater will be its speed. This fact, it is declared, was demonstrated by the famous German long-range gun.

It has been found that a heavy day bombing machine whose speed at 15,000 feet ordinarily did not exceed 80 miles an hour, made 140 miles an hour when fitted with M. Rateau's invention.

PROMISES ARMORY TO NEGRO FIGHTERS

WHITMAN PRAISES RECORD

Ex-Governor Attends Reception to 369th Infantry by Mother Regiment in 7th Armory.

The war record of the 369th Infantry, colored, formerly the 15th Regiment, recently returned from overseas, was praised by ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, Acting Mayor Robert L. Moran, Charles W. Anderson and others at a band concert and reception given yesterday afternoon in the 7th Regiment Armory by the new 15th Regiment, of which Colonel William Jay Schieffelin is commanding officer. The mention of the name of Colonel William Hayward, who led New York's "Black Watch" in battle, was always the signal for long and noisy applause by the mixed audience of white and black citizens which nearly filled the auditorium.

Recalling the day three years ago when as Governor he presented the old 15th with their colors, Mr. Whitman said he never realized that the standard he presented would later be carried to the front in war and on to victory. He characterized the 369th Infantry as a regiment of soldiers as brave, fearless, and loyal as any in the American forces.

"How splendidly you have vindicated the confidence of the people of the State of New York," Mr. Whitman said. "You have acquitted yourselves as men. High officials say that no soldiers have behaved better on the battlefield, in town and city, and on shipboard than have the colored boys of the 369th Infantry. In all your dealings with peoples of other nations and races you have committed no act which reflected on the character, dignity, and manhood of your regiment."

He urged the members of the regiment to continue to show their metal by fighting for good citizenship and law and order at home. The people of the city and State were looking to them, he declared, with the same confidence as in the past.

Urges Need for an Armory.

Acting Mayor Moran pledged his help as a city official and as a member of the Armory Board to obtain an armory for the colored soldiers. He expressed the belief that the entire city was in sympathy with the endeavor of the 15th Regiment to obtain quarters for themselves. He spoke of the gallantry of the old 15th under fire, and declared that the colored race might well be proud of their soldiers.

"You have well vindicated the principles Abraham Lincoln laid down," Acting Mayor Moran said. "We are justly proud of you and of Colonel Hayward, your commanding officer. The 369th Infantry has the distinction of having suffered the longest under fire and the honor of being the first regiment to return to these shores of freedom bearing the real aspect of fighting forces. Many decorations and many wounded testify to your activities on the glorious battlefields of France."

Charles W. Anderson, former Collector of Internal Revenue, declared that the colored citizens had proved their Americanism and loyalty. The record of the colored men in the war had added greater dignity to the race, he said.

"We know no other country and love no other flag," Mr. Anderson continued. "No black man fired a shot at the American flag. When you boys fought those Germans you were fighting prejudice. Whatever is said of us this must be said, 'We loved our God and our country.'"

The Rev. William Brooks, chaplain of the regiment, aroused applause when he said if the colored men had been found to be worthy of wearing the same uniform as the white man he surely was entitled to equal treatment as a citizen. He urged the men to continue to vindicate the confidence of the public out of the uniform as they had in it.

Colonel Hayward spoke briefly on the pride he felt at the record of his regiment.

The new 15th Regiment Band, under the leadership of Lieutenant Fred Simpson, gave a program of "jazz" and classical music.

BIG INCREASE IN STATE BILLS

Estimates Call for $40,000 More Per Day Than in 1918.

ALBANY, Feb. 23.—The expense of the State Government may be more than $40,000 a day greater next year than the average for the current fiscal year, according to Controller Eugene M. Travis's analysis of the department requests for appropriations for the coming year. The present daily cost of administering the State's affairs is $223,357. The daily average under the budget requests would be $264,664.

Approximately two-thirds of the total budget increases of $15,077,019 represents appropriations asked for to finance construction and permanent betterments, which, the Controller predicts, are bound to be an ever-increasing item if the State's policy for a fixed program relative to institutions is continued.

A decrease is shown in the estimated cost of administering, operating, and maintaining the Government for next year, as compared with this. Of the total daily average expenditures $53.84 of each $100 will be needed for these purposes instead of the $57.80 which was allowed this year. It is estimated, also, that it will take only $32.78 of each $100 instead of $38.32 allowed for the current year to provide for certain legal mandatory charges.

The principal increase is shown in the amount required for the building program, which covers the construction of many new institutional structures and a State office building in Albany. The rate on this account would be $13.98 of each $100, as compared with this year's daily allowance of $3.88.

One item of expense will remain stationary, it is predicted. This is horse and vehicle hire, which takes 2 cents of each $100 expended for traveling expenses.

REDS THREATEN MUNICH TERROR

volvers, and munitions, but that the disorder ultimately was suppressed late at night. Large numbers of plunderers, who were armed, were arrested and are being executed as fast as sentences are passed on them by the revolutionary drumhead court-martial, which is now sitting permanently.

Delegates Hasten from Weimar.

WEIMAR, Feb. 22, (Associated Press.)—The entire Bavarian delegation to the National Assembly left for Munich this morning, on receiving reports that Herr Auer, Minister of the Interior, had died from the wounds received in the shooting in the Landtag and that a state of chaos existed in Bavaria.

Their absence may postpone still further committee consideration and debate on the new constitution, which was scheduled for next Tuesday, as it is considered more important to restore order in Bavaria than to debate the proposed constitution on a date arbitrarily set.

Simon Heads Soviet Republic.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 23.—A dispatch from Berlin says that the first President of the Bavarian Soviet Republic is Herr Simon, Chairman of the Workmen's and Peasants' Council. The dispatch adds that many Deputies, including Professor Quidde of the University of Munich, have been arrested.

The Berlin Freiheit's correspondent at Munich says the Commission for the Restoration of Unity among all the social democratic parties has decided on the following program:

The Soldiers', Workmen's, and Peasants' Councils will be recognized by the constitution and enjoy immunity, and a member from each will be attached to the new Cabinet in an advisory capacity. The Cabinet will transact business until the constitution is settled by the Popular Assembly. The Diet will be summoned as quickly as circumstances permit.

The present military force will be disbanded and will be superseded by a republic defense militia. Freedom of the press will be restored in principle, but until normal conditions obtain the press must avoid every utterance calculated to disturb the unity of the people or promote civil war.

Bolshevist Model Adopted.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The Frankfurter Zeitung says that the Munich Committee of Eleven met the remainder of the old Ministry on Saturday morning and informed them that the new Government would be on the Bolshevist model and that the committee would assume supreme power. Only three of the Ministers were retained, Herren Frauendorff, Jaffi, and Unterleithner.

Nothing, says the newspaper, has been revealed since Friday evening as to where Minister of War Rosshaupter and Minister Hoffmann have been imprisoned.

Manifestations similar to those in Munich are reported from Graz and Beyreuth.

Count Arco Valley, the slayer of Premier Eisner, was not acting independently, according to a Zurich dispatch to the Petit Parisien, and it is becoming more and more evident that the Wittelsbach dynasty and its adherents are behind an organized movement to destroy the Bavarian republic.

The dispatch adds that it was in anticipation of an armed attack against the National Assembly and existing institutions that the Majority Socialists, Independent Socialists, and Spartacides of Munich signed an agreement to stand together. The action of the Munich Socialists and Spartacides, the correspondent adds, probably will not be pleasing to President Ebert and Chancellor Scheidemann, whose policy, it is said, takes another direction.

The correspondent recalls that some time ago he interviewed Baron Stengel, a high official of the former Bavarian Court, and asked him if he thought the monarchy had definitely fallen. The Baron, with a smile, answered:

"Who knows? Many things can happen. We have fallen, but we are not dead. The present situation obliges us to act prudently, but we hope that we shall be able to do something effective."

Pan Germans Are Suspected.

GENEVA, Feb. 23, (Associated Press.)—As the soldiers and sailors have seized the telegraph lines radiating from Munich, it is considered here that news from the Bavarian capital must be accepted with caution. Street fighting is reported to be continuing, especially around the Hotel Regina, where three persons were killed and eighteen wounded on Saturday. Several officers who fired upon the crowds are reported to have been killed.

The general strike, according to advices, has met with little success. The soldiers and workmen are in possession of all the munition factories.

A dispatch from Munich says Count Arco Valley was a dissolute person and that it is believed the crime was committed under the influence of the Pan Germans.

BUDAPEST RIOTERS SHOT.

More Than 50 Killed by Troops in Attack on Newspaper Office.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—An attack was made on one of the newspaper offices in Budapest on Thursday by communists and unemployed, with the result that many persons were killed, according to advices reaching here.

A storm of bullets issued from the houses opposite, whereupon national guards and police opened fire with machine guns, rifles, and pistols. It is officially stated that thirty-one persons were killed.

Eye-witnesses declare that they counted from fifty to sixty dead in the streets. Fifteen communists were taken to the hospitals in a dying condition.

Munich Reports Auer Survives.

BASEL, Feb. 23.—A semi-official dispatch from Munich, quoting a Foreign Ministry note, says that the only persons killed in Munich were Premier Eisner and Deputy Oesel.

The dispatch says that Minister of the Interior Auer was seriously wounded, as also were two other officials. Minister of War Rosshaupter was taken to a place of safety, and the other reports of killings are declared to have been unfounded.

The Central Committee of the Workmen and Soldiers' Council through the organization's newspaper, the Nachrichtenblatt, in its issue of Saturday gives the names of the members of the new council as Herren Gandorfer, Hoffman, Eutzenhofer, Sauber, Simon, Goldschmidt, Nieles, Kroesseln, Lisenhut, Lewin, and Hagemuster.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says that 200 soldiers and civilians on Friday evening stormed the Hotel Regina, unaware that it had been occupied in the afternoon by communists, whose appeal not to shoot had been misunderstood. The dispatch adds that fighting began which resulted in three persons being killed and eighteen wounded.

BERNE, Feb. 23.—The constitution of a Soviet republic was profoundly disturbing to the Bavarian Government, according to advices received here. The Government is trying to minimize the affair in the eyes of the public and has issued the following note:

"Philip Scheidemann's announcement in the Weimar Assembly that civil war has broken out in Munich is utterly false. It is true that certain buildings have been occupied provisionally, but that was solely for the purpose of preventing devastations until the Government could take fresh steps.

"A general strike for three days was declared, but the city is calm and work will be resumed Monday. The Peoples' Republican Guard is protecting all the big hotels and banks.

"The Executive Committee of the Soldiers and Workmen's Council met the Cabinet again this morning. Negotiations are proceeding for the formation of a new popular Government."

The Berlin press, according to the advices, refuses to admit the existence of a counter-revolutionary plot. The newspapers seem to have received an order, the advices say, to represent Count Arco Valleq, the slayer of Eisner, as an irresponsible person.

MANNHEIM RIOTERS WRECK LAW COURTS

State of Siege Proclaimed in Baden Following Demonstrations Over Eisner's Murder.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 23.—A dispatch to the Berlin Lokal-Anzieger says that at Mannheim, in the course of demonstrations following the assassination of Kurt Eisner, there were great disturbances.

Numerous buildings, among them the Law Courts, were broken into. The Law Courts Building was partly destroyed.

The Provisional People's Government has proclaimed a state of siege in the Republic of Baden, owing to the Spartacide disorders in Mannheim, according to a dispatch from Karlsruhe received by way of Berlin. The proclamation declares that the Government will not permit a repetition of the occurrences at Ruhr and Munich.

CONVENTION ASKS TO FREE IRELAND

shown in the case of France, that we are not an ungrateful people, and recalling that no other people have contributed more than those of Irish blood to the creation, the upbuilding, the development and the preservation and defense of our great country.

We urge this claim in the name of Ireland because of the unparalleled struggle for now seven and a half centuries that Ireland has carried on for national existence and liberty; because all efforts to break down and destroy that existence have failed, and because of the extraordinary majority by which less than two months ago the people of Ireland declared, not alone their dissatisfaction with the government of their land by England, but also their determination to govern themselves without interference from any outside influence or power.

We urge this claim in the name of humanity, because we believe that war cannot be ended, and a just and permanent peace cannot be brought about unless the doctrine of self-determination be applied to Ireland and the people of that country be permitted to decide for themselves the form of government under which they shall live.

We point out that England has tried in every way to coerce or to persuade or to cajole the people of Ireland to give up their devotion to their national aspirations, and tried them all in vain. Lloyd George within the last few months has been compelled to assert that Ireland is at present as much opposed to British rule as in the days of Cromwell. The industries of Ireland have been destroyed; her trade and commerce wiped out; her population cut in two; her leaders deported and held in English jails without indictment or trial, and yet within the last two months the people with a unanimity never before attained have again declared their utter dissatisfaction with English rule and their determination to be free.

England refuses to listen to the voice of Ireland, but we point out that England likewise refused to listen to the voice of the American colonies. England was compelled less than a century and a half ago to recognize the independence of the colonies, and within the last year the efforts of our country saved England and her allies from total defeat at the hands of the Central Powers. The land to which England was thus compelled to do justice has just saved England in her hour of need. Let England now realize that justice to Ireland which she has so long denied, with grievous loss to Ireland but also with great loss to herself, will now remove from her path the bitterest hostility which she has to encounter all over the world and will convince mankind in general of the sincerity of her declarations when she says that she believes in liberty and justice for others as well as for herself.

Finally, we urge this claim that peace and order may be brought out of the chaos with which the whole world now seems to be threatened. In this great hour, when Governments are being reformed and when peoples long oppressed by tyranny are emerging again into the sunlight of liberty, let there be sincerity and unselfishness upon the part of those who are controlling the Peace Conference, to the end that the mistakes of the Congress of Vienna may be avoided, and a peace made that will be lasting and permanent because it will be just and right.

Upon the shoulders of our President and Congress rests in the last analysis the responsibility of the peace that shall be made. We urge them to act in accordance with the doctrines laid down on our behalf when we entered the war, and in accordance with the resolution recently adopted, almost unanimously, by the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives, to the end that autocracy and militarism may be forever destroyed, and that the right of self-determination shall be given to all the peoples of the earth.

The Declaration of Principles.

With the adoption of the Cardinal's resolution, Michael J. Ryan, Philadelphia, read the declaration of principles which, he said, had been drawn up by a committee representing every section of the United States.

The text of the declaration follows:

We, the delegates to the Convention of the Irish Race in America, assembled in Philadelphia, the cradle of American liberty, on Feb. 22 and 23, 1919, and representing many millions of citizens of the United States, hereby solemnly declare and resolve:

As American citizens we uphold the honor and interests of the United States, as our race has done during all the years that have elapsed from the start of the Revolution to the present day. We are proud of the splendid record our people have made in the fighting forces of the Republic in the war which has just closed, and are ready to perform any duty and make any sacrifices our Government may, in the future, demand.

We heartily approve the principles of justice, liberty, and peace for all mankind proclaimed by President Wilson in his declarations of America's objects in the war. These had the approval of the entire American people, and were the chief cause of their enthusiastic support of the war. They were indorsed by the spokesmen of the British Government while hostilities were in progress, and the whole world was led to believe that the achievement of the purposes proclaimed by the President was the sole object of the war.

Among those declarations the one that "all peoples are entitled to self-determination" received universal support and became the war cry of the peoples who were fighting Germany. Our Government and those of the countries associated with us in the war are therefore bound in honor to apply the principle of self-determination to Ireland, as well as to the other submerged nations which have been granted their freedom as a result of the war. If it is not applied to Ireland the United States will be placed in a most unfavorable light before the civilized world, and President Wilson's solemn declarations will be made a mockery.

England's Age-Long Failure.

Aside from Ireland's inalienable right to govern herself in her own way without interference by any people outside her own shores, the attempt of England to rule her against the consent of her people is the most conspicuous failure in all history. It has failed in every essential thing for which Governments exist—the promotion of the welfare of the governed, the protection of their natural rights and interests, the development of their resources, and their contribution to the sum of human happiness and the world's prosperity. Even if conquest be acknowledged as giving one people the right to rule another, England has forfeited that right by centuries of continuous misgovernment and injustice, which are practiced by the English Government today as relentlessly as at any time in the past, and in utter disregard of the opinions, wishes, and protests of the Irish people.

The condition of Ireland, which is the direct result of the deliberate action of the English Government, is an international scandal and a constant menace to the world's peace. Three times during the last 300 years her soil has been invaded by foreign armies to aid her people to overthrow English rule. So long as England holds Ireland by military force and denies her right to govern herself, the Irish people will continue to assert their rights by every means in their power. In 1916 they rose in rebellion, and on Jan. 21, 1919, their elected representatives, supported by the overwhelming majority of the people, met in the national capital, issued a declaration of independence and proclaimed an Irish Republic. This action was followed by an appeal for recognition to the free peoples of the world. They elected three delegates to plead their case at the Peace Conference, two of whom, with thirty-nine other elected representatives of the people, are held in English prisons, without trial, and with no charge formulated against them.

"A State of War Exists."

A state of war, therefore, exists between England and Ireland which, in the interests of the peace of the world, the Peace Conference cannot ignore, and President Wilson's great task of establishing permanent peace will not be completed until the Irish question is settled on the principle of self-determination, to which he has unequivocally committed himself and the United States.

We, therefore, in the name of the many millions of American citizens of Irish birth of lineage who have contributed their full share to the winning of the war, and with the approval and sympathy of the overwhelming majority of the American people, now demand that President Wilson place before the Peace Conference and support with all his powerful influence Ireland's right of self-determination and secure for the elected delegates from her Constituent Assembly to the Peace Conference the same status and recognition which have been accorded to those of other small nations.

We remind our fellow-Americans of the farewell address to the American people of George Washington, and, particularly, that portion thereof embodying his advice to avoid all entangling alliances with European powers. These words are as true today as when we first uttered them. * * *

We demand, therefore, if any League of Nations be made, that all features of it which may infringe on the traditional American policy, including the Monroe Doctrine, shall be eliminated, and that, in any such League, the right of self-determination of all peoples, and the American doctrine of freedom of the seas, so often and earnestly advocated by President Wilson, shall not be overlooked, forgotten or abridged.

That as an earnest of our devotion to the principle this day enunciated and to further the attainment we pledge the raising within six months of the sum of $1,000,000, and that a subscription list be forthwith established and the pledges of cities, towns, and individuals be now established.

A committee of twenty-four was appointed to convey to President Wilson the resolutions adopted by the convention, and go to the Peace Conference, if necessary, and if need be to state that war existed between Ireland and England.

This committee is headed by John W. Goff of New York, and includes ex-Governor Dunne of Illinois, Mayor Edward Quinn of Cambridge, Mass., Bishop Thomas J. Shahan of Washington, Justice D. F. Cohalan of New York, Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., and James K. McGuire of New Rochelle, N. Y.

The amounts pledged at the meeting included the following:

New York, $150,000; Philadelphia, $150,000; Ladies' Auxiliary, $150,000; Ancient Order of Hibernians, $100,000; Rhode Island, $25,000; North Jersey, $50,000; South Jersey, $50,000; Detroit, $50,000; Missouri, $50,000; South Carolina, $10,000; Idaho, $10,000; Connecticut, $25,000; Indiana, $25,000; Western Pennsylvania, $50,000; Delaware, $10,000.

Election of Officers.

The Very Rev. Peter E. Magennis of New York was elected President of the Friends of Irish Freedom, under whose auspices the convention was held. Michael B. McGreal of New Haven was elected Treasurer, and Diarmid Lynch, New York, Secretary. Seventeen Vice Presidents were named.

The morning session was taken up with addresses, in which the history of the struggle for Irish freedom was reviewed and England's treatment of Ireland and India was related. The speakers included Michael O'Brien of New York, historian of the Irish-American Historical Society; Lajpat Rai, Hindu scholar; D. I. Theophilatos, a Greek, who sympathized with the cause of Ireland, and Judge John J. Rooney of New York.

STATUS OF NEW IRISH FUND.

If Turned to Military Uses It Would Violate Federal Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—In the absence tonight of Frank L. Polk, the Acting Secretary of State, it was impossible to obtain official comment on the action of the Irish convention at Philadelphia in adopting a declaration of principles which included the statement that "a state of war exists between England and Ireland," which was followed by the raising of $1,250,000 to aid the movement to free Ireland.

The exact use to which this fund is to be put is not understood here, but if it should be used to promote any military purpose it is very probable that the Washington Government would find it necessary to take action.

Section 6286 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which has been on the law books since April 20, 1818, and which has been enforced from time to time, provides:

Every person who, within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, begins, or sets on foot, or provides or prepares the means for any military expedition or enterprise, to be carried on from thence against the territory or dominions of any foreign Prince or State, or of any colony, district, or people, with whom the United States are at peace, shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding $3,000 and imprisoned not more than three years.

This is one of the sections of the neutrality laws which the American Government in the past has been very rigid in enforcing.

Section 5283 of the Revised Statutes, also passed in 1818, and in effect ever since, prohibits the arming of vessels for use against any people with whom the United States are at peace.

SAYS IRISH BLOCK HOME RULE

Galsworthy Declares Divided Sentiment Forestalls Independence.

Ireland's own divided sentiment forestalls Irish independence, according to John Galsworthy, English author, who was the honor guest of the recently organized Society of Arts and Sciences last night at a dinner held in the Hotel Biltmore. The dinner resolved itself into a discussion of the many evils and few virtues of the present-day drama and theatre, as elucidated by O. P. Heggie, actor; B. Iden Payne, dramatist; Channing Pollock, playwright; Edith Ellis Furness, producer, and Dr. Marion Tucker, Vice President of the Drama League of America.

"I came over here as divided in my sentiment as the island of Ireland," said Mr. Galsworthy, "and, talking of Ireland, I think the trouble here is that there are so many people who think that Ireland is a simple proposition. The only trouble is that in Ireland there are two nations. It is not the tyranny of 'wicked' England that keeps Ireland from being free. I am for national liberty all the time. It is the two nations in Ireland and the fact that they both want to be free that prevents it. But, for goodness' sake, don't let us speak of Ireland."

Mr. Galsworthy told of the halt in civil life which the war had caused, and said that he longed "to see the energies of reconstruction, of recreation at work again." He told of the giant strides of science during the war, but pointed out that the arts had been hestitant, though "it is now time that art left off leaning against the wall and danced off again." He said that he thought America was at the entry of a new era of the arts, one which he predicted would be an exceptionally vigorous one.

"You in America have a wealth of material," he added, "and you must paint and tell the story of this amazing America."

Mr. Heggie suggested that a step toward an endowed playhouse, which he advocated, would be through the organization of 1,000 theatregoers, each to contribute $100, and the producing program to consist of a play a month and a season of eight months. Mrs. Furness spoke along similar lines, declaring that such a venture, enabling the production of plays somewhat different from the successes of the day, was badly needed.

Mr. Payne told of the achievements of the English provincial theatre, and the particularly valuable training it affords stage folk. Mr. Pollock declared that not five plays on Broadway this season were higher mentally than the intelligence of a ten-year-old child.

LAUNCH PROGRAM TO LOWER PRICES

Co-operation by Government, Industry, and Labor Proposed by Redfield.

CREATES INDUSTRIAL BOARD

Peck, Frayne, and Powell Announced as Three of the Six Members.

AGREEMENTS VOLUNTARY

No Attempt to Enforce Them Contemplated—Stabilization Conferences Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Contending that the unsettled conditions facing American industry, as well as the problem of supplying work for soldiers and sailors who have been or are soon to be released from military and naval duty, demand the immediate attention of the Government, William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce, presented today a proposal for a co-operative movement to which the Government, capital, and labor shall be parties, which he feels will aid in the stabilization of prices and the relief of distress which faces many employers and employes as a result of the sudden termination of the war.

The program which Mr. Redfield puts forward has been brought to the attention of President Wilson and has received his full approval. It does not call for the exercise of mandatory price-fixing power upon either raw or finished materials by the Government, but looks forward to the extension of Government influence in connection with price fixing in so far as a price agreed upon voluntarily by Government and industry may be made to affect the market through the Government's purchases for its own needs. The publication of "fair price lists" as a guide to purchasers may be decided upon.

The theory of this proposal, it is understood, is that prices of raw materials and later of the finished products which reach the consumer will be brought down from the inflated war-time values to something more like a normal level, and that in the course of such readjustment all interests, including capital and labor, will be protected from a crash in values which would involve widespread suffering and discontent among the workingmen and the closing of many industries.

"In substance," says today's official announcement, "we propose to bring capital, labor, and the Government into common counsel together around one table and with one purpose—to do the best possible for the country."

Reduction in Wages.

That the program, which was made public for Mr. Redfield by the Council of National Defense, an organization which will co-operate in carrying out the principles with the Department of Commerce, does not recommend that heavy inroads be made at once upon the pay envelopes of the workers is indicated in the closing paragraph of this statement. It reads:

"Industry and labor have a mutual interest in remedying present conditions, but industry should take the first step by the reduction of prices and commodities and should require of labor as little as possible."

The announcement shows that the Government's participation in the movement is to be vested primarily in what is to be known as "The Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce," to the Chairmanship of which Mr. Redfield already has appointed George N. Peck of Moline, Ill., formerly Vice Chairman of the now extinct War Industries Board, who also was head of its raw material division. Hugh Frayne, who has represented labor on the War Industries Board and engaged in various other Government activities concerning conditions of labor and wages, is to be a member. Thomas C. Powell, Director of Capital Expenditures of the Railroad Administration, the announcement states, has been selected by Mr. Redfield as the "official representative" on the new board.

There are to be in all six members, and the full personnel will be announced as soon as acceptances have been received from other men who have been approached by Secretary Redfield. The first step in the campaign to stabilize prices will then be to call conferences with leading representatives of the industries producing basic materials, in order to obtain their views. Mr. Redfield has suggested that producers of construction materials, such as iron, steel, lumber, textiles, cement, copper, and brick shall be among the first summoned to Washington.

Supply and Demand.

It is emphasized by the backers of the movement that the effort will be to restore the situation where "supply and demand" shall control prices and conditions in industries, rather than to eliminate that quality from consideration. In this connection it is pointed out that the board will not attempt to enforce upon others what the Government may deem a fair price, and that either producer or consumer may sell or buy, as the case may be, at a higher or lower level, if a market is found available.

But it is the theory of the backers of the movement, nevertheless, that the decisions of the Government in making its own purchases will largely affect the market in other directions, as the Government is a large operator in many of the more important raw materials. In a few words, the theory is that the Government's decisions will guide and stabilize, if they do not completely control, especially if industry, labor, and the consuming public are kept fully acquainted, through intelligent publicity, with the prices which the Government, upon the advice of its experts, believes to be fair.

It is admittedly problematical how the welfare of the small, domestic consumer will be affected by the Government's participation in such a program—whether the cost of its purchases of foodstuffs, clothing and other necessities would be radically reduced or not. The consensus of opinion seems to be, at this time, that a relatively high range of prices will prevail for some time in such markets, but that gradually the prices of the majority of necessities will fall, and that the Government's activity in the proposed stabilization program will play its part in bringing this about without disastrous results in any direction.

Mr. Redfield has been stirred to activity in the attempt to aid industry, it is said, by a study of the situation following many reports that certain industries would be forced to close unless relief were given, and that many, in fact, had already discharged large numbers of workers, thus adding to the unemployment problem, or actually had shut down. The reports from all parts of the country collected by the Department of Labor, which asserts flatly that unemployment is on the increase and becoming weekly more menacing, also played a part in precipitating action.

Duties of the New Board.

The new Industrial Board, the statement issued today says, "will be charged, under the approval already given by the President to the Secretary of Commerce, with the stabilization of prices for basic materials in such a fashion as to create a firm foundation on which the consumer can base his future purchases and the producer can form necessary production cost estimates.

"Through proper investigation and stabilization," the statement continues, "it is expected that the foundation can be laid for the resumption of American business and for the furnishing of employment to returning soldiers and sailors—this through Government purchases, the publication of fair price lists, and co-operation of the producer.

"To obtain this co-operation of the producer, it is planned that the board shall call the various leaders of industry into consultation. The first of these conferences will be with representatives of industries producing basic materials, such as iron, steel, lumber, textiles, cement, copper, brick, and other construction materials.

"It will be the endeavor of the board to interchange views with these representatives of industry in the fullest and freest manner possible. If these conferences result in a general agreement among the important basic industries upon proper prices and bases for prices at which sales will be made, and this agreement is approved by the board, it is believed that the announcement of this fact will induce the nation to feel justified in properly beginning a buying program.

"Such a procedure should, in substance, establish immediately a normal basis upon which to resume activities, and in this way the law of supply and demand be enabled to come into play, for, to quote Secretary Redfield, 'it cannot be too strongly emphasized that the proposal that the Government shall cooperate in the determining of fair prices on basic commodities and in stabilizing these prices through Government purchases is in no sense a price-fixing program. No one will be under any sort of compulsion to adhere to the price schedules arrived at. If a producer can find a market for his wares at a higher price, no one can prevent his being free to avail himself of it. If a consumer is able to buy below these prices, it will be his privilege to do so. In substance, we propose to bring capital, labor, and the Government into common counsel together around one table and with one purpose—to do the best possible for the country.'

Stagnation in Industry.

"The immediate need for carrying out Secretary Redfield's program is evident, for there exists at the present time an abnormal situation in the industrial world—a stagnation of business and industrial inactivity. Mills and factories are idle, or are producing but a small part of what they are capable of doing, and building operations are at a standstill. A large amount of unemployment exists, and this unemployment is increasing at such a rate as to challenge the best thought that can be given to the situation.

"One of the striking features of the present situation is the high price demanded for practically all articles and commodities of trade and commerce. This high price condition is undoubtedly the cause of most business inactivity, and therefore is also the cause of the widespread unemployment of labor.

"While living costs of the present are unusually high and will continue high until there are substantial reductions in the cost of necessary staple foodstuffs, it is believed that there is satisfactory latent buying power in the country—an abundance of money—but money that is not being used to employ or to purchase goods and materials.

"This present condition has come about through a series of unusual happenings, due to the war. The industries and labor of the country were diverted into new and unnatural channels, in order to mobilize all efforts possible. The capacities of many factories were expanded, new ones built, abandoned plants remodeled and put into production, and industry was managed and operated in accordance with war necessities—all largely under Government control.

"This control and direction of effort and change of policies resulted in the complete suspension of the ordinary operation of the law of supply and demand. The demand for commodities and the necessary agreements with industries as to prices and terms of conversion of industry to war work had the effect of inflating prices to an abnormal extent, so as to encourage maximum production, even by producers operating under the greatest handicaps and at the highest costs. Prices were advanced disproportionately, some articles showing increased selling prices over pre-war prices of 250 per cent., while others showed but approximately 50 per cent.

"The law of supply and demand is really inoperative at the present time, for the reason that it is found difficult, if not impossible, for this law to resume normal functioning, on account of the fact that at the present time the price relations between the industries producing basic essentials are not properly adjusted to efficiently meet peace-time conditions.

Continuance of High Prices.

"It is therefore apparent that the trouble resulting in the present stagnant, unsatisfactory condition of industry is due to the continuance of the high, uneven, unstable prices of war times, which were in many instances agreed to by agencies of Government functioning for war purposes, and not to any unhealthy general condition. These abnormal prices still remain, because there has not been provided, up to this time, any agency to bring about necessary reductions.

"Under the conditions outlined, a wise solution is equally important to the Government, to industry and to labor, for their true interests are so indissolubly connected and united that no detriment can be suffered by one without a harmful effect and reaction upon the others.

"The vital need of the situation is resumption of industrial activity to the fullest extent possible, and it should be the aim to find the wisest and most effective way to accomplish this.

"It is felt that the proper basis of selling prices for the present will be found to be upon a scale considerably higher than those for the pre-war days. However, the level should be established on the lowest plane possible, having due regard to industry, labor, and Government. The announcement of such a plane of prices will immediately create confidence in the buying public.

"It is believed that the reductions from the high prices to the proper level, so that consumers may be justified in buying, should be made at once by one reduction. The effort should be to wholly eliminate the abnormal, unbalanced stimulation that business has had and the inflated prices that have resulted, and to start anew upon a normal level; we can safely rely upon the law of supply and demand to govern future values. Such a policy adopted and announced will, it is believed, when understood by the consumer, induce at once sufficient buying to start factories, fill empty yards and warerooms, and inaugurate the interrupted building and other programs.

"Industry and labor have a mutual interest in remedying present conditions, but industry should take the first step by the reduction of prices and commodities and should require of labor as little aid as possible."

The Council of National Defense, which will work with Mr. Redfield in putting his program into effect, includes Secretary of War Baker, Chairman; Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Secretary of the Interior Lane, Secretary of Agriculture Houston, Secretary Redfield, and Secretary of Labor Wilson. G. B. Clarkson is Secretary and Director.

Haig Returns to His Headquarters.

UNITE TO PROTECT MEXICAN HOLDINGS

the following have been appointed to serve as such alternates:

John H. Fulton for James A. Stillman.
Benjamin S. Guinness for Walter T. Rosen.
Jerome J. Hanauer for Mortimer L. Schiff.
E. D. Hulbert for John J. Mitchell.
Thomas W. Lamont for J. P. Morgan.
Frank W. Remick for Robert Winsor.
Francis H. Sisson for Charles H. Sabin.
Edward R. Tinker for Albert H. Wiggin.
J. Y. G. Walker for James N. Wallace.

The names of only nine of the ten Americans were given out. The tenth name is still to be selected.

In explanation of the statement the following points were made:

The organization of the committee was not the result of hasty judgment on the part of those who desired to attempt a settlement of the perplexing problem of foreign interests in Mexico, but was the logical conclusion of many long and earnest conferences. Those who took part in the conferences included not only those bankers whose names appear on the committee, but representatives of the American, French, and British Governments as well.

It is thought by the members of the committee that the organization of a strong group of international bankers for the purpose of taking up the entire situation with respect to investments of foreigners in Mexico may stimulate the Carranza Government to an early realization that the entire Mexican situation, so far as foreign investments are concerned, will be energetically pressed from now on.

The committee expects to act as a sort of "omnibus" committee to oversee the activities of subcommittees. These subcommittees will be appointed from time to time as may be necessary when some particular interest may be affected. The large committee will formulate a definite but general policy with respect to specific matters, and it will be the duty of the subcommittees to carry out further and in full detail the policy of the "omnibus" committee.

The committee has no police power behind it.

Plans for the rehabilitation of the finances of Mexico, of the railroads and mines will be formulated by subcommittees. It is thought by the bankers that disbursements now being made are not to the best advantage of the finances of the country and that for one thing too much money is being spent on the military establishment.

The Mexican debt is said to about $350,000,000, and interest on it has not been paid for some years. Much railroad property has been destroyed and will have to be rebuilt. The income of the country, it was said, is inadequate. The revenue is estimated at about 160,000,000 pesos, (about $80,000,000,) and of this 120,000,000 pesos is used in operating the Government, leaving only 40,000,000 pesos for debt service.

It was indicated that nowhere outside of the United States, Great Britain, and France is there sufficient surplus capital to enable the Mexican Government to borrow in quantities sufficient for its needs.

Rafaelo Nieto, Acting Minister of Finance of Mexico, has been in New York a week or more conferring with bankers on the prospect of the rehabilitation of Mexico's finances, particularly the national and railway debts. He has been given to understand, it was said, that so far as financial aid is concerned, nothing definite can be said until the status of foreign investors in Mexico is made the subject of a clear and concise pronunciamento by his Government. There is to be an extraordinary session of the Mexican Congress, and in some quarters it is felt that the session may result in a solution of the oil land controversy.

Mr. Nieto conferred with J. P. Morgan & Co. recently, and although no statement was given out by either side, it was understood that the Mexican official is anxious to work out some plan whereby the Mexican national debt may be refunded and new capital obtained for internal development. Bankers familiar with conditions of Mexican finance doubt if the Mexican income, after deducting the cost of running the Government, would be sufficient to pay interest on the debt and allow a balance for new money.

Under these conditions, it is said that American bankers hesitate to undertake any new financing in Mexico unless some sort of guarantee will be forthcoming. It is believed that Mr. Nieto has been given to understand the terms under which loans may be made, although it is understood that he is not empowered to make any definite agreement for his country, even if one were possible at the present time.

Although nothing has been made public concerning the steps taken in these negotiations, it is known that a plan for refunding Mexico's debt and for supplying capital for new developments has been tentatively prepared, but the interested parties say nothing definite can be vouchsafed at present.

However, it has become known that this plan calls for the refunding of the Mexican debt into a comprehensive issue of bonds of one description, the issuance of new bonds for capital with which to develop some of the natural resources of Mexico, the pledging of the national customs revenue as security for the whole debt, and the administration of the customs revenue by a joint commission or international board of representatives of the United States and Mexico.

The committee, it was said, has no connection with the recently organized Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico, whose representatives are in Paris, endeavoring to get the Mexican situation before the Peace Conference

THE INSTRUMENT OF QUALITY
Sonora
CLEAR AS A BELL

The Instrument You Want

THE sweet, clear, natural tones can be made strong and resonant, or faint and low, by means of the patented Sonora Tone Control; but whether vigorous or repressed the tone is like crystal, accurate and distinct.

At the Panama-Pacific Exposition it was the Sonora that won the highest score for tone quality against the competition of every other phonograph.

There is a reality, a mellowness, a fine vitality to the Sonora (which plays all makes of disc records perfectly without extra attachments) that place it in a class alone.

302d Trench Mortar Battery of 77th Division Comes on Cruiser Montana.

MOST OF TROOPS SEASICK

Two Transports and Two Warships Land 3,400 Men—All Report a Rough Voyage.

Two warships, the cruiser Montana and the battleship Kansas, arrived here yesterday with the transports West Durfee and Artemis, and landed 3,400 troops from France who had nearly all been seasick on the voyage. The Kansas was so delayed by head winds and seas that she had to put into Bermuda and lay at anchor for thirty-six hours, but no one was allowed to go ashore.

Among the 1,401 officers and men on the Montana were the members of the 302d Trench Mortar Battery, six officers and 148 men, being the first complete unit of the 77th Division to return to this country. No notice had been sent of their being on the Montana, and consequently there were no special efforts to welcome them to New York.

The police boat Patrol went down the bay as usual with the Mayor's Committee on board, and the Trench Mortar gunners appeared to be quite satisfied to be received as the other troops were—with bands, cigarettes, candies, and all kinds of good things at the pier in Hoboken.

Saw Some Heavy Fighting.

The unit was commanded by Captain Samuel J. Reid of New York who, like the five officers with him, was graduated from the first Plattsburg camp. They are Lieutenants David F. Taylor of Montclair, N. J.; James M. Ross of Richmond Hill, L. I.; Arthur McCartney of Ardsley, N. Y., and Adriel Harris of New York City. The surgeon is Lieutenant Joseph Bruno of 829 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn.

In speaking about the 302d's year of service abroad, Captain Reid said that the unit was attached to the 152d Artillery Brigade when it went to France and was a green outfit when the members were first assembled there to go into training in March, 1918.

"The biggest action that the 302d Trench Mortar Battery took part in," Captain Reid continued, "was in the Baccarah sector on the Lorraine front and it also saw heavy fighting on the St. Mihiel and Luneville fronts, but the casualties were light. The battery took in the garment makers, the bootblacks and the newsboys from the street corners of New York and Brooklyn and trained them to be good, all-round, efficient soldiers. Their discipline was good and they showed considerable intelligence when it was needed, which is an invaluable qualification for troops to possess in modern warfare, which is run on scientific lines.

"No better proof of their high intelligence can be given than they showed at a battle on the Vesle River when we had turned over to us a captured battery of German 77s. After giving them a thorough examination, in a few hours my men had those guns thundering shells at the German trenches and used the ammunition that they themselves had captured that morning from the enemy.

"Later on we had a battery of German howitzers turned over to our battery. The boys of the 302d could not understand the German marks on the shells, but they soon managed to load the howitzers and use them to advantage against the Fritzes. Our battery was a bona fide citizen soldiers' unit. From officer sto privates there was not one professional soldier among them. They were all trained either at Plattsburg or Upton."

Casual Company 1,201, with 2 officers and 198 men, who also came on the Montana, were, with the exception of six men, all from New York or Brooklyn. They were all noncommissioned officers, from Sergeant Majors to Corporals, who had been sent to the Army Candidates' Schools at Langres or Val Bonne.

The Very Rev. W. A. Guerry, Episcopal Bishop of Charleston, S. C., and the Very Rev. Edwin Holt Hughes, Methodist Episcopal Bishop of Malden, Mass., returned from France on the warship, where they have been preaching and lecturing under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Bishop Hughes, who had been in Germany, said that it was ridiculous to talk of the German propaganda in the occupied sections of that country. From the small children in the streets to the old folks at home they all welcome the American soldiers, he said.

There was also the 146th Machine Gun Battalion complete, with thirty officers and 593 men, under the command of Major J. M. Hanley of Mandan, N. D., who was Circuit Judge before he quit civil life to fight the Germans, on the Montana.

Cruiser Had Rough Trip.

Captain George S. Day, who commanded the cruiser, said that although he came over the southern course, the vessel ran into some of the worst weather he had ever experienced. There was one death on board, that of Corporal Charles E. Nelson of Prosser, Wash., attached to the 145th Machine Gun Battalion, who died of pneumonia.

The Montana also brought companies E, F, and G, of the 116th Ammunition Train and the battleship Kansas, which followed her up the harbor to Hoboken, had the remainder of the unit on board—companies A, B, C, and D. The battleship left Brest five days ahead of the Montana and reached Sandy Hook four hours after her, but caught up going to the pier.

The 116th Engineers complete, who are in command of Lieut. Col. James C. McLeer, a well-known Brooklyn lawyer, who was on the Kansas, will go to Camp Dix. The unit, which consists of forty officers and 1,642 men, came from all parts of the United States and were engaged in road building. In April, 1918, they were in the Montdidier section, Lieut. Col. McLeer said, where there was some very heavy fighting going with the German drive, during which a high explosive shell killed Lieutenant Hanf of this city and wounded nineteen men. They were busy repairing a section of a military road which had been torn out by the heavy camions laden with ammunition.

One member of the 116th Engineers was Private William Terry of 248 Reid Avenue, Brooklyn, who went abroad with the Canadian forces at the beginning of the war in 1914, and was transferred to the American army after being a year in hospital in England recovering from his wounds.

One of First to be Gassed.

Terry was among the first men to be gassed in the war. His outfit was operating in the Champagne section on April 15, 1915, when the Germans began using gas. The first attack with gas so surprised the Canadians that they did not know what had happened. The men dropped, according to Terry, like flies. The Canadians had no gas masks and had no way of combating the gas save by running before it. Terry did this, but before he could get out of the curtain of gas he was overcome.

He was in a hospital for three months. At Ypres in 1917 he was wounded three times in one battle and was evacuated to a base hospital and later sent to England. He was in the hospital when the armistice was signed, and then secured his transfer to the American army. He was awarded the military medal by the British Government.

There was one death on the Kansas from pneumonia, Corporal Rushton of the Motor Transport Corps.

The transport Artemis, which sailed from St. Nazaire on Lincoln's Birthday, brought twenty-five casual officers who were taken from Tompkinsville to Hoboken in a naval tug. The senior officer was Major Ferdinand N. Bartelme of the 20th Engineers.

The West Durfee brought two officers and thirty-one enlisted men from Brest, and docked at Bush Stores, South Brooklyn. Her passengers were sent to Hoboken on a naval tug and later to Camp Merritt. Those who arrived on the Montana went to Camp Upton.

The transport Olympic will arrive in port late tonight, but will not land her troops, and the George Washington is expected to arrive early tomorrow.

77TH TO HAVE CLUBHOUSE.

Division Association Also to Care for Families of Dead.

Major Spencer F. Weaver, who was detached from the 306th Infantry and ordered to this country to prepare for the return of the 77th Division, announced yesterday that he had received assurances that more than 20,000 of the 27,000 men in the division would take their former jobs or new ones when they returned to this country to be mustered out.

His card index shows that 5,600 men are yet unprovided for and, with the aid of the auxiliary associations of the divisional units, he is seeking places for them. A temporary office has been opened at 420 Park Avenue.

Captain J. M. Loughborough explained yesterday the complete plans of the 77th Division Association for the establishment of a clubhouse in this city, and for aiding the families of those who perished in the war. The full plan was published in a divisional memorandum and all the units have enrolled their men in the association. Every member is to pay dues of $2 a year. Attention also was called yesterday to one of the articles in the divisional memorandum, which provides:

"This association as an association, and any officer of the association in his official capacity, shall not give public expression to an opinion on any political question, nor take any action to influence legislation. Any official of the association who shall become a candidate for public office shall thereby automatically cease to be an officer of this association."

The officers of the association are:

Executive Committee.—Major Spencer F. Weaver, Chairman, member at large; Major Lewis Saunders, 152d Field Artillery Brigade; Major Julius O. Adler, 153d Infantry Brigade; Major James A. Roosevelt, Independent Units of the Division, and Captain George C. McMurtry, D. S. C., 154th Infantry Brigade, Secretary and Treasurer.

Board of Governors.—Division at Large, Major Spencer F. Weaver; 305th Infantry, Captain James D. Williams; 306th Infantry, Major Julius O. Adler; 307th Infantry, Captain Weston Jenkins; 308th Infantry, Captain George C. McMurtry; 304th Field Artillery, Major Lewis Saunders; 305th Field Artillery, Captain Henry H. Reed; 306th Field Artillery, Major Fairman R. Dick; 302d Ammunition Train, Captain James A. Demarest; 304th Machine Gun Battalion, Lieutenant Leonard G. McAneny; 305th Machine Gun Battalion, Captain Alfred Roelker; 306th Machine Gun Battalion, Lieutenant Walter E. Young; 302d Engineers, Captain Alfred Renshaw; 302d Supply Train, Major James A. Roosevelt; 302d Sanitary Train and Field Hospital, Major James B. Griffin; 302d Field Signal Battalion, Captain Terry W. Allen; Headquarters Troops and Military Police, Captain Francis N. Bangs.

Lieut. Col. J. Leslie Kincaid and the advance contingent of officers who came to this country to prepare for the demobilization of the 27th Division, yesterday continued their work of gathering data upon the plans for the parade to be held here after March 20.

Some of the members of the contingent, including Colonel Kincaid, probably will go to Albany today to confer with Governor Smith and others upon the plans of the proposed State Committee of Welcome. It was said last night at the Biltmore that no definite hour for meeting the Governor had been set. A suggestion also has been made to the officers that they attend a joint session of the Senate and Assembly, so that a proper welcome may be extended to them personally.

The Rocky Mountain Club announced yesterday that the hurry to demobilize the 41st or Sunset Division would prevent carrying out of the plan for a parade of the Western soldiers in this city. Consent was given by the War Department, but an order for demobilization already was too far carried out to be stopped. All other Western soldiers who come to this city are to be welcomed by the club, and it is expected that so many will be here that it has been proposed that the Madison Square Garden be hired for the use of the men.

APPEALS FOR AID FOR JEWS.

Felix M. Warburg Tells of Suffering in Austria, Russia, and Poland.

The distress and suffering among the Jews in Austria, Poland, Siberia, and interior Russia exceed the conditions of the war period, according to Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee of the American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers, who yesterday made public reports he had received from abroad. He called on American Jewry to respond to the plea of their starving brethren and contribute to the fullest extent of their means in order that the committee may continue its work of alleviating the distress. The demands upon the committee have been so heavy, Mr. Warburg said, that the $5,000,000 collected in the recent Jewish war relief drives is being exhausted rapidly.

"In Siberia," Mr. Warburg said, "I am advised directly by persons who have witnessed the conditions that thousands of Jews are living in dugouts, from which they are unable to venture forth, as they have no clothes and would be sure to perish by freezing. Hundreds and thousands are thus left to die of starvation in these dugouts, fit only for beasts."

During the week the Joint Distribution Committee received a cable message from its representative in Poland, Dr. Boris D. Bogen, which was sent from Warsaw and in part states:

"'Frightful conditions caused by delayed remittances. Arrange for transmission through Polish Ambassador. Cable open credit there. Further delay criminal.'"

As a result of Dr. Bogen's message, Mr. Warburg said, the committee had cabled $100,000 to him. In the last few weeks, he said, the committee had expended more than $1,000,000 for food, clothing, and supplies, which had been sent to Poland, and $300,000 for relief work among the populations of Armenia, Syria, and Turkey. To meet the needs of Siberia the committee set aside $150,000, which will be expended by Dr. Frank F. Rosenblatt, who sails next month for Vladivostok.

PAY TRIBUTES TO ITALY.

Her Part in War Praised at Harlem Meeting.

A tribute was paid to Italy and to the part she has played in the war at a large meeting held in the Harlem House, 311 East 116th Street, yesterday, under the auspices of the Harlem Educational Alliance. The speakers were Frank L. Frugone, Arthur A. Guarino, and Antonio Calitri.

The east side settlement has turned its attention to the work of Americanizing the foreign element in East Harlem, a district which is estimated to contain more than 100,000 Italians, 50,000 of whom are unable to read, write, or speak the English language. Among the many telegrams read at the meeting was one from Governor Smith congratulating the organization on its work and paying a glowing tribute to Italy.

A ceremony in honor of two fallen heroes was held yesterday morning in the Mayor's reception room in the City Hall. A gold medal for valor was presented to the father of Lieutenant Colman De Will Tenafly, awarded to his memory by the King of Italy. A silver medal for valor was also presented to the father of Lieutenant James Bahl, awarded by General Diaz of the Italian Army.

D. K. E. to Give Allies' Ball.

The D. K. E. Club of New York has planned an Allies' ball on Wednesday evening at its clubhouse. Roshanara will do a classic Hindu dance, and there will be a corps of ushers under the direction of Samuel Sloan Walker, Henry Crocker of California, and John C. Pemberton of Virginia. Acceptances have been received from members of the British, French, and Italian Missions, and from various foreign Consulates and embassies.

ASBURY PARK FIRE DESTROYS HOTELS

Three Cottages and Two Garages Also Total Losses—Police Hunt for Incendiary.

PLACE DAMAGE AT $200,000

Firemen Battle with Stiff Breeze to Confine Blaze to One Block in Resort Section.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Feb. 23.—Fire early this morning destroyed five Summer hotels, three cottages and two garages here and for a time threatened to sweep the entire resort section of the town. The fire apparently started simultaneously in the basements of two of the hotels, and this, coupled with the fact that this was the third early Sunday morning fire in three successive weeks, has led the police and fire department officials to start a hunt for an incendiary.

The fire started about three blocks north of the site of the disastrous fire of two years ago, when an acre of buildings was burned. All the structures destroyed this morning were located in the block bounded by Fourth and Fifth Avenues, Bergen and Kingsley Streets. The hotels burned were the Sunset Hall, Maryland, Waldorf, Fifth Avenue House, and Parkview. The cottages were the residences of David W. Sissons, iron manufacturer of New York, and Dr. J. W. and Harry J. Rockafeller, owners of Sunset Hall. All were unoccupied except the Sisson cottage, and those asleep there escaped uninjured. The damage was estimated at from $200,000 to $250,000.

A patrolman discovered smoke coming from the basement of the Waldorf, and while he was searching for the fire there the basements of both this hotel and the Fifth Avenue House, which adjoins it, were suddenly aflame. A stiff gale was blowing and there was a heavy downpour of rain. When the policeman reached the nearest firebox he discovered the wires had been blown down and he had to run several blocks before he could send in an alarm.

When the firemen arrived they discovered that the stiff wind had fanned the fire in the two wooden hotels until they were ablaze from the ground to the roof and sparks were showering on some of the bigger hotels a block away. While streams were turned on the fire other firemen were kept busy with hose and buckets quenching the burning cinders which landed on other roofs.

Despite a hard battle by the firemen the flames swept to the three other hotels named, and to the two cottages and the garages back of them. Several times the flames threatened to gain headway across the street, but each time a hard battle forced them back to the original block. Despite the heavy rainfall the wooden structures burned rapidly as the wind whipped the flames, and efforts to save the ten structures, grouped near each other, were fruitless. After several hours' work, however, the fire was under control.

50,000 CHILDREN EXAMINED.

City Child Hygiene Bureau Resumes Work Stopped by Influenza.

Dr. S. Josephine Baker, head of the Division of Child Hygiene in the Department of Health, announced yesterday that the work of the New York Children's Year Committee would be resumed immediately after a lapse of three months. It was necessary to stop the work to release the physicians and nurses for the fight against influenza. When the work of registering, weighing, and examining all children under 5 years was begun in April, 1918, the committee announced that it hoped, through its work, to save the lives of 4,700 children in this city.

"We had our work well organized, and had registered nearly 200,000 children in the fifty centres in this city when the influenza epidemic started," said Dr. Baker. "When we dropped the work about 50,000 children had been examined, and our workers were giving the mothers information and advice upon ways to improve the health of those who were not in perfect condition.

"We cannot tell yet the effects of the influenza upon the death rate of children under 5 years, but we know the increase has been large. In 1917 the mortality rate among infants under 1 year already had increased from 88 in each 1,000 births to 91.7 in 1918. Not only have many died from influenza, which is still raging among the children here, but the direct mortality among children in our tenement sections from neglect due to the sickness and death of their parents has been great. Malnutrition among children has also increased."

Dr. Baker said that children would be examined at any centre of the committee. Most of them are in public school buildings. Any mother who wishes to have her child examined in the methods used by the national committee directing the examinations may send to the Department of Health for the blanks for her own physician to use.

NEW WILSON GRANDCHILD.

President Notified of Birth of a Son to Mrs. Sayre.

ON BOARD U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The first word from shore received by President Wilson when his ship arrived in Boston harbor was that he had a grandson, Woodrow Wilson Sayre. The infant is the second son of his youngest daughter, Jessie Wilson Sayre, wife of Francis Bowes Sayre.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—A son was born to Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, daughter of President Wilson, at the Jefferson Hospital here today. Mother and child are doing well. This is the President's fourth grandchild. Another is Ellen Wilson McAdoo.

Mrs. Sayre's first child, Francis B. Sayre, Jr., was born in the White House on Jan. 17, 1915. The second, Eleanor Axson Wilson Sayre, was born at Jefferson Hospital, March 26, 1916.

The President, of course, has been notified, and it is possible he may stop at Philadelphia on his way from Boston to Washington in order to see his daughter and her second son.

Tonight the following message was received by Mrs. Sayre from the President:

Painters Make Governor Homeless.

Governor Smith and the members of his family found themselves temporarily homeless when they arrived here for their usual week-end trip because the owner of the row of little red brick dwellings in which the Smith home is situated, at 25 Oliver Street, had put painters and decorators to work. Several friends offered accommodations, but Mr. and Mrs. Smith went to the Biltmore for the holiday. They returned to Albany yesterday afternoon. The advance contingent of officers of the 27th Division, who have arrived from France to prepare for the demobilization of this unit, will leave for Albany at 1 o'clock today for the official welcoming reception arranged for them by Governor Smith.

K of C Charity Ball Tonight

Twenty thousand tickets have been sold, it was said yesterday, for this evening's Charity Ball of the Knights of Columbus in Madison Square Garden. Some 55,000 feet of canvas has been laid to make a dancing floor, and flags of the Allies have been arranged as decorations. Before the dancing, Anna Fitziu will sing the "Star Spangled Banner;" the Paulist Choristers will sing, and Marie Dressler, Mrs. Castle, Fannie Brice, William Collier, George M. Cohan, Clifton Webb, and others will assist in entertaining. A large military attendance is promised, including General Shanks of the Port of Debarkation, Colonel Sorly of Camp Merritt, Colonel Pickering of Camp Mills, Colonel Leslie Kincaid, and all the advance officers of the 27th Division, General Louis W. Stotesbury, and Governor Smith.

JEWS POINT IN PRIDE TO RECORD IN WAR

Jewish Committee Finds Larger Proportion of Race in Service Than in Population.

72 PER CENT. COMBATANTS

Incomplete Record of Decorations and Citations Conferred Shows 124 Honored.

The total number of Jews in the military and naval service during the war was between 165,000 and 200,000, or from 4 to 5 per cent. of the total personnel of the American forces at the time the armistice was signed, according to "The War Record of American Jews," issued yesterday by the American Jewish Committee.

It was pointed out that the Jews compose about 3 per cent. of the total population, so that the proportion of Jews in the service was about 50 per cent. greater than the proportion of Jews in the total population. One cause of this showing was the volunteering of 40,000 Jews, and another was that their population is thickest in the cities where the draft was most effective in its operation and that there were comparatively few Jews in agriculture, mining, and other industries which were exempted.

Seventy-two per cent. of the Jews in the army, the report says, were in combat branches, although only 60 per cent. of the army as a whole is in combat service. Complete casualty records have not been obtained, but the committee estimates that 2,000 Jews were killed in action and that their casualties totaled 10,000. The highest rank reached by Jews were those of Brigadier General in the army and Marine Corps and Rear Admiral in the navy.

"From information now at hand," concludes the report, which is signed by Julian Leavitt, Director of the Office of Jewish War Records, "it has become apparent that the record of the Jewish War Service, when fully developed, will demonstrate conclusively that the same qualities which enabled the Jews to survive through the centuries—his capacity to endure, without breaking, prolonged and intense nerve strain; his initiative, his elasticity of mind, his faculty for organization, and, above all, his idealism—have also enabled him to fit himself successfully into a democratic army, fighting for world democracy."

The record of decorations and citations is not available, but a list of 124 soldiers and officers among those cited is presented.

"The reports of citations for gallantry in action," the report says, "and of other honors and decorations, are too belated to provide sufficient data for the purpose of the present report. It is known, however, that the number of Jewish soldiers who have received American and French decorations is considerable. It was the 77th (Upton) Division—largely Jewish—that was in the thick of the fighting at Argonne Forest, and it was practically a Jewish battalion—belonging to the famous 308th—that distinguished itself for extraordinary valor in the Argonne. The list of all citations will therefore be prepared for publication as soon as sufficient information wits respect to these honors shall be available."

The following partial list is given:

Major Julius O. Adler, 306th Infantry; cited twice for gallantry in leading and inspiring men at critical times.

Sam Apperstein, Company D, 302d Engineers; cited for gallantry in bridge building operations on the Vesle under three and a half hours of continuous shell fire.

Mexicans Kill 19 Border Bandits.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Feb. 22.—Nineteen men, eight of whom were from the same community twenty miles up the Rio Grande from Matamoros, have so far been summarily executed by shooting or hanging by the State police of the Mexican State of Tamaulipas, in a campaign to end the ravages of bandits along the lower Texas-Mexican border, according to information received at Matamoros tonight.

NEW ONE-MAN CARS IN USE.

B. R. T. Tries Money and Labor Saving Experiment on Bay Ridge.

The new "one-man" trolley car, which has been in use in several other cities, was introduced yesterday in Brooklyn. Four of the new cars were used in regular service on the Third Avenue line, from the Sixty-fifth Street terminus of the elevated road to Fort Hamilton, and were liberally patronized, not a few persons riding out of curiosity.

The one man who performs the duties of motorman and conductor sits at an improved controller box on the inclosed front platform, opens the door by pressing an electric button, sees that the entering passengers drop the proper coins into the fare box, makes change when necessary, issues transfers, gets off to readjust the trolley pole, explains to anxious women that they have't yet reached Primrose Avenue, and warns men on the rear seats that "they aint' no smokin' allowed." Aside from these things the motorman-conductor has nothing to do but operate the car and keep an eye out for nurse girls pushing baby carriages across the tracks and speeding autos shooting unexpectedly out of side streets.

The new cars, which are much smaller and lighter than the cars heretofore in use in Brooklyn, seat thirty-five persons each. In operation yesterday they seemed to be more easily started and stopped than the heavier types of cars. Twelve of the cars have been built for the B. R. T., and if the trials prove successful others will be ordered.

EXTRAORDINARY FEATURE

Gen. Pershing's Own Map Of The Great Argonne Battle

This splendid Map, in colors, was sent to THE LITERARY DIGEST by General Pershing, and occupies two full pages in the February 22d number. It is accompanied by a thrilling article drawn from the American Commander-in-Chief's own report of the battle, which was sent with the map. In this tremendous fight in the Argonne forest 600,000 American doughboys faced the crack divisions of the German Army and put them to rout, capturing 468 guns and 16,059 prisoners. Never before was an American Army engaged in such a great battle, and never before in any battle did any army face such almost insurmountable obstacles.

This unusual Map made by the army cartographers at headquarters in France during the progress of the great push will be invaluable for preservation. The position of every Division engaged on every day of the advance, and in some cases the morning and afternoon positions on the same day are clearly shown; the heavy German defense systems that were broken are clearly indicated, showing the irresistible impact of the American push. Every River, Railroad, Wagon-road, City, and Town in the Meuse-Argonne region is plainly given.

In a million American homes this number of "The Digest" containing the splendid Argonne Battle Map will be read with intense interest. Every returned soldier who fought in this great offensive and every relative of a hero in this great drive will be particularly eager to have "The Digest" this week. As no extra copies will be printed, we advise you to go to the news-stand NOW and get yours before they are all sold.

Other features of striking value and interest in this number are:

DEAR FOLKS

THE manager of the Employment Bureau where all of the men laborers in the Wilson & Company plant, Chicago, are employed, invited me to sit in his office all of one morning and look over the men who applied for jobs. I accepted his invitation and I had a most interesting experience. I will tell you about it.

In the first place, I heard practically every man say: "I want to work here, boss, because Wilson & Company treat men right and you give them a chance to get higher up in the ranks when they make good."

In the second place, I noticed, with great personal satisfaction, that the manager treated every applicant for a job with as much courtesy as if he were receiving him in his own home.

In the third place, I got the surprise of my life when I saw men, who had been told by the manager that he could not give them anything to do just then, leave the office with a smile and a thank you.

I wondered why men could smile and say thank you after being told that there was nothing for them to do. So I asked one of them what there was to smile about and why he said thank you, and he said, in effect, this:

"Oh, the boss, there, is always kind to everybody and I like kindness. I know he would give me a job if he could. I am coming back again until I get a job with this company. I want to work here because I am sure of getting a square deal."

And he went away happy; so did the others.

However, men keep on applying for work in the Wilson & Company plant in spite of the fact that they know the company is always full up with laborers who never want to leave their jobs.

The manager is the type that Mr. Wilson selects to deal with his army of workers. He won't have a man unless love for his fellows is thoroughly developed in him—unless he is a good judge of human nature—unless he has the quality of selecting workers who will keep up the good fellowship and the loyal spirit that exists so markedly in all departments of the Wilson & Company plant.

He made no mistake in choosing the manager of the Men's Employment Bureau, who is a man of big frame, big heart, big character and with a big idea of his duty toward his company and toward his fellow man.

Among the number who applied for jobs while I was in the manager's office was a soldier in uniform. His appearance and manner and conversation indicated that he was a refined, educated man.

The manager told him that he guessed he had made a mistake in applying to him for a job—that evidently he wanted an office position, or, perhaps, wanted to go on the road as a salesman—that he employed men only who were willing to work with their hands. Mark what this soldier said:

"No, I don't want an easy job. I want to work with my hands. I 'found myself' overseas. Living in trenches and going over the top made a different man of me. That hard work gave me health and strength. I never felt better in my life. I want to keep my body as healthy and as strong as it is now. I want a job that requires the use of my hands, arms, legs, shoulders, feet. I can use my head, too, in doing manual labor. I want very much to work for this company. I hear everybody speak so well of the organization. I will appreciate it greatly if you will give me an opportunity to work as a laborer. I'll take my chance on working my way up. The president of your company got to the top by starting at the bottom of the ladder. Maybe I can climb to the top, too, if I am not too particular about the kind of work I start to do."

The manager said to him: "You are all right, my lad; you've got the right stuff in you. Come here next Monday and I will start you to work. We want men of your grit."

He came to work the following Monday.

He has already made a hit with his fellow-workmen.

They like him a lot and are very proud of him.

They are true-blue Americans and think a soldier who was in fight over there is the kind of pal they want to tie up to.

They think very often of their fellow-workers who went overseas but will never come back.

I want to tell you, folks, that it does a fellow a lot of good to get next to the hearts of real people.

The Heart in the Wilson & Company organization shows everywhere. It does not play hide-and-seek. It comes right out in the open. There is no difficulty in tagging it.

I am going to give to you in my next week letter a very human story about a little slip of a girl—25 years old—who is the inspiring leader in the ranks of over 1,100 women workers in the Wilson & Company plant.

Sincerely, William C. Freeman,
131 E. 23rd St., New York City.

CLEARING MYSTERY OF A NUN'S MURDER

Michigan Officials Aided by Church in the Case of Sister Superior Mary Johns.

CLUES FOUND AFTER YEARS

Special to The New York Times.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Feb. 23.—The Catholic Church will stand squarely back of State officials and lend every possible assistance in clearing up the mystery of the murder of Sister Superior Mary Johns of the Isadore Convent, near Traverse City, nearly twelve years ago. This assurance has been given to Judge Martin Brown of Leland, who is conducting the investigation, by Bishop's Administrator Lefebvre of Cadillac, in charge of the diocese, which has no regular Bishop.

Developments in the case took an important turn today, according to officers, when they found the Rev. Andrew Bienowske, priest of the Isadore Church at the time of the disappearance of Sister Mary, at Manistee. They also believe they have learned the whereabouts of Mrs. Stanislawa Lypchinski, housekeeper for Father Bienowske, who is supposed to know considerable regarding the disappearance of the nun. With these two within reach and the Rev. Edward Podlesweski, known to be at St. Bonaventures' Monastery in Detroit, officials have every confidence that the mystery will soon be at an end.

At the time of the disappearance of Sister Superior Mary Johns from the Isadore Convent in August, 1907, Father Bienowske was in charge and Mrs. Lypchinski was his housekeeper. It is reported that the housekeeper had had altercations with the Sister and was jealous of her, and that the housekeeper had physically attacked her on more than one occasion.

It is further reported by officers that they have been informed that Sister Mary, when last seen, was in the basement of the church at Isadore with the housekeeper. When the Sister disappeared the vicinity was searched for fifteen days in an effort to find some trace of her. Bloodhounds were used, Father Bienowske lending every assistance to the hunt.

The bloodhounds, on their first effort, wound up at the door of the church basement, but officers in searching the basement found nothing out of the way. At last the search was abandoned, when it was reported that Sister Mary had been seen in Chicago.

In the years that have elapsed officers have never given up the hope of solving the mystery. The Rev. Edward Podlesweski succeeded Father Bienowske at the Isadore Church.

Miss Martha Miller, 19 years old, daughter of Joseph Miller, a farmer near Isadore, who was taken several months ago to Ann Arbor Hospital, where a child was born, says that Father Podlesweski accompanied her there, and on that trip told her that last Summer he had been informed that the body of Sister Mary had been buried in the church basement. Miss Miller also said that Father Podlesweski told her he had been asked to remove the body and bury it in the cemetery, as the church basement was to be rebuilt, and that he had done so, with the assistance of Jacob Flees of Isadore.

Officers immediately got in touch with Flees. This was in last December, immediately upon the return to Isadore of Martha Miller, whose story was wrested from her by her father.

Flees confessed and signed an affidavit in which he told his story. He said that one day last Summer Father Podlesweski asked him to help remove a body from the church basement; that together they dug up the body, and at night reburied it in the cemetery, covering it with shrubs, that it might not be detected. The remains, he said, consisted of a few bones, a rosary, and portion of a cord used on a nun's frock.

Officers dug up the body last week and verified the story of Flees. They then began their search for Father Podlesweski, Father Bienowske and his housekeeper. The remains of Sister Mary, contained in a little wooden box, they have hid, placing a strong guard over the box, as theft of this would mean loss of the only evidence they have.

Father Podlesweski is awaiting church trial in Detroit. Father Bienowske and his housekeeper will be called upon to explain the discovery of the body of Sister Mary. Officers have reached no conclusion as to the cause of her death.

After considerable effort, the history of Sister Mary has been traced. Born in Chicago, she went to Detroit with her parents at the age of 9 years. Upon the death of her father and the commitment of her mother to an insane asylum, she entered the Polish convent in Detroit, becoming a member of the Felician order at the age of 18. She came to the Isadore Convent from Detroit in 1906.

MANNING ASSAILS HERRON.

Rector Says Delegate's Appointment Should Be Revoked.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Dr. William T. Manning, preaching this morning in the chapel at Vassar College, denounced the appointment of Professor George Herron as one of the American delegates to the Princes' Island conference, characterizing Herron's record as "a peculiarly shameful and flagrant one." The rector of Trinity also spoke of the League of Nations, taking the standpoint that a peace of firm justice should first be imposed, and then the world confederacy taken up.

"I cannot refrain from expressing my astonishment and deep regret that the President of the United States should have appointed a man who is an open advocate of free love to represent our country at the proposed conference with the Russian Bolsheviki," said Dr. Manning. "Such an appointment is a shock to the country. It ought not to be passed over. It cannot be defended or excused. In the interests of ordinary morality it should be at once and publicly revoked. Protests should come from all quarters regardless of creed or of politics. I hope that our good friends of the Roman Catholic Church will be heard from on this matter. There is small use in our trying to stem the divorce evil if we have no word to say against the official recognition of a notorious advocate of free love."

In his comments on the League of Nations Dr. Manning said:

"The first principle of human fellowship is justice, and until that is clearly established there can be no true foundation for world peace. The farms and factories of Germany are untouched by the war. The farms and factories of Belgium and France have been ruthlessly and systematically destroyed. We want to see a settlement which assures justice and economic protection to Belgium and France, and we want to see this without further delay. When this primary obligation has been rightly met we can give our minds more freely to the great questions involved in the plan for a world league."

369TH HONORS ROOSEVELT.

Negro Fighters Place Wreath on Grave of Former President.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Feb. 23.—To make possible the park which has been planned as a memorial to the former President, "neighbors" of the late Colonel Roosevelt, as he always called them, will start out today to secure contributions in Nassau County. Options on the property, which comprises thirty-six acres, have already been secured.

Several hundred contributions had been received by Mortimer L. Schiff, Treasurer of the Oyster Bay Memorial Association. These come from all parts of the country and vary in amount. Letters from children containing pennies and quarters, with expressions of their admiration of the late President, have been received.

"We anticipate making the park one of the most beautiful in the country," said John F. Bermingham, Vice President of the association, today. "When the final plans are made Captain Archibald Roosevelt will be approached and a request made to have some of his father's trophies placed in a building on the park."

About 1,000 persons visited the former President's grave today. Among them were about fifty negro soldiers from the Fifteenth Regiment, which Colonel William Hayward commanded in France. They brought with them a large wreath, which they placed on the grave while the others stood at attention.

French Fete Brazilian Admiral.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Admiral Frontin, commanding the Brazilian squadron now in French waters, returned here today from a visit to the battlefields near Rheims and Verdun. Georges Leygues, French Minister of Marine, gave a banquet to him tonight at which the guests included the Brazilian Minister and several French naval officers of high rank.

Five American business inventions—

"All the appliances of modern business methods—the typewriter, telephone, dictaphone, card index, the filing case—are of American origin." (The Saturday Evening Post.)

The card index system referred to was originated and improved by Library Bureau. So was the filing case.

Library Bureau is not only the world's largest manufacturer of card record and filing equipment but the originator of most of the standard filing systems of today.

For 43 years Library Bureau has been rubbing elbows with practical filing problems. This experience is cumulative. It is a most dependable guide in the present-day transition from war to peace. It is yours for the asking.

TO HELP WESTERN TROOPS.

Rocky Mountain Club Secretary Says Their States Neglect Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—John Hays Hammond, President of the Rocky Mountain Club, which has been designated by the Governors of Wyoming, Montana, Washington and certain other Western States to act as their representatives in welcoming boys from the Rocky Mountain States upon their arrival in New York City from France, gave a smoker at his Kalorama Avenue residence late this afternoon to Washington newspaper correspondents, to whom the work of the club was explained.

Herbert Wall, the Secretary of the club, which has established its headquarters at 65 West Forty-fourth Street, New York City, said that reception and help work had been handicapped in the case of troops from certain States because of the failure of those States to provide the funds necessary to bear the expenses of taking care of the men on their arrival at New York. He cited as an example the fact that nothing could be done for one unit of the Sunset Division which passed through New York yesterday.

A movement is on foot among leaders in the Rocky Mountain Club to obtain the use of Madison Square Garden, for the period of demobilization, as a centre for reception, welcome, and entertainment work among returning soldiers from all the States, and the suggestion was made that Eastern, Northern, and Southern States might send representatives to participate.

The club is forming two committees in New York City to carry forward its work. One of these will be headed by Former President William Howard Taft., the other by Mrs. John Hays Hammond.

PRAISES AMERICAN NURSES.

Mme. Tauffleib Tells of Four Years of War Hospital Work.

A story of four years of hospital work in France was told yesterday by Mme. Julia H. Catlin-Park Tauffleib, wife of General Tauffleib, commander of the 31st Army Corps, French Army, who spoke to a small group of friends in the home of her sister, Mrs. Stowe Phelps, 161 East Seventy-fourth Street.

In the first year of the war Mme. Tauffleib turned her home, Château d'Annel, at Longuiel-et-Oise, into a complete hospital, and, after hundreds of poilus had been treated there, the first of the Americans wounded at Soissons were sent to Château d'Annel for treatment. Mme. Tauffleib, who often worked under fire, paid a tribute to the courage of the French soldiers and the American nurses. General Tauffleib, speaking in French, told of the great admiration the French Army had for the heroism of the nurses. For her work, Mme. Tauffleib received the War Cross and the Gold Cross from the French Government.

FOR CEMETERY IN FRANCE.

Heroes' Burial Ground Suggested as Roosevelt Memorial.

Colonel William Boyce Thompson, Chairman of the Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee, announced yesterday that one of the suggestions being considered as one of the memorials to Theodore Roosevelt was that an American National Cemetery be established in France in Belleau Wood, now called the Wood of the Marine Brigade. It was there that the American marines, fighting with other American regular troops, turned back the attack of the Prussian Guard regiments in the last German offensive on July 15 last.

The suggestion came from Miss Agnes Shufeldt of Johnson City, N. Y., who suggested that in this cemetery should be buried all the American soldier dead whose families wished them to remain where they fell in France. Not far from the spot suggested Quentin Roosevelt was buried when he fell in aerial combat with German aviators. It was the desire of Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt that his body should remain in France and a few days ago Mrs. Roosevelt visited the grave of her son.

"The grave of Quentin Roosevelt undoubtedly would be included in the national cemetery," said the announcement of the committee. "No more fitting place for a soldiers' cemetery could be found than this hallowed ground where American soldiers stopped the Germans last July. Suitable architecture and landscape treatment of this historic ground would give it the dignity and sancity of a memorial suitable to Colonel Roosevelt and worthy of those who are buried there.

"It is hoped that if it is possible for the Memorial Committee to adopt this proposal some plan of co-operation may be worked out with the American Field of Honor Association, which is planning to select and beautify an estate of 500 acres in France as an American cemetery. Representative Simeon Fess, a member of the Roosevelt Memorial Committee, recently introduced a bill in Congress to incorporate the American Field of Honor Association."

Red Cross Forwarding Photographs to Their Families in America.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Every identified grave of an American soldier in France will be photographed by the American Red Cross and the picture will be sent to the soldier's next of kin. Several hundred photographs have been taken and forwarded to relatives, and it was announced today that at the request of the War Department the Red Cross had taken over the task of photographing all graves.

Each photograph will be mounted on a cardboard folding frame on one side of which will be inscribed the record of the soldier.

Get a Real Blood Builder

A cup of coffee will brace you up, but it will not keep you up. No more will temporary tonics, which "pick you up" for a time only to let you down lower than you were before. If you're thin-blooded, worn out, and run down, you need a genuine tonic and blood reconstructive like Pepto-Mangan.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

"The Red Blood Builder"

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is helpful in promptly bracing up the system, and it is lasting in its results. By furnishing the essential elements which the blood lacks, it actually increases the number and oxygen-carrying capacity of the red blood cells. And with invigorating oxygen distributed to every cell and tissue, the body is supplied with one of the most vital elements for producing and maintaining health, vigor and vitality. Pepto-Mangan is easy to digest, agreeable to taste. Prescribed by Physicians everywhere

FRIENDLY WARNING: There is only one Pepto-Mangan and that is Gude's. Sold in bottle and package as shown here. Sold by druggists everywhere

OVERLAND TRANSIT

Last winter, during the period of heatless days, lightless nights, and freight blockades, a MACK truck broke all overland freight records between Akron and Boston.

Through deep snow—weather 15 degrees below zero, a 3½ ton MACK made the 504 mile run in 61 hours. This truck has since maintained a regular express service between the two cities—in all weather, under all conditions of road and load—a remarkable record—a good example of MACK truck performance.

"Performance Counts"

"So I am leaving in your hands the only thing that matters now —and God bless you."

THAT is part of a letter the Editor of the Woman's Home Companion received from a reader. It is but one of four thousand letters very much like it.

To be exact, 4,100 letters came (and more are coming daily) in immediate response to an announcement in the February Companion of a service to families of soldiers who seek news of boys in France.

A second announcement and description of this remarkable service is in the March Companion.

Four thousand appealing letters filled with heart breaking true stories too intimate and sacred to quote here—pleading for information about four thousand big strapping American boys in France.

Stop and think that over for a moment. What sort of a magazine is this that brings such words from its readers as those quoted above? What must be the attitude toward this magazine that mothers and young wives and girl sweethearts will confide in it in this manner?

Confidence. That is it. A confidence that is bred of long and sincere service. When the Companion described this new service, its readers knew that the service would be rendered. And they responded — in numbers really remarkable, considering the limited list of American boys not heard from.

In the March Issue of the Woman's Home Companion
Roland Phillips
describes the search in France for soldiers, killed, wounded, sick, missing, or not heard from.
This search is being carried on by the American Red Cross Bureau of Communication of which Mr. Phillips, the Companion's contributor, is a member.

Read—
"Perhaps I Can Help You" in the March Companion

The Companion is proud of having more-than-a-million readers—but it is far more proud of what created and holds those readers.

It is a worth-while feeling to have evidence that, in the hearts of these more than a million women, other magazines can not replace the Companion—any more than your host of acquaintances can replace your one real friend.

The Companion has the same confidence in its readers that its readers have in it.

That should mean something to you, too—that confidence which more than a million women readers place in the Woman's Home Companion. And that confidence which the Woman's Home Companion places in its readers.

LEWIS AGAIN GETS HONORS AT TRAPS

Wins High Scratch Prize at Travers Island in Shoot-Off Against W. B. Ogden.

OTHER CLOSE CONTESTS

R. S. Smith Takes Tournament Cup and W. R. Delehanty Scores Last Leg on Byronel Trophy.

Tracy H. Lewis, who won the Lyon Memorial Cup on Washington's Birthday at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club, again was the high scratch gunner in the week-end shoot of the Mercury Foot Club yesterday. Mr. Lewis took the event after a shoot-off against W. B. Ogden. Each had 92 out of a possible 100 targets in the event. It was an excellent total considering that a high wind made the targets duck and soar in a most bewildering manner.

The high handicap gunner was R. S. Smith, who took the event after a shoot-off. Mr. Smith also won the special handicap shoot, after another shoot-off. The special scratch shoot went to A. L. Burns, and as usual legs on the Accumulation and the Tournament Cups were scored by all gunners with 25 targets. Legs on the Byronel Cup went to the nimrods who had full scores of 50 targets.

Being the final Sunday of the month both the Tournament and the Byronel Cups came to an end. The winner of the former was R. S. Smith, who scored his third leg yesterday. W. R. Delehanty won the Byronel Trophy. He also scored his third leg yesterday. Both gunners had to shoot-off for their respective prize before they won them outright. The Accumulation Cup is a three months' affair and so did not end yesterday. W. G. Allen was the first winner of a monthly ghost prize.

The shooting committee announced the winners of the regular February shoots yesterday. Using the Lyon Memorial scores for the final shoot, it was announced that J. P. Donovan had won the Haslin Cup for the month with three legs and that the Club Cup had been taken by R. S. Smith. He also had scored three legs in the various February Saturday shoots.

The scores made yesterday are as follows:

WHITE ROSE ELEVEN WINS.

Defeats Manhattan Soccer Team by 2-to-1 Score.

In the second round of the Southern Cup tie soccer games played yesterday, the White Rose and Manhattan teams met at Astoria and the former won out by the score of 2 goals to 1. Both tallies scored by the White Rose team resulted from penalties. Manhattan's goal was shot by Heiser.

One of the cleanest soccer games played this season was that contested at Clarke's Field, Newark, yesterday in the Ship Yard challenge match between the Morse Dry Dock and Merchant Ship B teams, and ended in a no score tie. During the whole of the second period the Morse team played one man short.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 23.—A tie game with the score 2-2 was played here today between the Totowa Rovers and the Federal Ship team in the New Jersey State Cup series.

SERVICE CREWS TO RACE.

Oarsmen from Allied Forces to Row on Thames.

Preparations for an eight-oared race, open to crews composed of men who have served at the front by land, sea or air, and representative of the allied armies, to be included in the 1919 program of the Henley Royal Regatta Executive Committee, are being made by English rowing officials. It is planned to make this race a part of the interim or educational regatta which this year will replace the Royal Regatta on the Thames.

England's additional rowing activities will probably be confined this year to the promotion of a series of minor regattas on the Thames, which will correspond to the proposed interim regatta. The minor events will be conducted under the auspices of the Thames Club. Discussing the proposal to have an eight-oared event for the allied army men, The Field, a London publication, says:

"There can be little doubt that a race of this description will be arranged, and that it will be second to none in interest on the card, probably the pièce de résistance of the menu. We shall be glad to hear that a British service crew can be got up to try conclusions with our sporting Dominion militants and others. Originally C. M. Pitman, the Leander Secretary, had doubts as to the possibility of Britain figuring in the competition, on the ground that college crews would put in first claims and thereby cripple hopelessly the sources whence to man a British soldier eight. But Major Horsfall, the President of the O. U. B. C. since 1914, put a somewhat different complexion upon the situation by averring that in his opinion it would be hopeless to expect any college to be in a position to man an eight-oar before next Autumn. If so, then, anyhow, all surviving and still able-bodied U. B. C. talent would seem to remain available to represent Britain on the water. As to our Belgian and French sportsmen Allies, much as we would welcome them, we doubt there being any prospect either of leisure or of surviving aquatic manhood among them to enable them to join in the fray."

CUE TOURNEY NEARS END.

Dickerson Leads in Straight-Rail Competition at Doyle's.

Sydney Dickerson and Phillip Leonard are leading in the straight-rail billiard tournament which will be concluded this week at Doyle's Broadway Academy. George Barton and William Wathey are ahead in the snooker pool tourney, while Cahill, Reid, Brooks, Morrisson, Waldron, Finn, Dawson, and O'Neill are the survivors in the English billiard handicap which began with over fifty entries. Games in the different events will be played tonight.

The American Amateur Billiard Association will begin a series of inter-room tournaments March 3. Doyle's, Daly's, Thum's, Cranfield's, Osborne's, and the Morningside Academy will all be represented in the tournaments at three cushions and 18.2 balkline. The rooms will nominate two players for these events. Among the balkline players named are Muldaur, Klinger, Clarke, Gershel, Lewis, Schevenel, and Coleman, while the three-cushionists will be Scoville, Scudder, Spence, Cosgrove, Blumenthal, Frantzen, and Frisch.

RUDOLPH MAY PLAY WITH GIANTS AGAIN

McGraw May Make Deal for Boston Player to Bolster Up His Pitching Staff.

There is a possibility that Dick Rudolph of the Bronx, who for several years has been one of the stars on the pitching staff of the Boston Braves, may finally realize his ambition to play with the Giants again. Rudolph had a brief stay with the Giants several years ago when he was a rookie, and was farmed out to Toronto, from where he went to Boston.

While Manager McGraw has given no intimation of his plans in this connection, it is known that he would like to have Rudolph on his staff this year, and there is no question but what the Bronx athlete would like to play here. While Rudolph has done well with the Boston club, he prefers to play in New York because he would be home half the season, whereas now he is away practically all of the five or six months. Rudolph has tried several times to make a connection here and at one time it was thought he would be landed by the Yankees. The deal fell through.

Now that McGraw has practically settled his infield with the signing of Hal Chase and is well fortified in the outfield, about all that remains for him to do to shape up the club to his liking is to strengthen the pitching staff, which he realizes will have to be strong this year to hold off the Cubs. McGraw is facing more trouble with his pitching department this year than usual, and it is for that reason that he could make use of Rudolph.

Of six men who could be called his regulars, only three loom up as certainties from the opening of the season. They are Benton, Perritt, and Barnes. Ferdinand Schupp will be on hand again and says his arm is in good shape again, but there will be nothing certain in his case until he has had a good trial. He may come back as a wonder and repeat his performances of 1917, and he may not get into form at all. Fred Toney will not be available during the early part of the season. While Rudolph has become a veteran he should still be a valuable man. He is one of the real smart pitchers.

Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees will begin a tour this week to round up his numerous holdouts. He will probably make a trip to Cleveland and Grand Rapids to get a line on the troubles which Roger Peckinpaugh and Walter Pipp complain of. Huggins has nearly a month in which to get his players together before starting for Jacksonville, but he also has more players unsigned than most any other manager. However, Huggins is not alarmed over the holdouts. The differences in most cases are such that they can be easily adjusted, and the regulars, with the possible exception of Baker, are expected to be in line when the training season begins.

With the transfer of Walter Holke to the Boston Braves the Brooklyn club is now the only one which is shy a really capable first baseman. Manager Robinson is in the field for a first sacker and in the meantime is planning to develop one of his recruits for the position left vacant by the departure of Daubert. Manager Robinson has men in the army who could easily fill this position, but there is no certainty now that they will be back in time. Another deal in first basemen before the opening of the training season is, therefore, in prospect.

SCHOOLBOYS IN TANK MEET.

P. S. A. L. Championships to Begin March 1.

Competition in the first indoor swimming tournament of the Public Schools Athletic League to decide the junior high schools championships will commence in the pool of Columbia University March 1. Thereafter meets will be conducted weekly until April 7. During each week three meets will be promoted. The survivors of the tournament will subsequently compete in the P. S. A. L. individual championship tournament, which will be held in the City College pool April 25.

Seven schools have nominated teams for the junior tournament. All meets will be decided in the Columbia pool. No swimmer will be permitted to participate in more than two events. The rules of the P. S. A. L. will prohibit a student from participating in two relay swims.

The order of events will be 800-foot relay swim, fancy diving contest, 50-yard swim, 220-yard swim, 200-foot breast stroke swim, 100-yard swim, and 400-foot relay swim. The points will be awarded on a basis of eight for first team in the relays, and five, three, and one, respectively, for first, second, and third in the individual races.

The schedule follows:

March 1—Stuyvesant vs. H. S. of Commerce, Erasmus Hall vs. Townsend Harris Hall, De Witt Clinton vs. Manual training, Boys', bye.

March 8—Boys' vs. Stuyvesant, H. S. of Commerce vs. Erasmus Hall, Townsend Harris Hall vs. De Witt Clinton, Manual Training, bye.

March 15—Erasmus Hall vs. Boys', De Witt Clinton vs. H. S. of Commerce, Manual Training vs. Townsend Harris Hall, Stuyvesant, bye.

March 22—Boys' vs. De Witt Clinton, Stuyvesant vs. Erasmus Hall, H. S. of Commerce vs. Manual Training, Townsend Harris Hall, bye.

March 29—Manual Training vs. Boys', De Witt Clinton vs. Stuyvesant, Townsend Harris Hall vs. H. S. of Commerce, Erasmus Hall, bye.

April 5—Boys' vs. Townsend Harris Hall, Stuyvesant vs. Manual Training, Erasmus Hall vs. De Witt Clinton, H. S. of Commerce, bye.

April 12—H. S. of Commerce vs. Boys', Townsend Harris Hall vs. Stuyvesant Manual Training vs. Erasmus Hall, De Witt Clinton, bye.

Wrestlers Ready for Bout.

Louis Nelson, claimant of the welterweight wrestling championship, and Carl Johnson, instructor of the New York A. C., are reported in excellent condition for their match, which will be held this evening at Bothner's Gymnasium in West Forty-second Street. The grapplers will compete under catch-as-catch-can rules. The match will be decided best two in three falls. Johnson will have an advantage in weight, but Nelson expects by his cleverness and agility to offset this handicap.

SHERMAN CROSSES LINE EASY WINNER

Captures Handicap Road Race of L. I. A. C. with 200-Yard Margin Over Second Man.

Without really being forced to extend himself Joseph Sherman of the Kings County A. A. yesterday scored a victory in the handicap road race of the Long Island Athletic League, conducted over a course of about five miles, under the auspices of the Brooklyn A. A. Sherman received an allowance of four minutes. This enabled him to annex first prize with comparative ease. His time was 30:09.

Only eleven harriers started. In this small field Sherman encountered little opposition. He went to the front shortly after a mile had been covered and led thereafter to the finish. In the last half mile of the chase Bert Moore attempted to displace Sherman, but the latter was equal to the emergency and, increasing his stride, speeded to an easy victory. Sherman finished about 200 yards ahead of Moore, who carried the emblem of the Brooklyn A. A. P. Zabludofsky was the honor starter. He finished sixth in 28:54, gaining the fast time prize.

Pos.	Name and Club.	Hand'p.	Actual Time.
1	J. Sherman, Kings Co. A. A.	4:00	30:09
2	B. Moore, Brooklyn A. A.	3:45	30:40
3	A. Thomas, Comet Club	4:30	31:44
4	A. Hundertmark, Comet Club	2:15	30:24
5	G. Fredericks, Kings Co. A. A.	3:45	32:35
6	P. Zabludofsky, Kings Co. A. A.	scr.	28:45
7	A. Milofsky, Kings Co. A. A.	4:30	34:00
8	J. Bracchia, Brooklyn A. A.	4:00	34:13
9	R. Jekel, Brooklyn A. A.	3:15	34:14
10	J. Heinsohn, Kings Co. A. A.	4:00	35:12
11	L. Rawlings, Kings Co. A. A.	4:30	36:08

NILES JOINS MACOMB'S A. C.

Recently Expelled Official to be Club's Delegate.

Fred A. Niles, Chairman of the Metropolitan A. A. U. Registration Committee, who was recently expelled from the Morningside A. C., will in future represent the Macomb's A. C. as a delegate to the Board of Managers of the Metropolitan A. A. U. George Halpin, President of the Macomb's A. C., made this announcement last night, declaring at the same time that he was relinquishing his office as A. A. U. delegate, to Niles.

Assuming club affiliations so quickly after his expulsion from the Morningside A. C., will enable Niles to retain his office at the head of the Metropolitan Registration Committee. Under the A. A. U. regulations an office-holder in the association must have club affiliations.

Niles last night hotly denied the charges upon which he was expelled from the Morningside A. C., after an extended career with the organization. Niles was one of the charter members of the Winged M organization and up to a short time before his expulsion was an enthusiastic worker for the club.

DE LUCA WINS BRONX RUN.

Leads Most of Distance in Four-Mile Race.

Alfred De Luca of the St. Francis Catholic Union romped away with the Bronx Athletic League handicap road race, conducted over the course of the St. Francis C. U. yesterday. The distance was about four miles. De Luca, with the limit handicap of two minutes, went to the head of a field of seven starters shortly after the beginning of the race and held the position to the finish. His time was 22:08, and as he raced past the judges at the end of his journey he was leading S. Macchiaroli, a clubmate, by about 250 yards.

With the exception of J. Lang of the Mohawk A. C., the harriers were all members of the St. Fancis C. U. Lang started from scratch and, while he failed to make any headway against the small field, he carried off fast time prize when he covered the course in 21:19. He finished sixth.

The order of finish follows:

Alfred De Luca, (2:00,) 22:08; S. Macchiaroli, (2:00,) 22:50; M. Nargi, (2:00,) 23:00; L. Iveno, (2:00,) 23:05; J. Garofalo, (2:00,) 23:06; J. Lang, Mohawk A. C., (scratch,) 21:19; Arthur De Luca, (1:00,) 24:25.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, national women's champion, arrived today to enter the annual tennis tourney for the championship of Florida, which starts here Tuesday. It is the first time the champion has been here.

The other entries include Eleanora Sears, Mrs. Rawson Wood, Miss Harriet McCook, Miss Gladys Robbins, Mrs. Forbes Hawkes, Mrs. Frederick Lewisohn, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2d, and Mrs. George Widener. Craig Biddle and Fred Inman have arrived to enter the men's tourney.

PRAISES BOXERS IN ARMY.

Alex McLean Says A. E. F. Will Produce Real Champions.

That a number of capable heavyweight boxers will be produced in the ranks of the American Expeditionary Forces is the statement made by Alex McLean, former bicycle rider and manager of boxers, who has been appointed director of boxing for the Knights of Columbus with the Army of Occupation. McLean, writing recently from Coblenz, Germany, declared he expected to see some real champions come out of the A. E. F. tournament. Four boxers in particular attracted the attention of the K. of C. official, all of them weighing over 200 pounds and of more than six feet in height each.

The Beauty of Coffee

Any rose is beautiful, but the American Beauty rose, with its superb bud, on a straight stem three feet long, is the Queen of them all.

G. Washington's Coffee is the American Beauty rose of the Coffee world.

It is the Queen of all Coffees.

It is served on the table of the most fastidious hostess, who wants to be sure that the very crown jewel of her dinner will not fail, that no careless cook can spoil it, and that her guests shall finish their dinner with the tang of excellence.

G. Washington's Coffee, that during the war could not be had by the public, because the Government took the entire output for the boys in the trenches, is again on sale.

MUSIC

5,000 Hear Galli-Curci.

Amelita Galli-Curci, who last appeared in concert at the $14,000 Stony Wold benefit a fortnight ago, sang again to upward of 5,000 people last evening, on her own account, in the last of the Campanini concerts at the Hippodrome. The same crush of limousines and the crowds early at the doors marked the public interest in the Italian prima donna, who entered into the mood of a popular occasion of which she was the only star. The vast theatre's four box offices were closed all evening, as the house had sold out days in advance.

Among Mme. Galli-Curci's airs were the bell song from "Lakme" and the mad scene from "Lucia," while midway in the program she had Arne's "Lass With the Delicate Air" in English, and in French also Hahn's "Si Mes Vers" and a "Bourbonnaise" from an old version of "Manon Lescaut," by Auber, composer of "Fra Diavolo."

Mr. Campanini conducted Verdi's "Forza del Destino" overture, Mr. Sturani that to Mascagni's "Le Maschere," and Mr. Hasselmans led the Chicago Opera orchestra in lighter works of Charpentier and Chabrier.

There were many encores, Mme. Galli-Curci finally seating herself at the piano and singing "Home, Sweet Home." Earlier in the evening she played her own piano for an Italian "Primavera." Her other encores, besides a lullaby and some old French songs, were "Annie Laurie" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

The response of the large audience to the singing of Mme. Galli-Curci was extraordinarily friendly. Maestro Campanini led his orchestra in two short encores after the Verdi overture.

Twenty-fifth Year of Caruso.

Enrico Caruso will celebrate a birthday tomorrow, when the famous tenor will be 46 years old, having been born at Naples on Feb. 25, 1873. As he began his operatic career at 21, this season will also mark his twenty-fifth anniversary on the stage, and Director Gatti of the Metropolitan is arranging a gala performance in his honor. It will take place on Saturday evening, March 22, and Caruso will appear in scenes from his most popular rôles. As announced last evening, the proceeds will be for the benefit of the Opera Emergency Fund.

Last night's opera concert enlisted Victoria Boshko, a pianist often heard at the Metropolitan before, who played with Hageman's Orchestra the E flat concerto of Liszt, and pieces by Rachmaninoff and Schulz-Evler. Rose Ponselle sang airs from "Aida" and "Madame Butterfly," while Jose Mardones, appearing for Montesanto, who was ill, gave bass solos from "Robert the Devil" and "The Huguenots."

"Mad Scenes" for Piano.

Melba, Farrar, and other stars were among a great audience that greeted Serge Rachmaninoff's matinée in Carnegie Hall yesterday. An "all-Russian" program, every piece but one heard for the first time here, proved as remarkable as any like event since Josef Hofmann's "all-American." Mr. Rachmaninoff gave his C sharp minor prelude, hailed with applause at the first booming bass note, among three final encores. His own opening variations on a Chopin theme were gracefully done; his final "Etudes Tableaux" suggested pictures of Russia at a gallop or on the march, echoes of the labyrinthine dialogues of lovers, or Virgin figures from sacred ikons.

Medtner's "Tragedy Fragment," which brought a bravo from the boxes, was more like a "mad scene" for piano, contrasting with the same composer's naively descriptive "Fairy Stories." Scriabine's "Sonata Fantaisie" ran to the more exotic style, rolling up mountains of notes like a snowball suddenly turned to fantastic shapes. Of the ten other Scriabine pieces, preludes and études, one of the last named, from Op. 42, shared with Rachmaninoff's famous encore the honors of the day.

Symphony Men on Tour.

The Symphony Society's audience filled Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon for a rare program of Brahms, so ingratiating as not to suggest the composer's historic remark on his music: "Then let us have a bottle of Bach." Walter Damrosch conducted the symphony No. 1, with its sonorous episode of Alpine horns, and Harold Bauer, the pianist in Brahms's D minor concerto, was warmly applauded. The orchestra is leaving for a ten days' tour to Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Rochester, and Buffalo.

The Philharmonic Society's orchestra returned yesterday from a similar mid-season tour, to reappear on Thursday and Friday next in the great Schumann "Spring Symphony."

Sunday Dance Postponed.

The "dance recital" of Michio Itow, Tulle Lindahl, Paul Thevenaz, and Jessmin Howarth, which was to have been held last evening at the Selwyn Theatre, was at the last moment postponed to next Friday afternoon in the same house. The managers announced that it was "found necessary to make this change because the vigilant Sabbath Society insisted that dances in costume are not permitted on Sundays in New York City."

Sascha Votichenko, player of the tympanon, gave a concert last evening in Maxine Elliott's Theatre, assisted by Count Ilya Tolstoi, who made an address, as well as by members of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, and by Eva Gauthier, soprano, a niece of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The 69th Infantry, New York Guard, aided by a committee of New York women, gave a concert and entertainment last evening in the armory at Twenty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, the proceeds of which went to the Hospital Fund of the Women's Auxiliary of the 165th Infantry, the old 69th.

AN IMPORTANT FACTOR IN CUTTING SHOE EXPENSE

"Many months of comfort at little expense" is the way Charles A. Pearson of San Diego, California, sums up his experience with Neōlin Soles. Mr. Pearson had two pairs of shoes resoled with Neōlin Soles, and after wearing them for twenty months writes "I will have to get new shoes sometime, but so far as the soles are concerned, that time seems as far distant as when they were new."

This is typical of the experience millions are having with Neōlin Soles. Created by Science to be durable, flexible and waterproof, these soles are an important factor in cutting shoe expense. You can get them on new shoes for the whole family, and for re-soling. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

The Carry-On Benefit.

The Carry-On Benefit which David Belasco gave last night at the Belasco Theatre netted over $5,000 in tickets and $2,500 in sale of programs for the Stage Women's War Relief. For the audience it netted an evening of very unusual interest and entertainment.

The serious feature of the bill was a little war play by Ethellyn Brewer De Foe. "When Baptiste Came Back" centres in the plight of a French girl who is the victim of a German soldier, and in the emotions of her young French fiancé when he returns to find the boche child in the home of his fiancée. It is a highly dramatic situation, verging always upon tragic horror; but, as Mrs. De Foe handles it, it is ennobled by a dawning light of spiritual comprehension which reconciles the young couple to each other and promises a future of happiness. The little play was produced by Mr. Belasco and was admirably acted. Frances Starr and Pedro de Cordoba played the young people, Julia Arthur was the girl's mother and Wallace Erskin a priest.

Marie Dressler furnished the comedy high light in a burlesque of a theatrical rehearsal, "Rough Perfect," by George V. Hobart. Miss Dressler was the producing manager, and she diverted the audience by trying out a number of hopeful aspirants for theatric fame, including Hazel Dawn, Bruce McRae, Chrystal Herne, Ernest Truex, Florence Reed, Virginia Fox Brooks, Violet Heming, Janet Beecher, Marian Coakley, Jane Cowl, Kitty Dorner, Edith Taliaferro, and Henry Dixey. The satire was broad and the humor broader, but, thanks to the admirable humor of Miss Dressler and the able assistance of the applicants for histrionic honors, it kept the audience in a whirlwind of fun.

Old Bill, Bert and Alf did the "Carry-on" episode from "The Better 'Ole." There were performances by George M. Cohan and Bessie McCoy Davis, and David Belasco appeared in a film representing himself in the act of producing a play.

PLANS "BLUE BIRD" OPERA.

The Inter-Allied Art Association, founded in Paris by Maurice Maeterlinck and financed by A. J. Stern & Co., bankers, of 57 Rue de l'Acade, has opened an office at the Century Theatre, in charge of Henry Russell, a member of the Executive Committee. The object is "not to collect funds, but to use any of the arts for propaganda which lend themselves to this purpose." The King and Queen of Belgium and the President of the French Republic are among the patrons, and M. Pichon, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and M. Laferre, Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts, are the two honorary Presidents.

Among the members of the American committee, which is not yet complete, are the Duchesse de Chaulnes, Duchess of Manchester, Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. William P. Thompson, and Mrs. Arthur Iselin.

Henry Russell said yesterday that, if America and the Allies were "to counteract the active propaganda of the enemy, artists of genius must be persuaded to write poems, create monuments, paint pictures, compose music, and write plays to perpetuate in the minds of the people the evils of militarism.

"Maeterlinck has set an example in this respect," he said, "in writing a realistic drama based on an episode contained in the White Book of Belgium, which concerns the Burgomaster of a small town and his family after the country was captured by the Prussians. The play will be produced next month by W. R. MacDonald, who has leased it from the Inter-Allied Art Association.

"The first production by the organization itself will be the new opera written by Albert Wolf, a young composer from Alsace, on Maeterlinck's play, 'The Blue Bird,' which will be sent on a tour round the world, commencing in New York, after its production in Paris next November.

"The Inter-Allied Art Association will take care of American students in Europe and, where necessary, will finance and encourage young talent. It will also combat Germany's policy of suppressing any art which is not of German origin, and will develope and strengthen the artistic relations between America and her allies."

THE SCREEN

Those who have enjoyed Captain Bairnsfather's famous characters on the stage will inevitably make comparisons when they see the screen version of "The Better 'Ole" at the Strand this week, and the picture will suffer thereby, for, without doubt, there will be many to whom Old Bill and Bert and Alf on the screen will lack the life of "the three musketeers" as impersonated by Mr. Coburn and his companions. But, despite the popularity of the play at the Cort, there are many who have not met Old Bill personally and these will find him, in much of his real character, at the Strand. And even some of those who have heard Old Bill's "'Ullo" will be able to hear it in fancy when they see him in silent pictures, for Charles Rock, the English actor who took the part, gave a faithful performance before the camera. The same may be said of Arthur Cleave and High E. Wright, as Bert and Alf.

"The Better 'Ole" on the screen, although weaker in characterization and atmosphere than the stage production, is still "The Better 'Ole." It has the unmistakable stamp of Captain Bairnsfather's human humor and it gives what will be to many an illuminating and thoroughly enjoyable picture of life in the British trenches, as represented in his cartoons. This much must be said and not withdrawn, but it should be added that the screen version of "The Better 'Ole" would have been even closer to its original if, going around or over the play, it had gone straight back to the original drawings for its inspiration. Although the photoplay, if it may be called such, includes many scenes not on the stage, it is essentially the stage work adapted to the screen, and, it would seem, the English producers missed a great opportunity in this taking of their material at second hand. Also the introduction of a "love element" in the person of Old Bill's niece and a Soldier Poet remains foreign to the production throughout and does not help it.

The Strand program is built largely around its feature. "Airs of Old England," played by the orchestra, and "An Episode in the Trenches," with Malcolm McEachern, provide an appropriate setting for the picture.

The Rialto program this week is predominately comedy, and good comedy—"The Girl Dodger," with Charles Ray, and "A Night in the Show," with Charles Chaplin, the latter being the first of a series of Chaplin revivals announced by Mr. Riesenfeld.

Charles Ray's play is a nonessential piece of nonsense, but it gives Ray abundant opportunities for some of his best comic pantomime, and this makes it worth while. Whether in serious or comedy parts, Ray is a screen actor of the first rank, not just an actor posing for a series of photographs, but an actor who knows how to make the photographs live. Watch his hands, watch his feet. They talk. It would be easy to produce a photoplay with him in the leading rôle, for which subtitles would be superfluous. He brings screen acting to such a high point, sometimes, that one enthusiastic for the development of the art feels an impulse to cry out 'Ray, 'Ray, 'Ray!" In "The Girl Dodger" he has adequate support from Doris Lee and Hal Cooley, in prominent parts, and Jerome Storm, the director.

Charles Chaplin, farce pantomimist without equal, is as funny as ever in "A Night in the Show," and it seems a safe prediction that Mr. Riesenfeld's faith in it will be justified. It goes back to the custard-pie days and the simple comedy of smash-and-smear-up everything and everybody, but Chaplin is in it with his inimitable pantomime, and this gives it a quality not possessed by other farces of its age.

Dr. Leonard S. Sugden's second Alaskan picture is also at the Rialto this week. The doctor, in his lecture accompanying the exhibition, somewhat boastfully states its charms, but there will be few who will feel that he overstates them. In Prizma colors he has pictured ice fields, glaciers, and the "birth of bergs,' which is their breaking off from mountains of ice. The splendor of the scenes needs the color camera. It cannot be described, except possibly by a poet. But the pictures are there for any one to see.

"Paid in Full," with Pauline Frederick, and "Kiddies," a Prizma picture, are the chief photographic offerings at the Rivoli this week.

"The Light of Victory," with Monroe Salisbury, and "His First and Last," with Charles Chaplin, are at the Broadway.

"The End of the Road," a photoplay made for the War Department's Commission on Training Camp Activities as part of its social hygiene campaign, was shown last night at the Plymouth Theatre under the auspices of the Association of Grand Jurors. It will be reviewed in THE TIMES motion picture department next Sunday.

Passion Play Starts Fifth Year.

A preliminary performance for the fifth season of America's passion play, "Veronica's Veil," was held yesterday for an audience of children in St. Joseph's Auditorium, West Hoboken, N. J., where the public series will open on March 9. The Chairman of the Executive Committee is Colonel Louis D. Conley, formerly of the "Fighting 69th," and the directors of the drama are Fathers Conrad and Bernard. The characters yesterday included as Christus, William Jaeggs, who succeeded Joseph Halsch, impersonator of Christ during four seasons and at present in the navy. There were also Joseph F. Koch, Minnie Heinmann, Leta Ingalls, and Wilma Rectenwald, comprising the family of Caiaphas, the High Priest. The Veronica was Madaline Bigalka, the Judas, Leonard Mathews, and Nero, Frank Moore.

$200,000 Damage at Is-sur-Tille.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—Only one building at the American camp at Is-sur-Tille, and not the whole cantonment (as first reported), was destroyed yesterday by fire, according to a later dispatch to the Havas Agency from Dijon. The loss, including clothing and equipment, was estimated at more than $200,000.

For The Eye Of The Coffee Drinker

Those who are wise these days are seeing not only better health, but Economy in a Change From Coffee to POSTUM

Neither the war nor pre-war conditions have as yet increased the price of POSTUM CEREAL or INSTANT POSTUM.

POSTUM—both forms—has always been economical. Besides, it contains no "caffeine" or any other harmful substance.

POSTUM is good for the health—the delight of young and old—an economical, nourishing, delicious beverage. Every day—

A LEAGUE OF DESPOTS.

Senator REED sounds high and clear the note of alarm. Little attention did he give in his Senate speech to miserable interrogatories about the fate of the Constitution and the Monroe Doctrine under the League of Nations. His mind was fixed upon the all-embracing and awful menace of the League as a conspiracy of monarchs and despots against this land of liberty. "Shall we surrender with the "pen what WASHINGTON gained by his "sword?" Shall we accept government "partly by the people and partly by Kings and Emperors"? A victor in the war, shall we emerge from the strife "a mere constituent "State of a league dominated by European monarchies and Asiatic despots"? Great Britain is an empire, Italy a monarchy, Japan "a monarchy of despotism," France a republic, the United States a republic. "Three monarchies and two republics. Who will control it, I ask "again?"

When Senator REED concluded his speech Senators from both sides of the chamber crowded around him for handshaking and congratulations. Applause upon the floor was redoubled in volume by the enthusiasm of the galleries. Five minutes of tumultuous demonstration set the seal of Senatorial and popular approval upon the Missouri Senator's impassioned denunciation of President WILSON's attempt to put the United States in vassalage to the Kings of effete Europe and the despots of burnt-out Asia. We should despair of our country if such a speech as this, an eloquent warning against the forfeiture of our liberties, delivered in the Senate on the anniversary of WASHINGTON's birth, and adorned with the customary invocation of the memories of Concord Bridge, Lexington, and the coon-skin caps of the embattled farmers, should call forth only that cold and perfunctory applause which might mark the conclusion of an expository address upon the Post Office Appropriation bill.

If this be in fact a League of Despots that Mr. WILSON has helped to contrive, every American will feel that something ought to be done about it. But does Mr. REED believe in his heart that the American people will be much moved by his speech against the League of Nations? Will they take his word for it that the League is compounded of European Kings and Asiatic despots, or will they calmly consider the facts? There is a British Empire, made up of self-governing dominions. The United Kingdom is a monarchy where the people's rule is as little hampered as it is in our own Republic. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE is the despot we have to fear there. France as a sister Republic gets exceptional treatment from Mr. REED. Italy, however, is a monarchy, and SONNINO is the man against whom suspicion must be directed. The Asiatic despot must be the Emperor of Japan. He would be astounded, and his people with him, to hear himself so described. But stay. There is a despot, a real one, if we mistake not the sole relic of feudal absolutism on earth—the Negus of Abyssinia.

If that fierce African potentate is to be reckoned with, then there is point and force in Senator REED's speech against the League—otherwise not, decidedly not. Respect due to the Senatorial toga forbids us to describe this speech as fustian, but in solemn truth was it not, for all the applause it received from its Washington audience, where all audiences are proverbially "against the Administration," was it not a pompous battering down of an open door? Mr. REED's picture of the League of Nations shows this Republic helplessly enmeshed in the snares of a hostile band of monarchical conspirators. But Missouri schoolboys know that in every one of the countries that will be our fellow-members—we make exception of Abyssinia and her illustrious Negus—the affairs of government are in the hands of a Parliament and a Ministry. The peoples of those lands are self-governing. Do we stand in such fear of democracies that we must refuse to join them in an earnest effort to establish the reign of peace and justice on earth?

If this be a true picture that Senator REED holds up to our view, if the nations who are to be our partners in this undertaking are harboring those covert designs against our rights and liberties as a sovereign State which he imputes to them, then their ill-will and their knavish plots will be an imminent peril to us whether we form a League or not, and obviously a far greater peril without the League than with it. A covenant with them would give us some protection. If we must beware of that as a dangerous entanglement, then we should cease our demobilization and make instant preparation for creating and maintaining a permanent military establishment of not less than four million men, and instead of a paltry navy equal to England's we must have three times her sea power. With all the world plotting our overthrow, masking malignant designs behind a pretended friendship, we must put ourselves in readiness for defense. The next gale that sweeps from Missouri will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms.

The American people are an uncommonly sensible folk. We take occasion to record here our firm belief that they will refuse to be scared by Senator REED's horrendous conjuration of anointed European Kings and whiskered Asiatic despots. But let the Senator beware of misjudging the sentiments of his countrymen upon one important matter. They have a horror of war. They are going to accept the League of Nations unless he and Mr. BORAH and Mr. POINDEXTER have a better guarantee of peace. What do they propose?

GERMANY'S BILL OF COSTS.

Dr. SCHIFFER, the German Minister of Finance, is asking for a loan of 25,300,000,000 marks. That is Germany's largest internal loan, and the requisition comes just when the Allies are calculating how much they shall ask from Germany for reparation, and perhaps the costs of bringing Germany to a paying frame of mind. Even Germany is beginning to see that she is prostrate before those whom she defied and outraged. When that conviction is complete it will be time to present the bill. It should be proportioned to the crime and to ability to pay. Germany's fine should be all that her resources will bear, but not more, for that would defeat the purpose of the levy. The rate that stops the traffic produces no revenue. It would be poor policy to demand more than could be paid on a marshalling of Germany's resources.

Nor should either the demand or the resources be underestimated. The amount fixed never could be increased, and if made too small it would lose something of effect in producing a penitent frame of mind. On the other hand, if the demand is made too great and should prove crushing it could be reduced. The prospect of a reduction conditioned on good behavior would give Germany something to look forward to and would encourage her under labors which properly should be hard. Something in the nature of an indeterminate sentence would have much to recommend it, the conditions of commutation being made known when the sentence is imposed.

Germany is economically weaker than before the war by her loss of man power and by the check to her predatory methods of commerce. The man power will be made good with less delay than in almost any other nation. The check to her unfair competition is one of the benefits for which the world has paid dear. The fitting of the figures to these broad outlines is difficult, and more within the power of the Supreme Economic Council than of others. At the threshold lies the question of what shall be done with Germany's internal debt. Internal debts are always subordinated to exterior debts, for reasons especially applicable to Germany's case. It is not permissible that Germany should be allowed to plead interior interest obligations on the means of making war in priority to a similar annual charge to pay the cost of repairing her ravages. It may be argued that to make Germany's internal interest subordinate would upset her finances. It would, but less than might be thought. There is something like a balance of debits and credits in Germany's internal loans. They are not all paid for, and the loss of the interest credits would be offset to an uncertain but considerable degree by the interest debits payable in taxes by the holders of her bonds.

Due attention should be given to Germany's plea of poverty and non possumus, but they should not be provided for her. She could not complain if a starting point were found in the estimates of her earning power by KARL HELFFERICH, Director of the Deutsche Bank, and once Finance Minister. He put Germany's national income in 1913 at ten billion dollars, and then she increased her wealth faster than almost any other nation. Germany could certainly live on half that under post-war conditions, and could probably thrive after paying her victims a third of it.

It is necessary to consider that Germany's present economic conditions are not productive, for either herself or her victims. German unemployment is an external and internal threat. Revolution and the necessity of allied occupation to check Bolshevism are dangers which the Allies might help Germany to escape in the common interest. German industrial revival will be slow, in part because of the difficulty of Germany's supplying herself with imports of raw materials. But just across the German borders there are an excess of work and a deficiency of workers. Here in America there is a surplus of materials, and also a reservoir of credit without duplicate on earth. It is not our sole task to fit together these complementary economic factors. Naturally no country longs to supply Germany with credit or materials for her recuperation. Tentatively it might be suggested that if the Supreme Council should indorse Germany's indemnity the credits might be offered in exchange to any nation willing to accept them in payment for materials, or for advances to hire Germans on the work of restoration in the ravaged countries. Perhaps the materials might be sold more cheaply if earmarked for that uncommercial use. The Germans would be expected to work as cheaply as others at least, or even perhaps at a controlled lower wage, on that benevolent form of reparation. No doubt there are objections to that plan, as there might be to any other. But it is sure that the paralysis to the world's industrial processes would be relieved quickly and with especial benefit to Belgium and France.

CAIRO TO AUSTRALIA BY AEROPLANE.

In an address to Australasians in London on Feb. 20 General Sir FREDERIC H. SYKES, Controller of Civil Aviation, announced that the British Government had been giving a good deal of attention to establishing an air route from Cairo to Australia for commercial uses. Doubtless some of his hearers were mildly amused. Aviation on such a scale they were unable to visualize; the distance was immense, the difficulties were insuperable. Yet Major Gen. SALMOND, commanding the Royal Air Forces in the Middle East, flew from Cairo to Karachi in the Bombay Presidency, 2,548 miles, with stops, in thirty-six hours in December last. The distance traversed was more than one-third of a direct route to the northwest coast of Australia. Other aviators could have taken up the enterprise where General SALMOND paused on his journey to Delhi, crossed India to Calcutta, skirted the northern shore of the Bay of Bengal into Burma, steered for Rangoon, and made their way down the Malay Peninsula to Singapore, without flying over any water. Between Singapore and Sumatra the Strait of Malacca is only fifty miles wide, less than one hour of flying.

Four hundred and fifty miles southeast of the point where aviators would reach Sumatra is Sunda Strait, twenty miles wide, separating Sumatra from Java. Beyond Java, 600 miles long, the other and smaller Sunda Islands are strung out, Bali, Lombok, Sumbawa, Floris, Adenara, Lomblen, Panta, Ombay, and Timor, with only narrow channels between them. Between Amanabong in Timor and Northwestern Australia there are 300 miles of blue water. From Cairo to Singapore there is no sea for the aviator to cross, and from Singapore to Australia the Sunda Islands, for 2,000 miles, afford what is practically an all-land route. At Amanabong the flying man would only have to tighten his belt and settle himself for a four hours' sprint.

It is, of course, true that before so long a journey through the air could be attempted the way would have to be blazed by engineers and mechanicians, whose concern it would be to map out and construct landing stations; and before them would go pioneers, chiefly men of the diplomatic service, to arrange terms and conditions in Asia Minor, Persia, Beluchistan, and in the Sunda Island archipelago; elsewhere the aviators would pass over territory of the British Empire. Negotiations with the progressive Dutch in the Sunda Islands would take little time, and there should be no problem in those lands in Western Asia where British influence is now paramount as a result of the great war.

Nowhere along the route is there dearth of places of importance, although it is obvious that the line of travel would be irregular. To India it would run through Jerusalem, Damascus, Bagdad, Ispahan, Shiraz, and thence through Southern Persia to Bela in Beluchistan, which is less than 200 miles from Karachi. Over India, Burma, and the Malay Peninsula British organization would have a clear field, and in the Sunda Islands the Dutch would provide landing stations in the principal towns. Propaganda and some expenditure of money would be necessary, no doubt, among tribes that the Dutch govern with more or less friction, the aviator not always being sure of coming down in centres of civilization. Plenty of flying men would volunteer for the Cairo-Australia air route. Preparations might take a year; probably less, for enterprises of greater difficulty were pushed through during the war in an amazingly brief time.

To read the elaborate report of the Civil Aerial Transport Committee, organized in the Summer of 1917, is to understand how thoroughly the British are in earnest about converting the airship to commercial uses. On that committee are some of the most eminent soldiers and civilians of the empire. They have studied civil aerial transport from every point of view, the engineer's, the manufacturer's, the merchant's, the lawyer's, the financier's, and the statesman's. They are not dreamers but practical men, and they believe that the airship can be used for transportation all over the earth as an auxiliary to the railway train, the motor vehicle, and the steamship. They have faith that the time is not far distant when the airship will play an important part in the affairs of the world. A London to Capetown service may be established before the end of the year. Pioneers are already in the field in Africa between Cairo and the Cape of Good Hope, and they are not letting the grass grow under their feet. It would be well for us in America to consider this observation in the British committee's report: "It is scarce-"ly necessary to point out the ex-"treme importance to this country "[England] of being first in the field "in the matter of aerial transport."

THE TRUTH ABOUT RUSSIA.

The Senate committee seems to be doing very well in finding out the truth about Russia and, what is perhaps as important, the truth about Americans who talk about Russia. It may be handicapped a little by being serious-minded, and perhaps also by insufficient understanding of the boudoir Bolsheviki who would reorganize the world by endowing organs of the [illegible]; but it is getting the evidence. For example, it was shown that a young woman from Oregon who had been doing much propaganda for Bolshevism here thinks America has no right to interfere in Russia, but professes to be entirely neutral on the right of Russia to interfere in America. The lady's apparent inability to see any difference between a newspaper which sends a correspondent with credentials and a paper which buys the correspondent's writings (and credentials) after she returns is a little thing in itself, perhaps a mere bit of terminological inexactitude, but it throws some light on her value as a witness.

A gentleman formerly of the pulpit, but now exercising his talents in a wider field, says that people whose testimony differs from his are prejudiced. He himself, he says, is a partisan, but unprejudiced and truthful.

The hearing has brought out the fact that one of the editors of The Masses—the chief publication of those who advocate the social revolution here, a paper which howled to high heaven over the injustice of its treatment at the hands of the Grand Jury and the Postmaster General—thinks that papers which agitate for the overthrow of the Government should be suppressed. But what Government? The Bolshevist Government in Russia; to agitate against our Government is a different matter. The same witness said that he might presently open a Bolshevist propaganda bureau, financed by "some wealthy women in "New York who have more money "than they know what to do with." This financing of Bolshevism by certain persons of wealth is no new thing, but it may be doubted if it is the aimless enterprise which our Bolshevik would suggest. The dictatorship of the proletariat is a theory; in practice it is always the dictatorship of a few astute men who may or may not belong to the proletariat. LENINE is no proletarian, and even TROTZKY could at best claim to have been at certain periods what is known among Socialists as a "white-collar slave." If New York should turn over its Government to a Soviet tomorrow, the leading spirit might be Mr. HILLQUIT, who is not only an employer of labor and an owner of stocks and bonds, but by virtue of his interest in a coal company would be classified as a "profiteering plutocrat by so sturdy a bourgeois as Mayor HYLAN.

Yes, we seem to be learning. A group of radicals who perhaps are not Bolsheviki, but who believe in fighting fire with gasoline, holds that an impartial and accurate picture of Russia is not being given by the witnesses, and suggests that the committee hear a number of other gentlemen more sympathetic with the present régime. By all means let them be heard. We are getting useful information about Bolshevism in Russia and the kind of people who love Bolshevism from those people themselves.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Familiar Kind of Criminal. As has been noted by several of the Paris papers, the man who shot at and wounded M. CLEMENCEAU is of the clearly defined type to which have belonged the great majority of those who are conveniently described as "regicides." In this, as in many other recent instances, the victim selected for assassination was not a King, but he occupies a position which, as regards its political efficiency, more closely resembles that conventionally and popularly ascribed to monarchical rulers than does the position held by most Kings of the modern sort—by Kings, that is, who rule, but do not govern.

COTTIN, like so many other regicides, is young, literate, and yet ill-educated, of the working class and subconsciously aggrieved by his incompetence to get out of it, and moved at last to murder through the concentration of his fanatical hatred upon a single outstanding personality representing for him the tyranny to which he can ascribe his own insignificance and inferiority. Hopeless of fame, he reached eagerly for infamy as the one available means of gaining the attention for which he was hungry.

COTTIN has been compared to PRINCIP, the boy who fired at Serajevo the shot that shook the world, but the circumstances of the case recall by a closer analogy the BALTHASAR GERARD who, a better or luckier marksman, slew WILLIAM of Orange, for the rebellious Netherlander was not far unlike what M. CLEMENCEAU is believed by many Frenchmen to be for France—the one, or the most, trustworthy defense against alien aggression.

A Similar Mixture of Motives. That GERARD was a religious fanatic and hated WILLIAM THE SILENT as the great heretic who most impeded PHILIP's achievement of dominion over all Europe, and that he was not indifferent to the possibility of earning the huge reward offered by the DUKE OF PARMA to anybody who would kill the one enemy of Spain who could neither be bought nor frightened—these peculiarities do not necessarily set the Burgundian apart from the French assassin. Anarchy, too, is a religion of a sort, or at any rate it takes the place of religion in anarchist minds, and it is not impossible that even if COTTIN was not risking his life for a reward, he did it under a threat of death if he failed to perform a task imposed upon him by lot, which comes to much the same thing.

COTTIN can congratulate himself that he committed his crime in the twentieth century instead of the sixteenth. In all probability he will be put to death, but he will be subjected to none of the frightful tortures that GERARD had to suffer at the hands of the angry and frightened Netherlanders, who realized the value of their Prince vastly more after they had lost him than they did while he was alive.

Better Not Raise the License. With the motive offered for the passage of the Sullivan law regulating the possession and carrying of pistols and other deadly weapons there is, of course, general sympathy, only the criminal classes failing to share it. That the law, however, has not been very successful in achieving the commendable end it was expected or designed to attain is only too obvious. A harsh critic would have some excuse for saying that it is ignored by those who alone would make nefarious use of deadly weapons and is effective only in imposing inconvenience and expense on those whose one purpose in arming themselves would be legitimate defense of their persons and property.

The law has done something more than that, and even if the criminal-minded do have little trouble in acquiring lethal implements, it gives the police a hold on them which otherwise would not be theirs.

There is now under consideration a proposal considerably to raise the cost of pistol licenses. For this the only excuse given is that it would increase the flow of money into the Police Pension Fund, but that is doubtful, as the number who now contribute in this way would probably be decreased by such a change. Some who with not much reluctance pay a dollar a year would escape the tax altogether, if conscientious, by taking the not very large risk incidental to being entirely unarmed at home or abroad, or, if not so scrupulous, by keeping without license a weapon which they have no intention of misusing.

Criminals do not care what the tax is, for they never pay it, whether large or small.

The fundamental weakness of a law of this sort is that its existence is resented by not a few people who claim to be, and as a matter of fact are, fairly good citizens. They are wrong in holding it an infringement of their constitutional rights, but that feeling persists, in spite of decisive rulings by the courts, and those who entertain it are especially difficult to convince that they should pay for the privilege of keeping a revolver in a drawer at home or at their places of business with which to confront burglars in the hour of need. An attempt to raise the tax to $25, or even to $5, a year would probably lead to a vehement demand for the repeal of the law, and that, everything considered, is not desirable.

New York Respects Policemen. Commissioner ENRIGHT, in his speech at the Broadway Association luncheon, made a wholly unnecessary plea when he asked public support and good-will for his department. That department has always had both. New York not only wants to like and admire its policemen; it does like and admire them—with good reason, too, for its eyes tell it what a handsome and stalwart body of men the police are, as seen whenever they parade, and there is hardly a resident of the city who does not know personally one or more policemen from whom he has more or less often received kindly, courteous, and effectual assistance in meeting the various dangers of the urban streets.

As for the corruption that at various times has crept into the police force, it has been directly known only by the corrupters—the people who were willing to pay for the privilege of doing something illegal.

Hardly ever has criticism of the police been directed at individual members of the rank and file, as such. Usually it has been aimed, where it was deserved, at the higher or highest grades where the politician exerts his always evil influence. There is where Commissioner ENRIGHT should direct his attention if he wants to preserve public support and good-will for the police, for there only is there the slightest danger of losing either.

THE NEW MAN.

Standing among the waiting crowds
  When soldier boys were coming back,
I saw men walking in their shrouds—
  All, all in shrouds of black!
I looked, and I, too, had a shroud,
But no one saw it, in the crowd.

Happy we were and yet there fell
  A shade upon our happiness,
And every one looked down to find
  Some trouble in his dress.
None knew but I, in all that crowd,
That each of us had on his shroud.

The soldiers came and women wept
  And men, too, cried, and laughed, and cried.
(And some there were who stood apart,
  Because their sons had died.
These separate watchers wore no
    shrouds,
And they alone of all the crowds.)

I looked and turned my head away—
  There was a flame about the place,
Unbearable, as if we saw,
  Like Moses, face to face * * *
I looked again, and cried aloud,
Forgetting that I wore a shroud!

For we had read in common men—
  Our saviors—what the Scripture saith,
That he who gives himself puts off
  The body of this death.
They walked as angels in the crowds,
But we—must still go, wearing shrouds.

DOROTHY LEONARD.

SEES WORLD LEAGUE OUR GOD-SENT DUTY

Dr. Wilton Merle Smith Says Senate Criticism Is a Discredit to America.

DEFENDS RUSSIAN JEWS

Dr. Wise Quotes Kerensky to Show Majority Are Anti-Bolshevist.

In his sermon yesterday in the Central Presbyterian Church, at Madison Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, the Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle Smith praised the general scheme of the League of Nations as containing great possibilities for good and referred to the recent adverse speeches in Washington as "the pompous, windy oratory of the United States Senate."

"Few things stand out so markedly to the discredit of America," said Dr. Merle Smith, "as a certain type of garrulous statesmanship without vision or highest patriotism. The main charge is that the League of Nations commits this country to an interference in foreign quarrels, that it means unnecessary foreign entanglements, and that we should live our own life here in peace and let Europe and Asia go hang. Perfectly right, old windbag, there is no reason that can appeal to a man of your measure, a man of your littleness and selfishness. Let us live our own little life, pile up our dollars and have no share in any world-wide responsibilities. This is the anti-imperialism of the last years of the last century. Can it stand for a moment before the awakened conscience of this land?

"The more I study the plan of the League of Nations, the more it commends itself to me as the greatest document in its far-reaching significance that the world has ever seen. It plans a great delegated body from the five great nations, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, and America, with representatives from other nations to be chosen. There is also provision made for the rule over weak peoples of the earth by representatives of the League who will seek to lead them into self-government, the League itself preventing aggression at all times by stronger powers. It almost makes war impossible. It seems to be a document not only profound but of paramount significance. It is doubtful if the world has ever seen a proposition which embodied such tremendous possibilities of good for mankind.

"God has forced us into leadership. Our influence counts more than that of any other nation. Europe has become all at once a next-door neighbor. We cannot avoid entanglements and world responsibilities, and no big, noble heart wants to avoid them. There is a noblesse oblige about our greatness, our economic resources, our noble experiment in free government. Wealth and culture today recognize the debt they owe to weakness and want. The greatest people on earth cannot live to itself. Every notion of nobility, of Christianity, demands that we hold our cherished wealth, our resources, our institutions, our education and attainments for the benefit of all the world. God calls us to lead other nations in the ushering in of peace and justice on this earth, no matter what the cost may be. To seek to evade this God-sent responsibility is monumental weakness and cowardice."

Quotes Kerensky's Figures.

In the course of an address on "Bolshevism vesus Jews: Some Facts and More Fictions," Dr. Wise, preaching before the Free Synagogue at Carnegie Hall, referred to the fact that much of so-called Bolshevist and pro-Bolshevist sympathy in America had been and continued to be pro-German or anti-ally. The movement may in some part, he said, have been born out of unrest and social revolt, but its methods were criminal and its effects pro-German.

As for the number of Jews who are said to be Bolshevists, Dr. Wise called attention to the figures of Prince Lvoff and of Kerensky, that 95 and 99 per cent., respectively, of the Jewish population of Russia were anti-Bolshevist. The strongest Jewish Socialist organization in Russia, the Bund, is the most powerful and implacable foe of Bolshevism, he added.

Dr. Wise explained that so many leaders of the Bolshevist movement were Jews—though uniformly apostate Jews—by the fact that the leaders of Bolshevism are uniformly Russians who had been exiled and who returned to liberated Russia. The largest number of exiled Russians, he said, was made up of Jews, for most of those who for a generation had been driven out of Russia as menacing to Czarism were Jews. Therefore the apparently disproportionate number of Jews in the leadership of Bolshevism corresponded almost exactly to the disproportionate number of Jews who had been exiled and scourged out of Russia under the reign of the Czars.

"Though it is true beyond the peradventure of doubt that the great and overwhelming majority of Russian Jews are anti-Bolshevist," he said, "it must be admitted that some of the Jews of Russia who have long been outlawed have at last become outlaws. The hand of Russia has been against all Jews, and the hand of some Jews is now against Russia. It is the plague of Jewish homelessness that has in part come upon the head of Russia. The minimum of natively law-abiding and orderly Jews, who have become infected with the poison of Bolshevism is a warning, solemn and terrible, to the world that a people cannot forever be dealt with after the manner of outlawry without lapsing in some part to the level of the outlaw. The miracle is not that some Jews should raise their hands against Russia, but that hundreds of thousands of Jews should have taken up arms on behalf of the Russia which had wronged and denied and crucified them for generations."

Refers to Eisner Assassination.

Dr. Wise, in closing, referred to the assassination of Eisner, the Bavarian Premier, who was a Galician Jew as Trotzky is a Russian Jew. It was Eisner, the Jew, the anti-Bolshevist, he said, who alone in Germany dared to put the blame on the right shoulders. For the sin of speaking the truth unafraid, he added, Eisner paid the penalty with his life, shot down by some miserable princeling, who felt that his caste was dishonored by the exposure of the truth through the medium of this Polish Jew.

The Peace Conference should cultivate a universal language, declared Dr. S. Edward Young at a Polish meeting in the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, last night. Some language or device of the allied nations—Esperanto or what not—that will enable them to talk together when they come together, should be adopted, he said. "After a century and a quarter, Canada is still almost two nations along the bilingual lines of French and English," he added. "The Slavic language has always been a more vital unity than any of the empires or political divisions into which it has been broken. With the tongue go countless affinities and prejudices that may be intangible enough; but they affect the blood and the soul of men. Let the Peace Conference call in the linguists and the ethnologists and set them to work at the long, long task of promoting a common utterance and a common literature, and by so much will the diverse peoples of earth approach the era of understanding and hence confidence, which all the international conventions to date seem to have furthered only negligibly."

The Rev. Howard C. Robbins, Dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, addressed 1,400 girl students from sixteen private schools in New York City and its vicinity at a special victory service held in the cathedral yesterday afternoon. Dean Robbins lauded the part played by the young manhood and young womanhood of America in the war, and spoke of the youthful, but no less fervent patriotism and force the nation's young people exerted in its ultimate prosecution to victory.

DENIES CARNEGIE AID.

League to Enforce Peace Resents "Slurs" Against Wilson and Taft.

In a statement issued last night by Herbert S. Houston, National Treasurer of the League to Enforce Peace, the charge made by Senator Sherman that the campaign of the League to Enforce Peace was being financed by Andrew Carnegie was denied flatly. "The league has never had a dollar either from Mr. Carnegie or any of the Carnegie foundations," the statement said, and explained that this was not because the organization would have regarded such contributions as "tainted money," but because the Directors of the Carnegie Fund had seen fit to expend it in other ways. The statement asserted that former President Taft, head of the league, had himself contributed generously both in time and money, and expressed the opinion that "cheap and false slurs against President Wilson and Mr. Taft" would not convince the American people that they and the late Colonel Roosevelt were less zealous guardians of the Monroe Doctrine, Washington's Farewell Address, and the Constitution than Senators Borah, Reed, Poindexter, and Sherman.

After pointing out that all three, Taft, Roosevelt, and Wilson, were supporters of the league idea, the statement asserted that "straw men stalking through the Senate cannot frighten the people into believing that these men were wrong and were throwing the traditional policies of the country to the winds."

The Senators attacking the league idea were accused of offering nothing in the nature of a permanent peace plan, but of "crying aloud for an impossible isolation in a world that no longer exists."

On the other hand it was asserted that the living leaders of the movement already affirmatively agreed upon by the vote of fourteen nations at the Peace Conference, were standing courageously for a constructive policy, rather than adhering to mere reactionaryism, and were looking the facts of the day in the face, just as did patriots in other critical periods of American history.

ADVOCATES PARTY HARMONY

Madden Says Speakership Contest Must Not Cause Disruption.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The interference of Senators Lodge and Penrose and Will H. Hays in the Speakership contest, which has had a great influence in strengthening the candidacy of Representative F. H. Gillett, will not break the Republican Party into factions in the next Congress, in the opinion of Representative Martin B. Madden, manager of the Mann campaign. With the Speakership contest to be settled finally in the Republican caucus on Feb. 27 and Gillett's selection reasonably assured, the younger and more independent Republicans are exerting their influence to force a change in the traditional practice of selecting Chairmanships by seniority succession.

This movement, which seemed to have been linked inseparably with the Gillett candidacy, has become less pronounced as the election of the Massachusetts member becomes more certain. The forces advancing Mr. Mann were opposed to any change in the procedure, and now it develops that many of those supporting Gillett are of the same opinion, because they fear that bitter dissension may follow if older members on committees are displaced for younger ones, even though the latter should be better fitted to discharge the duties.

Mr. Madden, before making his statement forecasting a united party, said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that he was positive the House would not ignore the seniority succession tradition in making up the committees. This does not mean that there will not be one or two changes. But rising above the bitter factional struggles which have marked the Speakership campaign in the last two months is the one dominant note that the country will not sanction a divided party. Therefore harmony probably will prevail, no matter what the result of the Speakership contest.

"I hope and believe I speak for all Republicans in the House," said Representative Madden, "when I say that I shall do everything, both now and after the caucus, to assist in having every Republican member of the House feel the importance and necessity of entering upon the important problems that confront the country with a singleness of purpose which has for its object the promotion of the nation's welfare.

"This is no time for politics. There are too many big problems to be considered and acted upon. It is the period of reconstruction, which calls for the best there is in every man, and party politics and revenge must be eliminated, set aside and ignored, for the one great object which confronts the country, namely, the rehabilitation of the disintegrated forces in the economic life of the country resulting from the war.

"The Speakership of the House is the instrumentality through which provision is made for the orderly conduct of the business of the House, and whatever contest there may be for the Speakership should be, and I believe is, along harmonious lines. There should be no feeling entering the contest, and especially should there be no disposition on the part of the successful forces to take revenge on those who fail.

"Every member of the House should be left free to express his preference without fear of discrimination. Healthy rivalry in the matter of House reorganization should bring out the best in the elements composing the House, not the worst that is in them.

"The principal thing to be remembered is that the people of the United States are not interested in individual quarrels. Their interest centres in the proper dispatch of public business and the economical administration of the nation's affairs."

CONGRESS IN RECORD CRUSH

Important Bills Cannot Be Reached, and Extra Session Seems Certain.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The final week of the Sixty-fifth Congress will be ushered in tomorrow with the busiest seven days in all Congressional history in prospect. Among the outstanding features of the final week will be President Wilson's conference at the White House Wednesday with the Foreign Relations Committees on the League of Nations; prospective daily discussion of the League proposal in the Senate; selection by the House Republicans at a conference Thursday of a candidate for the Speakership of the next House, and the final rush of appropriation bills and other urgent legislation.

Decision regarding an extra session of the Sixty-sixth Congress also may be reached during the week. With sine die adjournment at noon on Tuesday, March 4, and with more legislation remaining on the calendars than in the history of many Congresses, leaders of both houses have abandoned hope of avoiding an extra session. The only question, it was said by some members today, is the time when it will be called by the President.

President Wilson will be advised soon after his return regarding the extra session. The nature of the advice, according to Democratic leaders, principally depends upon disposal of the pending House bill to authorize $7,000,000,000 of short term Treasury notes in lieu of Liberty bonds for the April loan campaign. If the measure is passed, the leaders plan to advise the President to call the extra session about May 15. If it fails, it is said, a request for a call of Congress not later than April 1 will be substituted. The bill will be taken up in the House on Tuesday.

Hope of passing all of the appropriation bills apparently has been abandoned by both Senate and House leaders. Only two of the sixteen regular money bills have been enacted. A dozen money measures are awaiting action in the Senate, and Senate leaders declare several of them are certain of failure.

Senate discussion of the League of Nations is one of the principal obstacles to the disposal of legislation. Defense of the League on behalf of the Administration will be opened tomorrow by Senator Lewis of Illinois. Daily and protracted debate on the League thereafter is in prospect. Senator Owen, Democrat, of Oklahoma, plans to discuss the League on Wednesday, Minority Leader Lodge on Friday and Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, Republican, former Secretary of State, on Saturday.

Congressional leaders today studied the legislative situation, to determine which bills could be passed and which must go over for the extra session. Among bills said to be virtually assured of enactment were those appropriating $1,000,000,000 to maintain the Government wheat price guarantee, $750,000,000 for the Railroad Administration, the bond bill, the Post Office Appropriation measure, the Sundry Civil bill, with $660,000,000 for the Shipping Board, the measure appropriating $12,000,000 for hospitals, the legislative, executive, and judicial salary budget, and the measure validating $2,750,000,000 of informal war [illegible]

PERSHING CAN FIND NO FAULT AT BREST

ACTED ON WILSON'S ORDER

Stories of Harshness to Soldiers and Nurses Declared to be Absolutely Groundless.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—A denial of reports that conditions at the embarkation camp at Brest, France, are such as to endanger the lives of soldiers and that soldiers and Red Cross nurses have been held there virtually as prisoners, after the time when they expected to sail for the United States, is made in a cable received by the War Department tonight from General Pershing.

The conditions were investigated, General Pershing asserts, by Major Gen. Helmick of the Inspector General's Department, following the receipt of a cable which was received by President Wilson from a New York newspaper.

The publication of the cable message from General Pershing was authorized tonight by General March, Chief of Staff. It follows:

"Under date of Feb. 12 The New York Evening Telegram sent a cablegram to President Wilson, as follows:

"'Hundreds of complaints have been made to The Evening Telegram of the conditions at the United States camp at Brest. Soldiers from the front and Red Cross nurses practically held prisoners. If they complain are put at bottom of sailing list. Wounded and ill forced to stand in rain hours for meals. Officers overbearing and harsh, and give casuals no consideration. Roofs of buildings leak, barracks filthy, mud everywhere. Can you not inspect camp and remedy abuses costing lives of many American soldiers, or have camp abolished?

"'(Signed New York Evening Telegram.'

"The President sent me the above cablegram, and directed me to have a report made on the matter to the Secretary of War. The following is a summary of report of conditions at Brest just received from Major Gen. Eli A. Helmick, Inspector General's Department, A. E. F., commanding there:

General Helmick's Report.

"'The charge that soldiers from the front and Red Cross nurses practically held prisoners absolutely groundless. No individual has been put at the bottom of the sailing list. One organization was held fifteen days on account of bad state of discipline and neglect of duty, and was released before expiration of time set on account of honest efforts made to correct deficiencies. No man of the garrison of more than 60,000 is required to remain in line over ten minutes. Troops are marched to meals by time schedules, and the entire garrison is fed within one hour and fifteen minutes.

"'Relative to officers overbearing and harsh and give casuals no consideration, all commanding officers of troops and casual officers passing through here have, almost without exception, voluntarily and without solicitation visited my office before leaving and have expressed their appreciation both verbally and in writing for the uniform courtesy and great consideration shown them by all officers on duty at this base section. With the exception of newspaper reporter by the name of Brown of Washington (D. C.) paper, every newspaper man that has visited Brest has become an ardent advocate of the organization, efficiency, and human kindness in common at the railroad station, at camp, at the embarkation office, at the pier, and in all offices in Base Section No. 5. Inspections of buildings are made daily, and only in rare instances are leaks discovered during the hardest wind and rain storms. In every instance the leaks are immediately repaired, usually before the occupant have had time to report them. As relates to mud everywhere, this is the rainy season. Footpaths and roads were muddy for a time, due to conditions over which no man had control. Even this has been met by laying approximately forty miles of boardwalks along the roadside throughout the camp, to storehouses, to incinerators, to laundries, to delousing plants, to mess halls, and along highways.

Can Feed 50,000 in an Hour.

"'Thousands of cubic yards of crushed stone have been laid and rolled, so that one may walk over the camp without stepping in the mud. Sheds and messes have been built at the railroad station to serve 50,000 men within an hour after arrival, both day and night. These are located conveniently near the docks, in order to also serve troops embarking in case of necessity. Inclosed buildings and restrooms furnished with heating facilities, such as stoves and open fireplaces, with attractive decorations, have been provided at the docks, and are being managed by the Red Cross, assisted by commissioned and enlisted details from the army. These facilities are provided with chairs, writing tables, music, light refreshments, benches, and will accommodate 4,000 men. A neat and attractive building has been provided as an infirmary at dock, to which ambulances have access under cover. Sick and wounded are provided with covers from infirmary to hospital boat, which is inclosed and heated. Sick and wounded are removed from hospital to hospital train or ships under cover.'

"Major Gen. Eli A. Helmick quotes the following newspaper men as having no criticisms to make, but much to praise relative to conditions at Brest: Mr. Mellett of The United Press, David Lawrence, Tiffany Blake, Mr. Amond of The Chicago Tribune, and Raymond Carroll of The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"Charles M. Schwab went over the entire camp at Pontanazen and made the statement that it is one of the best examples of good organization and efficient operation that he had ever observed, and expressed his intention of reporting the improvements observed on returning to the United States. Mr. Schwab was asked by a newspaper man present if he objected to being quoted as having made such a statement, to which he replied that he had no objection. A report on health conditions at Brest has already been cabled you.

"PERSHING."

The Washington newspaper man [Brown] referred to by General Pershing, is George Rothwell Brown of The Washington Post, who, upon his return from France several weeks ago, wrote a story for his newspaper making serious charges against the manner in which the embarkation camp at Brest was being conducted.

PERSHING THANKS Y. M. C. A.

Praises Its Work in Relieving It of Post Exchange Duties.

CHAUMONT, Feb. 23, (Associated Press.)—The American Y. M. C. A., at its own request, has been relieved of its work in maintaining the post exchanges with the American army. Correspondence has been exchanged between General Pershing and E. C. Carter, in charge of the Y. M. C. A. with the army, resulting in this decision. On Jan. 29 Mr. Carter wrote to General Pershing, saying that duties of the Y. M. C. A. in promoting athletics and entertainments were so heavy that he thought it should be relieved of the exchange work.

General Pershing in his reply said:

"As you correctly state, the Y. M. C. A. undertook the management of the post exchanges at my request at a time when it was of the greatest importance that no available soldier should be taken away from the vital military functions of training and fighting. As the reasons which impelled me at that time to request you to undertake this work no longer exist, I am glad to approve of your suggestion.

"In making this change, permit me to thank you for the very valuable services and assistance which the Y. M. C. A. has rendered to the American Expeditionary Force in handling these exchanges. Handicapped by a shortage of tonnage and land transportation, the Y. M. C. A. has by extra exertion served the army better than could have been expected, and you may be assured that its aid has been a large factor in the final great accomplishment of the American [illegible]

SIXTEEN DROWNED IN SHIP COLLISION

HELENE WENT DOWN AT ONCE

Lifeboat Launched by Sailing Vessel Capsized with Loss of Its Passengers Aboard.

The Norwegian steamship Gansfjord, laden with bananas from Cabanas, Cuba, arrived in port yesterday with her bows stove in through ramming the French steel bark Helene at 2 o'clock Saturday morning, fifty miles south of the Winter Quarter Light below the Delaware Capes. Sixteen French sailors on the bark were drowned in the collision, as their vessel was loaded with steel rails and machinery from Baltimore for Nantes, and went down almost immediately on being struck.

Captain Maisonneuve and seventeen survivors of his crew were picked up by the Gansfjord and brought to New York.

The weather was very thick at the time, with driving squalls of rain, so that the officer on the bridge of the Norwegian steamship did not see the sailing vessel until he was almost on top of her. He gave the order to the quartermaster to put the helm over, but for some reason the steering gear jammed and the sharp bow of the Gansfjord cut into the bark's starboard.

The Captain of the Helene ordered the two lifeboats swung at the davits on either quarter to be lowered as the vessel started to heel over to starboard. The boat on that side was launched safely, but the one on the port side rolled over on the hull and capsized with the 18 men in it, and they were all drowned, but two. It was pitch dark and there was a choppy sea running, so that there was no chance of rescuing the men. The Captain of the Gansfjord had one of his lifeboats lowered with a powerful lamp to look for the men in the water, and just as they were returning to the steamship two sailors were picked up who had clung to a grating that had been washed off the poop. It was very difficult to row back to the Gansfjord, the survivors said, because the weather was getting worse all the time.

The Norwegian vessel was under charter to the Atlantic Fruit Company and is a single screw vessel of 1,087 tons gross, and the Helene was a four-masted steel vessel of 3,456 tons burden, built at Sunderland in 1892.

The steamship was in fault, it is said, because the international navigation laws state that a vessel under steam must always give way to any craft propelled by sails.

SINK SIXAOLA AT PIER TO STOP FIRE IN HOLD

Cargo of Food Valued at $3,000,000 Reported a Total Loss—Two Men Missing.

The United States transport Sixaola had to be sunk at pier 9, Hoboken, at 6 o'clock last night to put out the fire, which had started in one of its holds at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, where some hundreds of tons of beef, lard, and butter were stowed for the American forces in France. She had about 3,000 tons of general cargo on board, mostly provisions, which was valued at $3,000,000, and is said to be a total loss.

Lieutenant E. H. Foster, the executive officer on duty at the time, and Frank Cramer, Boatswain's mate, are believed to have been drowned in the hold of the ship.

Within a few minutes after the smoke was seen coming from the hatch the two fire companies from the pier working with half of the crew, started to pump water on the flames below with the appliances they had on the pier. The fireboat New Yorker came up from the Battery, and the firemen from the army piers lower down, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, where the troops have been landing, all came to offer their aid in fighting the fire. The fat and beef burned quickly, and the fumes were so pungent that it was difficult for the men to go "tween decks" and direct the hose on the flames.

Lieutenant Foster and Boatswain's Mate Cramer had gone below with fire helmets before the steamship lurched, and were not seen again. Ensign G. W. Sloan said last night that he was afraid the chances of their being alive were very slight.

After listing over to port the Sixaola sunk to the mud on an even keel through the seacocks having been opened to let the water in.

The Sixaola carried a crew of six officers and 122 men, who were transferred last night to the transport Manchuria. She was commanded by Captain H. B. Smith, and was built by the United Fruit Company for the passenger and fruit trade between New York and the West Indies, and was 5,000 gross tonnage. She was taken over by the U. S. Navy in 1917.

JUDGE DITTENHOEFER DIES OF HEMORRHAGE

Last Survivor of Lincoln Electors and Long Active in Party Campaigns.

Abraham Jesse Dittenhoefer, lawyer, jurist and author, prominent in this city for many years, died at 7:40 o'clock last night at his home, 17 East Eighty-third Street, following a cerebral hemorrhage early Thursday morning, from which he never regained consciousness. Judge Dittenhoefer until that time had been in fairly good health, and was at his office at 32 Broadway last Monday. The funeral, which will be private, will be held at his late home on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Born in Charleston, S. C., March 17, 1835, a son of Isaac and Babetta D. Dittenhoefer, Judge Dittenhoefer came as a boy to New York, where his father engaged in a successful mercantile business here. Young Dittenhoefer attended public schools and entered Columbia College, from which he was graduated at the head of his class in 1856. After a thorough course of legal training he was admitted to the bar at the age of 21 and made rapid progress. He early took an active interest in Republican politics.

He became a candidate for Justice of the City Court, being defeated by his Democratic opponent, but several years later he was appointed by Governor Fenton to fill the vacancy in the same court caused by the death of Judge Florence McCarthy. He gave his entire salary as Judge to the widow of Judge McCarthy, who had been left without any considerable means. He declined the nomination to succeed himself and returned to his private practice.

Judge Dittenhoefer was the sole survivor of the Presidential Electors who voted in 1864 for Lincoln, with whom he was on terms of friendship. He declined an appointment as United States District Judge for South Carolina, offered to him by President Lincoln. Judge Dittenhoefer was active in the councils of his party, and, as he was a public speaker of ability, his services in campaigns were sought by the party managers.

In litigation relating to the stage Judge Dittenhoefer was especially prominent and was an authority in that branch of the law. He procured the incorporation of the Actor's Fund and served for many years as its counsel without compensation. He was counsel for the Metropolitan Opera Company in the suit brought by Mme. Cosima Wagner, widow of Richard Wagner, to restrain the production of "Parsifal" and defeated the injunction asked by the Wagner heir.

He secured enactments of amendments to the United States copyright law, and to the penal code of New York, making it a misdemeanor to pirate plays. In commemoration of this service and other professional services in the interest of American playwrights and managers, the Actors' Fund of America a few years ago presented to him resolutions signed by all the Directors.

Among the notable cases that Judge Dittenhoefer was engaged in was one involving the rights of an extradited American citizen, a controversy having been maintained for years between the United States and England as to the right to try a person for a different crime than the one for which he was extradited.

Death of H. S. Beattie.

Hans Stevenson Beattie, Surveyor of the Port of New York under the Administration of President Cleveland, is dead at the State Hospital for the Insane at Kings Park, L. I. Mr. Beattie was Secretary to the late William C. Whitney when Mr. Whitney was Corporation Counsel, and he was Treasurer of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company from 1893 until 1900. He was born 72 years ago in Ireland.

PRINCESS OYAMA DIES.

Vassar Graduate and Among First of Japan's Wards Here.

TOKIO, Wednesday, Feb. 19.—Princess Oyama, widow of Field Marshal Prince Oyama, who commanded the Manchurian Army during the Russo-Japanese War, died yesterday of influenza. She was a graduate of Vassar College. The Princess took a prominent part in the work of the Japanese Red Cross and was an active supporter of the American Red Cross here.

Princess Oyama, whose maiden name was Sutematsu Yamagawa, was one of the first Japanese women to be educated in the United States. She was born in the Province of Aizu and was a descendant of a Samurai family.

At the age of 10 she was chosen as the most clever among a thousand little girls and was sent to the United States by the Japanese Government to be educated. This was in 1871, and in 1876 she was baptized in the Christian religion.

When she was 19 years old she entered Vassar and graduated four years later with high honors. Soon after her return to Japan, in 1885, she was married to Prince Oyama, who was then Minister of War in the Japanese Cabinet.

The Princess Oyama was about 60 years old at her death, being some twenty years younger than her famous husband, who died in December, 1916. The only son of Prince and Princess Oyama was killed in the explosion aboard the cruiser Mutsushima in April, 1908.

"AUNT" DELIA TORREY DIES.

Ex-President Taft's Relative Expires at Age of 93.

MILLBURY, Mass., Feb. 23.—Miss Delia Chapin Torrey, 93 years old, aunt of former President Taft, died tonight at the Torrey home after a brief illness. Her death was due to a general breakdown. The only relative at the bedside was a nephew, Horace Taft. The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon and interment will be in the family plot in Central Cemetery.

At the inauguration of William Howard Taft as President on March 4, 1909, "Aunt" Delia Torrey was a famous figure in the family group at the White House. She was then 84 years old, and in a day became known to the whole country as "Aunt Delia." Miss Torrey was born in Boston in 1825.

They Shall Not Perish
OFFICIAL BULLETIN of the AMERICAN COMMITTEE for RELIEF IN the NEAR EAST

"Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass? Behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow."

Lamentations 1:12

WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

¶We could have done it in a dozen different ways. We could have done it in a dozen different ways because, God be praised, poverty of ideas is not our weakness.

¶We decided to do it this way in the hope of being the poor agency of reaching a multitude of men and women and little children, and to bring to them the knowledge of a human duty to be done, and speedily.

¶ "They Shall Not Perish." Who first gave voice to this expression we do not now know nor have we time to discover. We do know that it expresses the intent and will of a group of American citizens whose members have ever been tireless in the effort to relieve poverty and disease wherever found.

¶Who shall not perish? The answer is two million and more souls known to the world as Armenians, Syrians, Greeks, Persians and Jews. They are the survivors of peoples who have been scourged with a scourge that makes the Scourge of Belgium look like a cheap brigand.

¶We were all so intent upon driving the Hun out of civilization for all time that we had scarce a moment for reflection on the savagery of the Turk, visited on Christian and Jew alike; on men and women and little children who trace their holy ancestry back to the twilight of the Old and New Testaments.

¶It was not long after the world-war broke out that the Turk heard his own and his master's voice, and obeyed. "This time," he boasted, "I'll destroy Christianity by killing and exiling its members wherever found in my Empire. Nor will my hatred spare the Jew." It was his master's way of terrifying the world in the hope that the world might fall at his feet and in a burst of agony cry out—"Enough."

¶The Turk put to the sword men and women and children whose numbers never have been computed. Those he did not kill outright he drove into exile and destroyed their dwellings, drove them out into the night and across plains and into lands already suffering all the tragedies of warfare.

¶You know the rest; how tens of thousands died of disease and starvation; husbands separated from their wives and children; the plagues of all kinds that set in among the survivors. Above 400,000 of these are orphaned children. The remainder are mothers and brothers and sisters willing again to go forward in God's name and work at their several occupations in the hope of giving new life and courage to their races.

¶These peoples cry out now to you and to me, and they cry to us in the Name of God and His Charity.

¶Here's a suggestion—17 cents a day, $5 a month, $60 a year will keep alive one of these unfortunates. How much will you give? How many lives will you save?

¶Look for the Bulletin; there will be others.

¶Expect to read in the next Bulletin brief thoughts on "SENATE BILL 4785." "Why the Red Cross cannot help them." "Why our Government must use the American Committee as your agency of mercy." "Why the Turk cannot be trusted with your gifts." "What Cardinal Gibbons, a member of the Committee, says of its work." "What the picture at the top of the Bulletin means," and still another thought on so domestic a subject as "Mamma, Mamma, don't you hear me calling you?' "

One Way of Doing It Now

Mr. CLEVELAND H. DODGE,
Treasurer Armenian and Syrian Relief Committee,
No. 1 Madison Avenue,
New York City

Dear Mr. Dodge:

I am very glad, indeed, to make this little offering in the name of God and His Charity for the relief of the Armenians, Syrians and Persians. Please send me literature.

Yours for "They Shall Not Perish."

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

Experts are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much as to whether to buy now as it is to use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a diversified list of securities, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to types and geographical location as closely as possible.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

Rise of Stocks Reflects New Sentiment.

The change of sentiment in the stock market last week may or may not have been of the far forward-looking quality, but, at any rate, it was sufficiently pronounced to convince one that some of the troublesome uncertainties of the readjustment period had passed into history. Except for periods of profit-taking, the advance was fairly steady from day to day and brought more encouragement to the market following in the way trading reached further out than in preceding weeks of the year to stocks ordinarily the subject of light buying. The market bore the earmarks of speculative operations whose intentions comprised more than a casual effort for profits to be taken quickly after a moderate advance. That is, the calibre of the buying in case of many old-line industrial issues, some of the railroad shares and scattered specialties, had the appearance of accumulation for a movement expected to progress for months rather than days. In part, the purchases probably reflected a psychologic influence, based on the fact that the market had drifted so long without a pronounced trend downward despite substantial pressure from short sellers that a forward swing might easily occur, to be extended as business and trade turned toward normal. The major factors appeared, however, to centre in the feeling evident in banking and brokerage offices that the future was less obscure than a month ago, while reports from manufacturing centres and from export sources showed some change for the better. Steel trade reports, for example, indicated that buying for shipment outside the country was slightly on the increase, with inquiries noteworthy in respect to the tonnages mentioned. Some observers of conditions within the industry noted that undue emphasis could easily be laid on the amount of steel going into stock at the present time for the reason that the distribution to consumers was actually absorbing by far the greater portion of current production. In the textile markets an improvement in buying of numerous lines of goods was reported, and something of a shock to pessimists on the general outflow of exports was presented in the January trade figures. The statement by the Department of Commerce for this month was hardly short of remarkable in view of the cessation of shipments of military supplies. The total of exports, amounting to $623,000,000, not only established a new high record for any month in the country's history, but topped the previous high record by the margin of $10,000,000. High prices, of course, helped to swell the aggregate, but it would be difficult to see how, with a vast volume of war materials eliminated from the export flow, there could not have been a really noteworthy expansion in the bulk of commercial products sent out. A great part of the January shipments consisted, undoubtedly, of foodstuffs for Europe and manufactured articles and raw materials for South America and the Far East. Since Jan. 31 the shipping situation has eased considerably through the release of many vessels heretofore in Government service, and it would be natural to expect that the export trade from now on will begin to reflect the outgo of materials needed for reconstruction work in the war-wrecked countries. Evidence of coming expansion in this field is supplied by the completion of arrangements between American and Belgian banks for an acceptance credit of $50,000,000 here, which will be used in paying for goods sent to Belgium. It is expected that additional credits for other countries will follow soon; in fact, the status of the trade balance in favor of this country, by itself, pre-supposes that agreements will be entered into in the near future. In January the United States exported some $410,000,000 more goods than was imported, and while the $213,000,000 of imports displayed a slight increase over December, 1918, the gain was too small to forecast a rapid reduction in the balance for some time to come, provided, of course, that the export movement continues on a high scale. The exports of the first month of the year arouse speculation as to the real condition of domestic trade, and it may be that the stock market of late has been anticipating news of results which will minimize the rather dampening comments heard since the armistice was signed. The price situation continues to offer a check to free relations between producer and consumer, yet signs have been accumulating for the last fortnight or more that quotations are bending downward in many directions in a way to forecast decided market improvement soon. Copper stands out sharply as one important commodity whose price structure has been attacked with an axe, so to speak. Metal has changed hands in sizeable amounts at 16 cents a pound, compared with the nominal quotation of 18½ cents two weeks ago.

As far as the acts of Congress may be forecast in advance, it appears that the form of the Government's Spring financing has been shaped. It matters little whether the forthcoming paper is called a bond or a note; the chief item is that a program for selling short-term securities has been decided. The Liberty bond market's moderately firm front last week reflected hope among investors that the new issue, or issues, would not compete directly with the existing bonds. Bond dealers reported a marked increase of buying from investors, institutions, and individuals, which did not decrease after Secretary of the Treasury Glass had corrected the erroneous impression held in many quarters that the banks would be expected to take the greater part of the new loan. The tax-exemption features and contemplated attractions in regard to the total of non-taxable holdings of the new security are enough proof by themselves that the public will be sought in as intensive a fashion as in all the Liberty bond campaigns. To look to the banks to carry the burden would not only be the epitome of bad economics, at a time when bank credits will be needed for commercial purposes on a greater scale than ever before, but also a suggestion that the people desired to dodge their share of the cost of liquidating the war. There is no proof that patriotism since the war ended has accompanied the Liberty bonds below par, and patriotism, supported by the investment quality of the Victory Liberty Loan, will be counted upon to put the financing through. Congress is inclined to limit the short-term paper to $7,000,000,000, but this does not indicate that borrowing to this amount will surely cover the total of remaining necessities.

The nations are counting up the cost of the war and some appalling totals have been presented. France estimates her outlay at 182,000,000,000 francs, which is 24,000,000,000 francs more than is so far available from taxes, loans, and advances from the Bank of France. It is not surprising that France would like to have Germany forced to liquidate a substantial part of her war debt, and the presentation of claims by the other allied nations promises to bring forth some delicate and far-reaching financial and economic problems for the later sessions of the Peace Conference. The German war cost is calculated by the nation's financial leaders at 161,000,000,000 marks, or $40,000,000,000, and the output of circulating notes has become so topheavy that the gold cover for them now amounts to less than 10 per cent., against 91 per cent. before the war began. The task of arranging the indemnity and damage payments in the face of this tremendous inflation, at the same time providing for the rehabilitation of Germany's industry to the end that the nation may be able to provide for the penalties, is one which entails extraordinary difficulties.

HOLD MORE CERTIFICATES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Aggregate increases of over $278,000,000 in the holdings of Treasury certificates, largely the result of the issue of the sixth series of these certificates, only partially offset by reductions of about $16,000,000 in the amount of United States bonds and of $28,400,000 in the amount of war paper held are indicated by the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement showing condition on Feb. 14 of 770 member banks in and about 100 leading cities.

Member banks in New York City report an aggregate increase in Treasury certificate holdings of $122,500,000, while for the member banks in all the twelve Federal Reserve cities, an increase in these holdings of $191,900,000 is shown. Combined holdings of United States war securities and paper supported by such securities (so-called war paper) were $3,635,300,000—an increase for the week of $283,900,000—and constituted 26 per cent. of the total loans and investments of the reporting banks, as against 24.9 per cent. the week before. For the member banks in the twelve Federal Reserve cities a rise in this ratio from 26.3 to 27.4 per cent. is shown, and for the New York City banks a rise from 29.4 to 30.6 per cent.

Government deposits show an increase for the week of $62,500,000, the banks outside the Federal Reserve Bank and branch cities showing the principal gains. Demand deposits went up $120,100,000, and time deposits $5,400,000. Reserve balances with the Federal Reserve Banks increased $29,600,000, while cash in vault went up $7,300,000.

Municipal Bonds
have always constituted the main investment of an institution which states that if it could have foreseen the war, its financial position could not have been better buttressed than it was. In the last seventeen years this institution has invested over $133,000,000 without the loss of a dollar of interest or principal.

YOU can thus insure YOUR financial position by confining your investments to Municipal Bonds.

PLAN SHARP DRIVE FOR VICTORY LOAN

War Savings Convention at Carnegie Hall Tonight Will Launch 1919 Campaign.

In an effort to have the bond selling for the Victory Loan in Manhattan conducted even more intensively than during any of the four previous drives, the Liberty Loan Committee has organized a New York City Liberty Loan Committee which will have centralized control of all selling operations in Manhattan. Every bond selling organization and every agency for furthering the flotation of the loan will be under the control and direction of this committee, which will be headed by George de B. Green, the other members being Craig Colgate and J. W. Hornor, Jr.

The Advisory Trades Committee, the executive organization of the "Rainbow Division" and the Metropolitan Canvass Committee, will be the chief divisions under this committee in handling the selling work in Manhattan. Mr. Colgate will be Chairman of the first-named committee, and Mr. Hornor of the second.

Mr. Green, who, as Chairman of the Advisory Trades Committee in all four previous loans, made a successful record among business, trade, and industrial groups, predicted last night that the Victory Loan would be a great success.

"People keep saying that selling the Victory Loan will be a hard job," he said. "We who have been through the other four campaigns might remind them that each of them seemed a hard job, yet it was accomplished more than successfully. We are going into this campaign with confidence. We know it is going to mean hard work, but we know just as well that we are going to put the Victory Loan over.

"We are going to sell it on the investment appeal, of course, but, above all things, we are going to sell it on the patriotic appeal. The patriotism is there, and it is going to buy the bonds when we appeal to it."

Mr. Horner has appointed an Executive Committee to help organize the huge canvassing agency he will command. The members are Mrs. Cortlandt D. Barnes, Edwin H. Bigelow, Powhattan Bolling, Peter Duryea, A. H. Johnson, Bernard K. Marcus, Howard F. Whitney, and W. L. McKee. E. E. Murphy, Jr., will be secretary of the committee. The work of the Metropolitan Canvass Committee will be carried on by volunteers.

"Victory Loan workers are Government agents," said Mr. Horner yesterday. "They are volunteers making a patriotic appeal for the United States. We will expect them to live up to this idea, and I am sure the public will accept them in this spirit rather than as ordinary commercial canvassers."

Mr. Colgate, who will direct the Rainbow Division work, is thoroughly familiar with it. He was Vice Chairman of the Advisory Trades Committee under Mr. Greene, and has worked in all four campaigns.

The War Savings Convention at Carnegie Hall tonight will launch the campaign of 1919 to enrol in War Savings Societies every man, woman and child in New York City. The convention is the first here and will bring together bankers, merchants, heads of industrial concerns, superintendent of schools, teachers, clergymen, labor leaders and others.

Joseph Hartigan, Manager of the Labor and Foreign Language Bureau of the Government Loan organization, will preside. Chairman of Trade Committees of the Pioneer Division of the War Savings Committee, will occupy boxes. W. S. S. workers will give one minute reports on sales last year and will tell how new War Savings Societies may be established.

Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher, U. S. Commander for a time of the Rainbow Division, Colonel William Hayward of the 369th Infantry and Captain A. P. Simmonds, military observer, will speak. A detail of troops just back from France will be present and a military band will play. Two members of the Chicago Opera Company, Miss Myrna Sharlow, and Forrest Lamont, will sing. The public will be admitted to a limited number of seats.

LOANED $108,000,000.

War Finance Corporation Also Underwrote $100,000,000 for Industries

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Outstanding loans of the War Finance Corporation amount to $108,000,000, according to a report made public today. The corporation has also practically underwritten more than $100,000,000 of other loans to industries essential to the war, without actually furnishing the funds.

In these cases bankers made the advances on assurance that the War Finance Corporation was willing to supply the funds if necessary, or security holders were persuaded to extend the maturities of securities.

Loans to railroads have amounted to $70,000,000.

First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds

Dated September 1, 1908 Due June 1, 1943

Interest payable March 1 and September 1. Coupon bonds in denomination of $1,000 each. Callable at 110 and interest on any interest date upon 40 days' published notice. Previous issues of these bonds are listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange, and application will be made to list this issue.

Interest Payable Without Deduction of the Normal Federal Income Tax Up to 2%

For detailed information regarding these bonds attention is directed to a letter from Mr. Samuel Insull, President of the Company, a copy of which will be sent upon request, and from which we summarize as follows:

The Commonwealth Edison Company was organized under the laws of Illinois in 1907 by a consolidation of the Chicago Edison Company and the Commonwealth Electric Company. It serves the entire city of Chicago, with a population of over 2,500,000, practically without competition. Its customers number at the present time over 371,000 with an annual increase of from 30,000 to 40,000.

These bonds, in the opinion of counsel, are secured by a first mortgage on the entire property of the Company and rank equally with the $8,000,000 Commonwealth Electric Company First Mortgage 5% Bonds. Additional bonds may be issued for only 75% of the cost of permanent improvements and new property.

Net earnings for the year ended December 31, 1918, were over 3 times the annual interest charges on the $46,631,000 First Mortgage Bonds which constitute the Company's entire funded indebtedness.

The Commonwealth Edison Company and its principal predecessor, the Chicago Edison Company, have paid dividends since 1889 without interruption.

War Savings Convention at Carnegie Hall Tonight Will Launch 1919 Campaign.

In an effort to have the bond selling for the Victory Loan in Manhattan conducted even more intensively than during any of the four previous drives, the Liberty Loan Committee has organized a New York City Liberty Loan Committee which will have centralized control of all selling operations in Manhattan. Every bond selling organization and every agency for furthering the flotation of the loan will be under the control and direction of this committee, which will be headed by George de B. Green, the other members being Craig Colgate and J. W. Hornor, Jr.

The Advisory Trades Committee, the executive organization of the "Rainbow Division" and the Metropolitan Canvass Committee, will be the chief divisions under this committee in handling the selling work in Manhattan. Mr. Colgate will be Chairman of the first-named committee, and Mr. Hornor of the second.

Mr. Green, who, as Chairman of the Advisory Trades Committee in all four previous loans, made a successful record among business, trade, and industrial groups, predicted last night that the Victory Loan would be a great success.

"People keep saying that selling the Victory Loan will be a hard job," he said. "We who have been through the other four campaigns might remind them that each of them seemed a hard job, yet it was accomplished more than successfully. We are going into this campaign with confidence. We know it is going to mean hard work, but we know just as well that we are going to put the Victory Loan over.

"We are going to sell it on the investment appeal, of course, but, above all things, we are going to sell it on the patriotic appeal. The patriotism is there, and it is going to buy the bonds when we appeal to it."

Mr. Horner has appointed an Executive Committee to help organize the huge canvassing agency he will command. The members are Mrs. Cortlandt D. Barnes, Edwin H. Bigelow, Powhattan Belling, Peter Duryea, A. H. Johnson, Bernard K. Marcus, Howard F. Whitney, and W. L. McKee. E. E. Murphy, Jr., will be secretary of the committee. The work of the Metropolitan Canvass Committee will be carried on by volunteers.

"Victory Loan workers are Government agents," said Mr. Horner yesterday. "They are volunteers making a patriotic appeal for the United States. We will expect them to live up to this idea, and I am sure the public will accept them in this spirit rather than as ordinary commercial canvassers."

Mr. Colgate, who will direct the Rainbow Division work, is thoroughly familiar with it. He was Vice Chairman of the Advisory Trades Committee under Mr. Greene, and has worked in all four campaigns.

The War Savings Convention at Carnegie Hall tonight will launch the campaign of 1919 to enrol in War Savings Societies every man, woman and child in New York City. The convention is the first here and will bring together bankers, merchants, heads of industrial concerns, superintendent of schools, teachers, clergymen, labor leaders and others.

Joseph Hartigan, Manager of the Labor and Foreign Language Bureau of the Government Loan organization, will preside. Chairman of Trade Committees of the Pioneer Division of the War Savings Committee, will occupy boxes. W. S. S. workers will give one minute reports on sales last year and will tell how new War Savings Societies may be established.

Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher, U. S. Commander for a time of the Rainbow Division, Colonel William Hayward of the 369th Infantry and Captain A. P. Simmonds, military observer, will speak. A detail of troops just back from France will be present and a military band will play. Two members of the Chicago Opera Company, Miss Myrna Sharlow, and Forrest Lamont, will sing. The public will be admitted to a limited number of seats.

LOANED $108,000,000.

War Finance Corporation Also Underwrote $100,000,000 for Industries

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Outstanding loans of the War Finance Corporation amount to $108,000,000, according to a report made public today. The corporation has also practically underwritten more than $100,000,000 of other loans to industries essential to the war, without actually furnishing the funds.

In these cases bankers made the advances on assurance that the War Finance Corporation was willing to supply the funds if necessary, or security holders were persuaded to extend the maturities of securities.

Loans to railroads have amounted to $70,000,000.

Interest payable March 1 and September 1. Coupon bonds in denomination of $1,000 each. Callable at 110 and interest on any interest date upon 40 days' published notice. Previous issues of these bonds are listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange, and application will be made to list this issue.

Interest Payable Without Deduction of the Normal Federal Income Tax Up to 2%

For detailed information regarding these bonds attention is directed to a letter from Mr. Samuel Insull, President of the Company, a copy of which will be sent upon request, and from which we summarize as follows:

The Commonwealth Edison Company was organized under the laws of Illinois in 1907 by a consolidation of the Chicago Edison Company and the Commonwealth Electric Company. It serves the entire city of Chicago, with a population of over 2,500,000, practically without competition. Its customers number at the present time over 371,000 with an annual increase of from 30,000 to 40,000.

These bonds, in the opinion of counsel, are secured by a first mortgage on the entire property of the Company and rank equally with the $8,000,000 Commonwealth Electric Company First Mortgage 5% Bonds. Additional bonds may be issued for only 75% of the cost of permanent improvements and new property.

Net earnings for the year ended December 31, 1918, were over 3 times the annual interest charges on the $46,631,000 First Mortgage Bonds which constitute the Company's entire funded indebtedness.

The Commonwealth Edison Company and its principal predecessor, the Chicago Edison Company, have paid dividends since 1889 without interruption.

We Recommend These Bonds for Investment

END WIRE CONTROL, STATES ASK WILSON

Utilities Commissioners Unite in Appeal for Return of Systems by June 30.

OFFER MANY REASONS

C. E. Elmquist, Head of National Association, Presents Plea in a Letter to the President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Contending that Government control of telephone and telegraph facilities has turned out to be a failure, and that the net results of six months of the experiment has been inferior service, the National Association of Railway and Utilities Commissioners, representing the various State regulating bodies, through Charles E. Elmquist, its President, has sent to President Wilson an appeal for the return of the wire facilities to their respective owners, not later than June 30 of this year.

Copies of Mr. Elmquist's letter, which bears date of Feb. 21, and is based on action taken after investigation of the wire situation by the association's Executive and Special War Committees, have also been sent to each member of the Senate and House of Representatives.

"There is such a widespread dissatisfaction over the service and increased charges of the telephone companies," said Mr. Elmquist, "that we concluded it was in the public interest to bring the matter immediately to the attention of the President.

The Executive and Special Committees of the association met here on Feb. 19 and 20. Beside Charles E. Elmquist of Minnesota those of the Executive Committee present were C. M. Candler, Georgia; C. A. Glasgow, Michigan; Dwight L. Lewis, Iowa, and E. I. Lewis of Indiana. Members of the Special War Committee present were Travis H. Whitney, New York, Chairman; Frank H. Funk, Illinois; R. Hudson Burr, Florida, and F. Putnam, Minnesota. Mr. Elmquist's letter has their approval. There were also present a number of State Commissioners, who were not members of these committees.

The Letter to the President.

Mr. Elmquist's letter to President Wilson is in part as follows:

"On my behalf and at request of the Executive and Special War Committees of the National Association of Railway and Utilities Commissioners, of which I am President, I write you this letter.

"Having under consideration Government control of the telephone and telegraph systems, these committees unanimously decided that I should communicate to you their earnest recommendation that the telephone and telegraph companies and systems be returned to private operation as soon as practicable, and not later than June 30, 1919. They ask, also, that I invite your attention to the following facts:"

The letter then cites in detail the taking over of the wire systems and quotes this section of the Congressional resolution under which it was done:

"That nothing in this act shall be construed to amend, repeal, impair or affect existing laws or powers of the several States in relation to taxation or the lawful police regulations of the several States except wherein such laws, powers or regulations may affect the transmission of Government communications of the issue of stocks and bonds by such system or systems."

Mr. Elmquist's letter then continues:

"At the time of the adoption of that resolution commissions in all but five of the States of the Union were engaged in regulating the rates and service of telephone companies, and in a number of States they exercised control over the telegraph companies.

"Broadly speaking, telephone companies are divided into three classes; exchanges, toll lines, and rural or farm lines. As a rule only the wires and facilities of toll lines extended beyond the limits of a single State. Exchange plants are local in character. The practice of regulating commissions has been to base rates on the actual investment or the physical value of the properties. A substantial percentage of the toll rates are wholly between points within a single State and were subject to local regulation.

Right of States to Control Rates.

It has always been understood that the control of rates is within the police power of the States, and yet the Postmaster General has undertaken to establish installation and service charges, as well as standard toll rates, to apply uniformly upon State as well as interstate business, and he has indicated an intention to fix exchange or local rates based upon uniform principles.

"Our association, at its annual convention, held in Washington Nov. 12-14, 1918, adopted the following resolution:

"'Whereas, it is apparent that the ends sought to be obtained by Federal control of telephone and telegraph lines as a war measure have already been satisfied as far as is possible, and it is not perceivable that, under existing conditions, it is desirable that further Government control be exercised pending the return of such properties to State control; and whereas, during the short period of such control and operation by the Federal Government there has been practically no interference or change in the corporate organization, management or properties of said telephone and telegraph companies; and whereas, pending the natural termination of such Federal control the State commissions are embarrassed by the assumption by the Postmaster General of exclusive control over rates; therefore, be it resolved, that this association does respectfully recommend to the Postmaster General that the Federal control of the telephone and telegraph lines cease as soon as practicable and the military necessity therefor shall have ended.'"

Inferior Service; Higher Rates.

He then quotes Postmaster General Burleson's pledge for a high standard of efficiency and his circular on the standardization of rates, and continues:

"The net result of six months of operation by the Postmaster General of these wire systems is: Inferior service and very substantial increases in charges to the public.

"We feel that these properties should be returned.

"No military necessity can now be pleaded in support of Government control. The quality of the service has in many cases deteriorated. No rule, regulation, practice, or rate increase has been adopted for military purposes. Rates and charges have been greatly increased without giving the patrons or the public an opportunity to be heard as to the reasonableness or justice thereof; although the principle was long ago settled that important changes shall be submitted for public consideration before becoming effective.

"These rate changes are applicable upon State as well as interstate traffic, and have thereby caused widespread dissatisfaction with Federal operation, which is evidenced by the fact that judicial protection to prevent the collection of said excessive charges has been sought by the States of New York, New Jersey, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and California, and is in contemplation by several others. This toll rate order also prescribes a new and untried system, which has resulted in general confusion among operating officials and the patrons throughout the country.

"Fundamental changes are being made in the operation of these systems, which probably could not be legally done under private control, and which upon return to private management may cause serious disturbance in the relative status of the different wire systems. Federal operation has also disrupted service and resulted in interfering with many of the established practices in forty-four States of the Union. It is felt that prompt return to private operation will result in securing improved service, the restoring of reasonable rates and charges, and the giving of adequate protection to both the public and the corporations.

Demanding Higher Wages.

"The Postmaster General's recent declaration that employes engaged in the public service should receive higher compensation than those engaged in private service of a similar kind, which as a matter of fact can be accomplished only through rate increases, has caused a demand by the employes of the wire systems for largely increased wages, and has resulted in a decreased morale and efficiency until such demand is complied with.

"Unsatisfactory operation is resulting in a broadcast public feeling that these wire systems should be returned immediately to private operation. In fact, there are now no advocates of Government control except the companies, who now receive or expect to receive benefit therefrom, and those who favor Government ownership of the wire systems.

"Under the provision of the law that the President fix 'just compensation for Government use,' the Postmaster General accepted the proposal of the Bell system, which contained provisions very satisfactory to the company with respect to guaranteed return, recognition of securities as a basis of value, reservation of property by that system, the assessment of taxes and increased expenses. In this connection, however, it may be pointed out that corresponding contracts proposed by the Postmaster General to other companies contain elements much more protective of the public interest, and are so different that they constitute a discrimination in favor of the Bell system as against other companies or systems. Neither the advantages accorded to the Bell system through its agreement nor other forms of agreement have been offered in whole or in part to the thousands of small companies confronted by existing financial operating and tax problems.

"The American people are wedded to the doctrine of local regulation of local utilities, and they earnestly feel that their interests can be more properly safeguarded in that way than by any system of Federal operation. Hence the widespread demand for the early return of these properties."

Immediate, Practical Help

RETURNS of income must be filed by March 15.

TAXPAYERS will find of great value the ruled forms which we have prepared specially designed for assembling the necessary data in preparing their statement of income. The making of the return will then be simply a matter of transfering the figures to the Government blank.

ANY of the following forms will be sent upon request.

S-1 Income from corporation bonds and foreign bonds and stocks.
S-1a Income from interest on mortgages, notes and bank deposits.
S-2 Income from dividends.
S-3 Income from Liberty Bonds and Treasury Certificates.
S-4 Income from real estate.
S-5 Record of profit or loss sustained through sale of securities.
S-6 List of contributions.

THERE is no charge for these forms or for any services rendered by our Tax Department in connection with preparation of returns.

Ask for the forms adapted to your needs.

The Protective Committee calls the attention of bondholders to the fact that the sixty days' grace for the payment of interest on the above mentioned bonds will expire March 1st, 1919. As occasion may arise for prompt action on their behalf, bondholders who have not yet deposited their bonds should immediately deposit same with one of the depositaries, so that the committee may take such steps as may be necessary to protect the interests of the bondholders.

It is believed that unity and concerted action on the part of the bondholders will be advantageous to them.

As prompt action is necessary, NO BONDS WILL BE RECEIVED AFTER MARCH 6th, 1919, except upon such terms and conditions as the Committee may impose.

Three-Year Seven Per Cent. Secured Gold Notes, due July 1, 1921
Six-Year Five Per Cent. Secured Gold Notes, due July 1, 1918
NEW YORK MUNICIPAL RAILWAY CORPORATION:
First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, Series A, due January 1, 1966

A majority of the above-mentioned Three-Year Notes held by others than the War Finance Corporation have been deposited under the Deposit Agreement dated January 2, 1919, and the Notes so deposited together with those held by the War Finance Corporation constitute a large majority of the total issue. Proceedings have been instituted to foreclose the mortgages securing the above-mentioned Bonds and the Consolidated and Refunding Mortgage Bonds of Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company which are pledged to secure the Three-Year Notes. It is therefore advisable that the remaining Notes and Bonds be deposited at once with Central Union Trust Company of New York, Depositary, 80 Broadway, New York City, and to that end the time for making such deposits has been extended to and including March 15, 1919, after which date no further deposits will be received except upon such conditions as the Committee may impose.

The undersigned Committee was formed in January, 1918, for the protection of holders of bonds of the various corporations included in the Pittsburgh Railways System, almost immediately after defaults had been permitted to occur in the payment of interest due January 1, 1918, on fifteen of these issues.

At that time deposits were invited only of bonds of such issues as had been defaulted on January 1, 1918, and several million dollars of these bonds were deposited with the Committee.

On February 14, 1918, a test suit in equity was instituted by one of the Committee's depositing United Traction Company Bondholders to compel the Philadelphia Company to recognize liability for the principal and interest of all bonds issued by subsidiaries in the Street Railways System.

After the filing of this suit, the interest on practically all bonds which had been defaulted on January 1, 1918, was paid, but on April 23, 1918, Receivers were appointed for the Pittsburgh Railways Company and thereafter additional defaults were permitted to occur, until at the present time approximately twenty-nine (29) bond issues are in default as respects one or more interest payments.

Under these circumstances, the undersigned believe that the holders of all bonds in the system have common interests to protect, and that this can be most effectively done by one Protective Committee representing all bondholders.

They believe that if the Pittsburgh Railways System is permitted to be reorganized without proper consideration being given to the liability of the Philadelphia Company for the payment of its debts, or if divergent action by the owners of the underlying securities should result in a disintegration of the system, there is grave danger that the holders of bonds on the underlying systems will not only be kept out of their interest from time to time, for shorter or longer periods, but that a large portion of the volume of their principal invested in these bonds may be jeopardized.

They accordingly call on all bondholders, whether defaults in their bonds have actually occurred or not, to deposit all bonds with one or the other of the depositories named below.

An amendment of the deposit agreement has been drawn providing that deposited bonds upon which interest shall have been paid when due may be withdrawn prior to the occurrence of default without expense to the depositor.

The deposit agreement already contains provisions for protecting the interests of any class of bondholders whose interest may at any time become adverse to the interest of any other class.

ADVERTISING IS AN INVESTMENT

The Value of Ideas in Advertising

GOOD ideas are the most valuable things in the world. Material wealth is but the outgrowth of ideas. The earth would be a place of jungles and deserts if it were not for ideas.

Men rise or fall in the business world according to the merit of their ideas. A big business is first a big idea.

Federal brains are busy evolving the kind of big, constructive ideas that create profitable business development. If you want ideas that will put your business in the spot-light of greater success,

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

TO ALL HOLDERS OF CLAIMS AND DEMANDS AGAINST

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company,
AND
New York Consolidated Railroad Company:

NOTICE is hereby given that on the 8th day of February, 1919, the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York made an order in the equity suit pending in said Court, No. E 15-347, brought by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, plaintiff, against Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, New York Municipal Railway Corporation, and New York Consolidated Railroad Company, defendants, which order, among other things, provides that:—

(1) All claims and demands against the said Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the said New York Municipal Railway Corporation or the said New York Consolidated Railroad Company, shall be presented to Lindley M. Garrison, Receiver of said corporations, on or before the 1st day of April, 1919.

(2) If any persons having claims and demands against the said defendants or any of them shall fail to present such claims and demands to the said receiver on or before the said 1st day of April, 1919, as provided in said order, each of them so failing shall be barred from sharing in the benefit of the distribution of the moneys and proceeds of the properties of the said defendants that now are or hereafter shall be in the hands of the receiver in said suit, and from sharing or participating in the distribution of any of the proceeds arising from the sale of any of said properties if such sale shall thereafter be adjudged and decreed in said suit.

Nothing in said order requires claims and demands secured by mortgage or other lien to be presented to the receiver as above stated.

Forms for proofs of claims and demands required to be presented to the receiver as stated above may be obtained from the receiver at his office, No. 85 Clinton Street, Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York, and claims and demands shall be presented to the receiver at his said office, No. 85 Clinton Street, Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York.

Dated, Brooklyn, N. Y., February 10, 1919.
Receiver.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Pressure is lower over New England and the rains and snows in the lake region and the Atlantic States have ceased except in North New England. There is another disturbance over the southwest with high pressure to the northward, accompanied by snows and rains that extend to the Pacific Coast and by much lower temperatures over the extreme north with a cold wave in Montana.

There will be snow Monday in North New England, Monday night and Tuesday in the upper lake region, and on Tuesday in the lower lake region. In Southern New England, the Middle and South Atlantic States, the weather will be fair Monday and Tuesday.

WINDS FOR MONDAY AND TUESDAY.

FORECAST—TODAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York—Partly cloudy Monday, Tuesday probably fair.

Western New York—Cloudy Monday, Tuesday rain or snow.

Southern New England—Partly cloudy Monday, Tuesday fair.

Northern New England—Snow Monday, colder in New Hampshire and Vermont, Tuesday fair.

New Jersey—Partly cloudy Monday, Tuesday fair, little change in temperature.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy Monday, Tuesday fair.

Western Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy Monday, Tuesday rain or snow, colder at night.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	16	38	4 P. M.	34	44
6 A. M.	17	37	6 P. M.	36	42
9 A. M.	21	37	9 P. M.	35	38
12 M.	27	43	11 P. M.	33	38

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 40; for the corresponding date last year it was 26; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 32.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 37; at 8 P. M. it was 39. Maximum temperature, 46 degrees at 1:45 P. M.; minimum, 33 degrees at 5:10 A. M. Average was 40 degrees; average same date last year, 26 degrees; average same date for thirty-three years, 32 degrees. Humidity, 95 per cent. at 8 A. M., 73 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.64 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.88 inches.

PROPOSALS.

OFFICE OF COMMISSIONER OF PUBLIC FINANCES OF THE CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

CITY HALL.
New Orleans, Feb. 3rd, 1919.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon on the 6th day of March, 1919, for the purchase of $600,000.00 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by the Act aforementioned, and the constitutional amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000.00, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being No. 3628, N. C. S., approved May 14, 1912, and Ordinance No. 5316, Commission Council Series, approved January 28th, 1919, of said city, authorizing the present offering.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

Proposals must be in writing, sealed, and marked on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for the purchase of $600,000.00 of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans," and shall be accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans, for an amount equal to one per cent. of the aggregate amount of the bid, which said check of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the City of New Orleans as a guarantee that the successful bidder or bidders will comply with its or their bids, and the said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to the successful bidder or bidders, respectively. In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

No sale shall be made unless the aggregate of the bids received equals the full amount of the present offering of $600,000.00 in face value, and the adjudication shall be made to the highest bidder, provided, however, that no adjudication shall take place for less than par and accrued interest. All matured interest coupons shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery. The bonds shall be paid for in cash as fast as said bonds can be signed and delivered. All bonds will be delivered within thirty days from the opening of said bids. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Further particulars and information will be furnished on application to the Public Belt Railroad Commission or the undersigned. The final opinion of Wood & Oakley, lawyers, Chicago, Ill., as to the legality of this issue will be furnished to the successful bidder if so desired.

A. G. RICKS,

EUROPEAN SAND BREAKS MARKET

Brought Here in Ballast, French Commodity Hits Domestic Prices.

BUILDING READY TO START

Analyses of Various Markets Shows Basic Materials in 20 Per Cent. Demand.

Ordinary building sand, brought here in great quantities since the close of the war as ballast in troop ships, was used last week to break the sand prices that have been held at practically Government war prices.

During the war the Government fixed a price in the neighborhood of $2.25 delivered, representing a wholesale price of approximately $1.25 a cubic yard. The wholesale price was maintained entirely according to the supply here in the market prior to the movement of troops back to home ports and as long as the supply here was controlled there was nothing for the contractor to do but to meet the price.

In the meantime the sand from Belgium and France continued to be dumped upon piers and storage docks here and such a quantity piled up that it became a menace. The contractors expected after the war that there would be an automatic drop back to proportionately pre-war levels, recalling that the normal price for ordinary building sand in this market before the war was 50 cents a yard.

No change occurred, and in the meantime the George A. Fuller Company and other great contracting concerns were invited to figure important building operations, and when they came down to the sand figure found that there was no promise of an early return to prices. The next step was to force this commodity lower on delivery price in this market, and a new materials delivery company was organized and announced a price for ordinary sand of $1.85, or 40 cents below the former delivered market price of $2.25 a yard; 50 cents off the former gravel price of $3.25 a yard delivered in Manhattan, making the present quotations $2.75 and $3 for delivery in the Bronx.

At the same time the price of broken stone in New York dropped 25 cents a yard on delivered price, making the quotation today $3 for inch and a half and three-quarter inch sizes for Manhattan delivery and $3.25 for inch and a half and three-quarter inch stone delivered in the Bronx. Simultaneously with the drop in price the piles of ballast sand and gravel diminished at the various local unloading docks.

The expected $4 drop in the price of structural steel, the general belief of the trade that lumber had reached its lowest level for the immediate readjustment period, the remarkable strength of the common brick market, coupled with the announcement that Haverstraw size hollow brick was advanced $1.90 a thousand to $16 wholesale, dock, New York; the rigidity of prices in the calcined products like lime, plaster, and cement an their products, and the general belief that the building trades strike would be of short duration, all tended to support the belief prevalent in the building construction field that the path for the immediate resumption of general building construction was rapidly being cleared, according to the Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Building material distributing yards of all kinds reported at the close of the week that business had developed in the preceding fifteen days to a little more than 20 per cent. of normal. Deliveries were mostly for alteration work, but there was a stronger forward inquiry than had been felt for a great many months and more orders were actually placed for Spring delivery, meaning the middle of March.

Common Hudson brick is today the backbone of the building material price market for New York and vicinity. The manufacturers say that the $15 wholesale level will stand, and the sporting element among the dealers are laying wagers that the manufacturers will not be able to hold together and keep their prices where they are between now and July 1, when new Hudson brick will begin to come in. The dealers and consumers bank upon the anxiety of certain manufacturers to sell at the best price they can get. The manufacturers, on the other hand, point to the fact that, with a fee of $200 charged for towing an empty brick barge to an upriver point and back again loaded and the costs, making it impossible to put a thousand of brick along the stringpiece of a New York dock for less than $12 a thousand, $15 is a rock bottom price for the commodity after handling and storage charges are made. It is pointed out that there are only 190,000,000 brick up the river for New York's consumption until new brick comes in, whereas the normal quantity at this time of the year should be at least half a billion, with a State and local potential demand far greater than has been known in many years.

Production of Portland cement last year was only 71,000,000 barrels as against 92,000,000 barrels in 1917, with shipments 71,645,000 as compared with 90,703,474 barrels in 1918, a decrease in quantity of 21 per cent. This is accepted as a reason why cement prices at mill will be maintained rather steadily, for the present at least. There is not sufficient cement in reserve to warrant fear of an inactive market, especially in view of the underconstructed condition of the city and country. The Government authorizes the statement that there is a shortage of a million homes in the United States that cannot be supplied within five years. This does not include the normal requirements of construction for the year just beginning.

Next Saturday will be declared a legal holiday by the entire ceramic tile interests of the city and vicinity when at 1 o'clock at the Building Trades Employers' Association a reconstruction mass meeting of all interests in that trade will be called for the purpose of considering trade conditions in the light of new freight rates, labor and building conditions. R. E. Jordan, President of the Tile Manufacturers Representatives' Association, and Henry Petri, President of the Atlantic Coast Dealers' Association, will preside at the convention and dinner to be given later at the Café Boulevard.

The purpose of the meetings is to readjust the tile situation, practically eliminated during the war, to the best possible position with relation to the builder this Spring. Similar meetings of the Hudson River brick manufacturers have been held in Newburg and other conferences of the sort have been scheduled, all with the idea of putting the market in attractive shape for the prospective builder before the building season starts next month.

WANT WAR CONTRACTS PAID.

Merchants' Association Asks Congress for Immediate Settlement.

The Merchants' Association announced yesterday that it would bend every energy to have Congress enact legislation which would permit a settlement of the hundreds of millions of dollars tied up in war contracts. A bill taking care of the situation is before the Conference Committee of the Senate and House, and in order to expedite consideration of it, the association sent the following letter to the members of the committee:

"Permit us to urge upon your immediate consideration the very great hardship already placed upon the industries of the country by the delay in the enactment of legislation to enable immediate payment by the Government of informal contracts and orders and further to urge upon your attention the fact that a continuation of this situation would become a real element of economic danger to many of the industries of the country.

"While the Merchants' Association favored the inclusion in the bill of a provision for an Appeals Commission, which it considers of great importance, nevertheless, the association earnestly urges that even without that provision the bill enabling payment on informal contracts and orders should be enacted before the adjournment of this session.

"We understand that the Henderson amendment to the bill in the form before the Conference Committee is causing disagreement and consequent delay, and we respectfully submit that the necessity for the legislation in reference to informal contracts and orders so overshadows in general importance the provisions of the Henderson amendment that an agreement of some form upon that amendment should be reached in order that the main and very greatly needed provisions of the bill shall be enacted at this session of Congress."

STRIKE CONFERENCE TODAY

Building Trades Workers and Employers Give No Hint of Plans.

In a second effort to settle the strike of the building trades a committee of union leaders headed by William L. Hutcheson, President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, and a committee of members of the Building Trades Employers' Association will go to Washington this morning for another conference with Secretary Baker and William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor.

Union leaders who met for conferences at the Hotel Continental declined to discuss their plans should the conference fail. Members of the Building Trades Employers' Association were noncommittal yesterday when asked whether they expected a statement at Washington today.

"We all think the strike ought to be settled at once if possible," declared Ronald Taylor, President of the association, last night. "Wherever there is a chance for a meeting there is a chance for an agreement. We will meet the representatives of the union at Secretary Baker's office at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. There is nothing definite I can say concerning our plans."

Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who was to have addressed the forum of the Church of the Ascension on "The Forty-four Hour Week" last night postponed his talk.

FIND SURFACE CARS' EARNINGS INCREASE

Reports to Service Board Indicate Receiverships May Not Be Necessary.

CARRIED 371,000,000 IN 1918

New York Railways Company's Income for Four Months $140,000 More Than Was Expected.

An examination into the affairs of the surface railroad companies has resulted in the discovery that their financial condition is rapidly improving and that the threatened receiverships may not take place. While the examination has been confined to the New York Railways Company, the result, it was said, applies to all of the companies. It was the Railways Company which occupied the foremost place in the cry for some change that would yield greater net returns so that the property might not pass into the hands of a receiver.

Testifying recently before the Public Service Commission, Frederick T. Woods said that for the four months ended Dec. 18, 1918, the receipts of the Railways Company were $140,000 more than was expected. He explained this by saying that the company did not forsee the end of the war, the return of the troops, and the release of men from munition factories and other allied occupations. The better financial condition of the company was also due, he said, to the fact that there had been no snow and very little frost up to that time, and that the car mileage had fallen off during the period referred to about 884,000 miles.

It was also reported that during the active war period it was difficult to obtain skilled labor, with the result that the company's plant suffered, but that this condition was steadily improving and would probably soon be normal.

Dr. Weber, the statistician of the Public Service Commission, said that during the Winter of 1913-14 snow, ice, and frost cost the company $188,000, in 1915-16 $149,000, and in 1917-18 $127,000. The average cost during the six last Winters was about $105,000. So to the increase in traffic returns the usual cost due to severe Winter weather may be added.

It was also said that the surface railroads are recovering from the opposition of the rapid transit lines, that much of the traffic lured from the surface roads by subways and elevated lines is being regained, and that the normal increase in the city's population is also paying a due percentage of tribute to the surface line companies.

Dr. Weber said that when the elevated roads were electrified in 1902 and 1903 the maximum traffic on the surface lines in Manhattan was 396,500,000, that in 1904 this total dropped to 390,000,000, and the next year to 374,500,000. Then came the subways, and there was a further drop in surface travel, but in spite of the double competition the surface lines had total traffic in 1906 of 392,000,000, and in the three following years it dropped again to 377,000,000, 363,000,000, and 357,700,000, the last being the lowest point reached.

Since then, Dr. Weber said, there had been a steady increase in surface travel until the strike of 1916, when the growth stopped for a time. Then it began to increase, and is still growing. Last year it was more than 371,000,000.

MAY RESUME BRITISH TRADE

Export Association Believes English Policy Is Only Temporary.

The American Manufacturers' Export Association announced last night that a study of British import restrictions effective March 1 had led it to the conclusion that any temporary loss of British trade would enable American manufacturers to concentrate on other markets, and that the imposition of these restrictions was not to be taken as an indication of permanent British policy. George E. Smith, President of the association, asserted that he had official and unofficial information that the policy was of temporary expediency and that the British had no intention of erecting a trade wall which, if duplicated by other countries, would destroy her own foreign commerce.

The keeping of a certain percentage of goods manufactured in other countries upon a restricted list, the statement said, represented merely the attempt of the British to put their own house in order, and there was no necessity for abandoning American branch houses in England, because normal conditions would be restored in six months or a year. Mr. Smith added that there was a disposition on the part of the American Government to take up with the British any particular state of facts which showed that special hardship was being worked on a particular industry.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED
OF NEW AND EXCLUSIVE DESIGNS
HICKSON, Inc., and M. ROCK
DURING THE WEEK OF FEBRUARY TWENTY-FIFTH AT THE SALESROOMS OF
C. P. TOOMEY
225 Fourth Avenue, New York

THESE garments by two of America's leading designers sharply reflect authentic advance style tendencies in Women's and Men's garments. They bring out in a concrete manner the adaptability of Continental Fulwool Fabrics to the various needs of makers of smart outer apparel. Each garment in this exhibit emphasizes one or more of the characteristic merits of Continental Fulwool Fabrics—their many uses, uniform quality and their individuality.

Continental Knitted Fabrics do not sag or lose their shape. Yet they have just enough elasticity to give loft, life and softness. They are made from pure wool properly constructed, finished so as to have durability and warmth without excessive weight—all the high points of fine woolens.

Continental Knitted Fabrics are designed in distinctive mixtures, solid colors and silversheens in light, medium and heavy weights.

Machine Shop For Sale

The property of the undersigned, who has been engaged in the manufacture of 155 Millimeter Common Steel Shell. Offers will be received for the entire property on which there is no mortgage or encumbrance.

This consists of a machine shop and about seven and one-half acres of land located on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, on Clyde Avenue, Buffalo, having a spur track on each side of the building. The land is fenced. The main building is single story, well lighted and in good condition, of stone construction, 80 feet x 300 feet, a stone addition thereto, 30 feet x 200 feet and a frame addition, 88 feet x 304 feet, together with other outbuildings, among which are a restaurant and time and employment office.

This is a modern plant with a low tax rate and cheap electric power. The equipment consists of electric motors and transformers, air compressors, boilers and heating system, high class tool room equipment, office fixtures and furnishings, belting, shafting and hangers, furnaces, lathes, boring mills, drill presses, grinders, pumping and conveyor systems, benches, special machinery, etc., all being in good operating condition.

The property is open to inspection and may be seen by applying at the premises. Any offer made must have the approval of the Ordnance Department before acceptance.

'DRY' FORCES ISSUE WARNING AT ALBANY

CALL IT 'FIGHTING QUESTION'

Can Be No Compromise on Observance of Constitution, Anderson Tells Lawmakers.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 23.—Open aid of nullification of the Federal prohibition amendment, or passive connivance at it, by the New York State Legislature, will invite widespread disorder and make lawmakers so voting liable to malfeasance in office, the Anti-Saloon League, through William H. Anderson, warns the legislators in a letter which they will receive tomorrow. Admitting that refusal to pass an enforcement bill might be honest, the Anti-Saloon League says that nullification is a "fighting question."

The proposal of certain "wet" legislators to legalize beer and light wines the Anti-Saloon League characterizes as "idiotic." Attempts at nullification already made in the Legislature through the introduction by Assemblyman Peter P. McElligott of New York of a concurrent resolution "rescinding, nullifying, and repealing" the prohibition ratification action, the league contends is "shameful," and Anderson warns that the people will not submit to indefinite delay in the courts on the question of whether the State has power to pass a nullification act, but "will carry the issue into the next campaign."

The defeat of Governor Charles S. Whitman because his managers "tried to flirt with the wets" is thrown into the faces of Republican members as a warning to pursue a consistent course by putting through the league's enforcement measure and not the "wet" program.

"The wets claim that they have the votes to pass a beer and wine bill," the league writes the lawmakers. "They also claimed that they had the votes to defeat ratification before the members and leaders heard from home and looked the facts in the face.

"A fundamental issue such as the ratification of the prohibition amendment, which New York would have had to obey anyhow, offered no room for change or adjustment. A legislator had to be for or against it, just as it was.

Would Appeal to Voters.

"But a bill to carry the amendment into effect is an entirely different question. There is room for honest differences of opinion respecting many details. Such a law is a legitimate subject for a discussion, conference, and agreement. We had hoped that the Legislature would consider the question in that temper and do so sincerely. We have never intended to make a vital issue of any detail of the prohibition enforcement bill proposed by the Anti-Saloon League. We were responsible for proposing a measure which we believe would be enforceable and effective. If the Legislature did not make what we believed to be adequate provision, we expected to go back to the people with the issue and come back to the Legislature again. We reckoned that if the Legislature were to insist upon the Anti-Saloon League's returning again and again to get adequate law—increasing its influence all the time—we would be in a position to stand that as long as the Legislature could.

"But nullification is a fighting question. There can be no compromise on the issue of whether the spirit of the Constitution shall be observed. When prohibition went into the Constitution, the prohibition issue, as such, ceased to exist and became merged in the issue of patriotism, loyalty, and obedience to law. When to that summary is added the fact that it is also a moral issue, the combination is irresistible, bound to win, and the harder it may have to fight the stronger it will emerge from the fray. After whipping German autocracy in Europe the people of America are not going to allow the German brewers to 'come back' in America. Men with 'ski' on the end of their names, but no sky in their hearts, will not be allowed to thwart the moral convictions of the nation, or even of this State."

While temporary refusal to pass an enforcement bill might be honest, the league holds that it would not be consistent with ratification.

Ceases to Be Party Issue.

"It would not discharge the duty of the members under the Constitution. It would be foolish politics. The only sensible thing consistent with elementary political intelligence is for the Republican Legislature to pass an enforcement measure and put it up to the Democratic Governor. If he signs it he divides the responsibility, the question ceases to be a party issue. If he vetoes it, then he and his party become responsible for attempted nullification and the consequences thereof, and he then puts himself at odds with his party nationally."

Mr. Anderson writes that the leaders and the Republican Party will be held responsible if any nullification scheme goes through "because they have the power to block it or at least have the power to protect the party by compelling any Republican who votes for it to break with his party in order to do so."

He points out further that voters who favor Prohibition cannot vote for Democratic candidates under the present leadership, "but they can always stay at home."

Mr. Anderson works in the idea that the Republican party has been condemned to defeat and that every member of the party in the Legislature who voted for ratification has been marked for slaughter by the distillers, saloonkeepers and hotel interests, the wet newspapers, brewers and "what is left of the pro-German influence, together with all Bolshevist and I. W. W. forces."

Then he suggests that if Prohibition becomes really effective, the revenue of these interests is cut off and the Republican party and its individual members will escape the slaughter.

ASSAIL WINE AND BEER BILL

Anti-Saloon League Won't "Spy" for Liquor, Anderson Says.

Speaking at the morning service yesterday in the Calvary Baptist Church, 123 West Fifty-seventh Street, William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, asserted that the purpose of the organization was to sstrive for a worldwide prohibition. He added that it was not the purpose of the league to use any of its funds for "the work of spying upon individuals, and homes," and that no warrants would be solicited to search any but public houses, places of resort, or where it is suspected that liquor is sold.

The Anti-Saloon League observed "Field Day" yesterday in Brooklyn churches, the note of the sermons being the necessity for proper enforcement of the prohibition amendment, and the necessity that communities see that proper laws were passed. The Anti-Saloon League has sent a circular letter to the members of the Legislature who voted to ratify the Federal amendment calling attention to the proposal for a law to permit use of beer and wine.

The Self-Determination League of Liberty, which has opened headquarters at the Hotel Walton, Columbus Avenue and Seventieth Street, and asserts that it is not in any way connected with the liquor interests, in a statement issued yesterday declares that the organization proposes to "continue the fight for freedom and liberty until the voters of this and other States decide this momentous prohibition question for themselves."

CURBING LIQUOR SMUGGLERS

Michigan and Federal Officers in Control of the Situation.

DETROIT, Feb. 23.—Action proposed tomorrow by the Michigan authorities is expected to make it practically impossible to smuggle liquor into this State over the Ohio border. State Food and Drug Inspector Woodworth announced today that tomorrow he would introduce in court at Monroe the complete schedule of interurban car service and ask search warrants for every car. Under these warrants every car will be searched, all liquor seized, and the owners arrested.

At the same time Attorney General Groesbeck will ask an injunction restraining steam railways from transporting persons carrying liquor.

With Federal, State and local authorities co-operating very little liquor has come over the border in the last two days, it is asserted. Aided by special deputies, the State constabulary are halting all vehicles northbound along the Dixie Highway and other roads, and liquor not concealed is seized and the owners arrested under the Federal laws.

Detroit police are boarding incoming interurban cars at suburban stations and have seized much liquor that escaped the eyes of the border guards.

Reception to Japan's Singer.

Mme. Tamaki Miura, the Japanese prima donna of the Chicago Opera Company, will be the guest at a reception given for her by the Princess Lvoff at her home, 109 East Thirty-ninth Street, next Sunday evening. Mme. Miura will sing for the first time at a private entertainment, and Mr. Baklanoff, the Russian baritone, will also sing. Mme. Miura's husband is a professor at Yale University.

NEW MINIMUM WAGE BILL.

Carries Out Ideas of Women's Joint Legislative Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 23.—A minimum wage bill, to carry out views of the Women's Joint Legislative Conference, will be introduced in the Assembly this week by one of the Republican members. Senator James A. Foley, leader of the Democratic minority in the upper house, has introduced a minimum wage bill, which did not go far enough to suit the conference. The Foley bill, however, has been amended, with his consent, to conform with the ideas of the women who are advocating such legislation.

These are the outstanding features of the new bill:

First—A wage commission of three is created, including one employer, one employe, and one representative of the public. At least one of the Commissioners must be a woman. The Commissioners are to be paid $10 a day. The Chairman of the Industrial Commission will be an ex-officio member of the commission.

Second—Local wage boards are to be established equally representative of employers, employes, and the public. These wage boards, after investigation of conditions in any occupation and the cost of living in the locality, will decide the minimum wage for women and minors in that occupation. The establishment of a minimum wage, of course, does not prevent the women workers from bargaining collectively or individually with the employer for a rate above the minimum wage.

Third—A minimum wage which may be less than that paid to the woman worker of normal ability will be established by the wage board for apprentices and learners. The maximum length of time that any woman worker or minor can be kept at such work as a learner or apprentice will also be determined by the wage board.

Fourth—The decision of the commission is made mandatory, and failure to obey will be considered a misdemeanor and punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both.

Miss Rose Scheiderman, President of the Women's Trade Union League, one of the six organizations in the joint conference, said today that there was nothing revolutionary in the proposed legislation.

"A minimum wage for women has been in effect in England for eight and in Australia for twenty years," she said. "Twelve of our States and the District of Columbia have such laws. Those States are Arkansas, Arizona, California, Colorado, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wisconsin."

adds its quota to the total of business men who have rejected the theory that one filing method can be made to fit all kinds and conditions of business.

Men in this class are naturally critical, yet our records show that these, above all classes of buyers, are the readiest to recognize Amberg Service.

Why? Simply because they find in the Amberg plan that factor of service which no other plan possesses; namely, a knowledge of where to use and how to combine the basic principles of filing and finding to fit each individual case.

The further success of the Amberg plan is based upon its simplicity and its unusual flexibility, best demonstrated by the ease with which the indexing is adjusted to any business without interfering in the least with the customary routine.

It co-ordinates—does not revolutionize.

WANTED:
Scientific Management Executive

ONE of the leading Advertising Agencies in New York is growing so fast that its production cannot keep up with its expansion.

This Agency wants a scientific management executive who can organize this production to take care of the abnormal expansion. After he has perfected the system we want him to take the position of managing it permanently.

A scientific management executive who knows the printing and advertising business is preferred.

We do not wish to overestimate the desirability of this opportunity, but the man who is able to deliver can in due time become financially independent.

Please do not consider this opportunity unless your record will bear the most searching investigation.

"Where Did I Leave Those Papers?"

THE disturbing thought that you left them on your desk where they might blow to the floor and be lost bothers you all evening. Well, no matter, you'll find them all right in the morning—and perhaps there's no harm done.

But harm has been done because an unnecessary risk has been run and you have been robbed of an evening's relaxation.

Good Health is the reward of Good Sense

Good sense says, to guard the health of teeth. Teeth have two enemies—the acid of food decay and dangerous dentifrices.

Nature can take care of the acids if you will avoid alkaline dentifrices. Nature's tooth protection consists of a constant flow of saliva, which destroys acids in the mouth.

An alkaline dentifrice cannot destroy those acids except at the instant of using, but it defeats Nature's method by paralyzing the salivary glands and retarding the flow of saliva, thus exposing teeth to the unchecked ravages of acids.

Mennen's Cream Dentifrice is absolutely non-alkaline. It actually increases the flow of saliva because of mild fruit acids which stimulate the salivary glands.

It cleans and polishes the teeth wonderfully, and breaks down tartar formations without grinding or scouring the enamel.

A 20% content of alcohol assures an antiseptic action and a cool, refreshing after-effect.

It costs 35 cents, and the tube is smaller than many dentifrices selling for 25 cents—but Mennen's was made to deliver a result and not to fit a price.

Dangerous dentifrices cost less.
